FAST AND QUIET SURFACE CARS A CHICAGO NEED

TransitProgramOne Key to Recovery.

(This is the fifth of a series of articles concerned with the interests of this city. Its text is "Make Chicago the First City in the World.")

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Modern, high speed cars which will give the public a faster ride in more comfortable seats and take noise from the streets are accounted one essential in making Chicago first among world cities.

More than 675 million passengers were carried last year by the surface lines, which transport 80 per cent of the riders on the city's transit systems, street cars, "L" lines and buses. Faced with the problem of giving the customers transportation in keeping with the modern high power, streamlined, noise-deadened age, the surface lines management has been experimenting with two sample modern cars, one of which was built by the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company.

$19,000,000 Ready for Use.

A program of rehabilitation is now being emphasized as important not only to transit but to business recovery itself. A fund of 19 million dollars for replacements is tied up in the receivership of the lines.

If this money could be spent on cars ordered from the Pullman works, it is argued, employment would be given to some 6,000 skilled workers in a Chicago car plant and to many shopmen in equipment and supply factories, and the money would be put into circulation in Chicago. The new cars would get more passengers, meaning more fares for the lines, while the riding public would have the benefit of going places faster without getting so tired.

Removal of the clanging, thumping and screeching of the old cars from the streets meanwhile would be balm of Gilead upon Chicago's collective eardrums and nervous system.

Project Awaits New Ordinance.

The 19 million dollar replacement fund would be only a starter. To replace all the 3,000 cars which now roll over 1,100 miles of track on 500 miles of street with modern cars costing an estimated $16,500 each would cost about 50 million dollars.

Funds on any such scale, Guy A. Richardson, president of the Chicago Surface Lines, says, can not be raised until a new ordinance has been passed, for the companies are now operating under 60 day and 90 day extensions of the 1907 ordinance, which expired in 1927, and loans cannot be negotiated on that day-to-day basis.

The general understanding is that the matter of a new ordinance will not be pressed until after the April 2 city election, to keep the street cars out of politics, in which too often they have been a football.

Receiver Favors New Cars.

As to the 19 million renewal fund, which by the way came out of the fares paid by passengers, Walter J. Cummings, one of the co-receivers of the lines, has indorsed the proposal to spend it on new cars. He holds that as receiver his first duty is to keep the lines from becoming obsolete. Expenditures would need the consent of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who has jurisdiction over the receivership, and there is legal disputation pro and con.

Behind the new cars are four years of experimentation. The main object sought is a car that can hold its place in trafic and compete in speed and comfort with automotive vehicles.

A fast pickup and quick braking—smooth with no jerks, like an automobile—rubberized insulation against noise, a high degree of seat comfort, were sought in a design that might make riding so comfortable that the public would prefer street cars to other conveyances.

Two Cars Under Observation.

Like the steam roads, the surface lines found competition riding on rubber tires behind gasoline engines. A fund of $500,000 was set up by the electric railway presidents' conference committee, and Dr. C. F. Hirshfeld of Detroit decided on the requirements. Contract to build the first car went to Pullman. Two cars were ordered by the Chicago Surface Lines, one from Pullman, one from the J. G. Brill company of Philadelphia.

All summer and winter they have been operating under observation, and the management says that when the buying of equipment begins it will know what to buy.

TEN BILLION BUDGET PLAN IS DUE TODAY

President Will Tell New Deal Cost.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's program for the next stage of recovery and reform composing the New Deal will be rounded out tomorrow with the submission to congress of his budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 next.

At the moment the President lays before congress the financial accounting of the cost of his program, past, present and future, the Supreme court will be reassembling possibly to hand down the first of a series of notable decisions that will determine the fate of the New Deal. The court has two federal New Deal cases under advisement. The court will proceed to the hearing of the gold clause abrogation and other cases this week.

Budget to Break Record.

Such details as have become known indicate that the budget is a record breaker. What with a work relief project costing four billion dollars in the next fiscal year alone, between 3 and 4 billions for the ordinary expenses of the government, 900 millions more for relief in the current fiscal year and numerous undertakings the cost of which is yet to be estimated, the President's fiscal program will call for an expenditure of more than 10 billions.

How much congress will pile on top of this gigantic sum only time will tell. The psychology of the hour seems to be that if the farmers are entitled to subsidies other groups are entitled to subsidies. If the distribution of government money has made for the revival of prosperity, the theory appears to be that the distribution of more government money will make for more prosperity.

House to Pass Bonus.

The 2 billion 200 million dollar veterans' bonus prepayment is scheduled for passage by the house this month. In the judgment of administration leaders a compromise will be reached in the senate. Through that method the prepayment will be extended over several years, and this is expected to prevail even over a veto, if the President refuses to agree to it.

The 3 billion dollar Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing bill commands strong support in the agricultural states. Senators and representatives are under enormous pressure from the organized aged members of their constituencies to pass the Townsend old age pension bill, which would cost more than 20 billions a year. Senator Robert M. La Follette is the leader of a movement to boost the President's 4 billion dollar allowance for work relief to 10 billions.

Drafts Work Relief Bill.

The President expects to furnish congress within a few days the draft of the bill he desires passed to set up the four billion dollar work relief project, comprising a multitude of public works on which 3½ million wage earners now on relief rolls are to be given employment.

At the same time Mr. Roosevelt is whipping into shape a special message

PEA SOUP FOG HALTS AVIATION AND PERILS AUTOS IN WIDE AREA

Chicago was the center last night of a widespread blanket of fog which extended from the Mississippi river to Cleveland and from Indianapolis northward past Milwaukee. Although the heavy "pea soup" lifted somewhat during the evening in the southern portion of the territory, air transport companies were awaiting daylight before resuming their interrupted schedules.

By 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the thick mist which had been drifting in slowly from southern Illinois and northern Indiana reached the Chicago airport, and all planes were grounded. West-east planes were rerouted at Indianapolis, while the only eastern service was between Cleveland and Newark.

Automobile trafic through Chicago was retarded only slightly, but country roads farther inland were obscured by the thick fog. Highway police in all counties of the affected area maintained a close vigil, and reported motorists driving with great care.

With the threatened northwest cold wave passing far to the north yesterday, Forecaster W. P. Day predicted two more days of mild weather with occasional rains here today, and a drop in temperature late tomorrow.

FLAMES TRAP 7; FIREMEN CARRY ALL TO SAFETY

When flames cut off the escape of three small children and four other persons in a building at 1337 Foster avenue last night, members of fire engine company No. 47 carried the seven down ladders to safety.

Edna May Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Williams, who occupy the third floor, discovered the fire. She was taking care of the 3 year old twin sons and another 5 year old boy of Sam Rose, whose home is on the first floor. Rose and his wife were attending a wedding. The second floor was unoccupied.

Edna May saw smoke pouring out of a closet in the Rose flat. Taking the children with her, she ran upstairs. Miss Edna Conley, 25 years old, who was visiting the Williams family, turned in the alarm, but when firemen under Chief Thomas Kenny of the 20th battalion arrived the flames were attacking the front entrance and the rear walls.

In carrying Miss Conley to safety, Fireman Theodore Waller slipped on a rung of a ladder and fell five feet to the ground. Both were shaken up but uninjured.

Lindy Baby's Nurse Takes Stand Today

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on Back Page.)

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—From the maze of wild rumors circulated on the eve of resumption of the Hauptmann murder trial tomorrow, the following facts were sifted late tonight:

1. Dr. John F. Condon, who handed over $50,000 of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's money as ransom for the murdered Lindbergh child, was reported at a conference with the state's attorneys in Trenton to be insisting upon another interview with Bruno Richard Hauptmann in an effort to "make him confess."

2. Miss Betty Gow, the Scotch nursemaid who reported the child's disappearance from his crib on the night of March 1, 1932, will be the state's most important witness tomorrow. Under cross-examination the defense will strive to bring out that the maid had some prior knowledge of the kidnaping.

Jury May Visit Scene.

3. The jury of eight men and four women is expected, before the trial is over, to visit the scene of the crime and to inspect the house and grounds of Col. Lindbergh's estate near Hopewell, N. J., from which the baby was stolen.

Dr. Condon, the Bronx educator who conducted the ransom negotiations under the name of "Jafsie," remained the most mysterious figure in the case. Statements that he would positively identify Hauptmann as the collector of the ransom were followed by denials that he would do so.

The report concerning Dr. Condon's desire to confront Hauptmann again was well authenticated, although Attorney General David T. Wilentz refused to comment upon it. It was said that Dr. Condon repeatedly had expressed belief he could persuade the prisoner to confess and has pressed the prosecution for permission to make the attempt.

Will Name Prisoner, Says State.

The state insists Dr. Condon will identify Hauptmann when he takes the stand, although he previously had failed to make a positive identification

COMMUNISTS FIRE ON PRINCE STARHEMBERG AUTO IN VIENNA STREET

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Jan. 6.—Several revolver shots were fired this morning at the automobile of the supreme heimwehr commander by communists, who were immediately arrested. The assailants' attack was made on the car in which Prince Ernst Ruediger von Starhemberg, vice chancellor and chief of the heimwehr, usually rides. The prince, however, escaped, as he had left Vienna last night for Linz. A heimwehr official in the car was slightly wounded. The men under arrest refused to give any details concerning their plan. They probably will be court-martialed.

MR. LOVE FLEES 2 WIVES; FINDS PEACE IN CELL

Joseph Taft Love, 27 years old, 925 Leland avenue, a barber, was thankful for a peaceful haven in a Town Hall police station cell yesterday. He telephoned the station Saturday and asked Sergt. Michael Ahern if he would please lock him up for bigamy. Sergt Ahern told him he would if he brought his wives to the station. Fifteen minutes later Joseph arrived closely followed by the former Miss Ellen Meyer, 24 years old, 5426 North Western avenue, wife No. 1, and Miss Reta Schmid, 26 years old, wife No. 2, who gave her address as the Orrington avenue dormitory, Evanston.

Love said he was married and divorced twice before he and Miss Meyer were wed on Oct. 7, 1931. Without being divorced from Miss Meyer, he admitted, he married Miss Schmid on May 23, 1934. He deserted both current wives.

All might have been well had not Miss Meyer and Miss Schmid arrived at Love's home at the same time Saturday night to demand that he support them. Thus they learned about each other and the ensuing quarrel lasted several hours until Love finally asked to be locked up. After he found lodgment in a cell both young women signed charges against him.

Find Gasoline Can in Ruins of Lonely Barn

Circumstances surrounding the discovery yesterday of the charred body of a woman in the ruins of an isolated, abandoned barn which was destroyed by fire late Saturday night caused Du Page county authorities to suspect that murder had been committed and much of the evidence cunningly obliterated.

The barn stood near the Johnson road, a lonely lane leading south from United States highway No. 20. The spot is a short distance south of the Cook county line and little more than a mile southeast of the village of Ontarioville.

Body Is Unrecognizable.

So thoroughly had the flames done their work that all the clothing was consumed. The body itself was so severely burned that Sherif Arthur Bennett and Coroner Paul A. Isherwood asserted it would be unrecognizable even to friends of the victim.

"Only from the shape and size of the bones," said the coroner, "can the sex be determined. From an examination of these I am sure that the person was a woman."

Farmers living nearby saw the fire Saturday night after it had gained great headway. They called Herman Hitzemann, owner of a gasoline station in Ontarioville and of the barn and the five acre tract surrounding it.

Structure Long Abandoned.

Hitzemann and his son Walter formerly used the barn, a narrow structure more than 100 feet long, in rearing rabbits for the market, but had abandoned the enterprise long ago, and the barn had since stood empty.

When Hitzemann arrived, the flames had consumed all but the north end. Having seen the destruction of the last of his building, he went home.

It was not until late yesterday afternoon that two youths from Ontarioville, William Homeyer and Edwin Bender, came upon the body. They notified the owner and he informed the authorities.

Find Gasoline Can.

The body lay near the southeast corner. Nearby stood a five gallon gasoline can, which presumably was used in starting the fire. Hitzemann said that he went through the building a few days ago and that the can was not there then.

Scratching through the ruins, Sherif Bennett, assisted by State Highway Policemen W. J. Sullivan and Herbert Wright, discovered several important clews that may lead to the identification of the body. One of these was a wrist watch with the crystal melted off. Apparently of Elgin make, it bore the case number 0211813 and the movement number 32765666.

Also picked up were the rims of a pair of octagon shaped eyeglasses with the lenses destroyed, a bit of metal such as is used to build up the arches of women's shoes, and several pearl buttons and two clips such as are used on suspenders or hose supporters.

Plan New Search Today.

Only part of the jawbone of the victim was found and no teeth. Sherif Bennett announced that a thorough

50 PASSENGERS ADRIFT IN LIFE BOATS 4 HOURS

BULLETIN.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7 (Monday).—(A. P.)—Carrying rescued passengers and members of the crew of the Ward liner Havana, which went aground off the Florida east coast, the tanker El Occano arrived here early today after battling heavy seas. The El Oceano came into port with the assistance of a tug after making a rough trip from the scene of the mishap, which was in Bahaman waters, 66 miles due east of Fort Pierce, Fla.

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—With 51 passengers and a crew of 126 aboard, the Ward liner Havana, bound from New York for Havana and Vera Cruz, ran aground in thick weather a few minutes after 4 o'clock this morning, on a coral reef off the northern tip of the Bahamas, about sixty miles due east of Fort Pierce, Fla.

Tossed about in lifeboats on a rolling tropical sea for more than four hours, all the passengers except one were picked up safely by two rescue vessels which had been guided to the scene by a coast guard seaplane hovering overhead.

The lone exception was Robert Rittenhouse, 50 years old, a retired lether goods dealer of Brooklyn, who died of apoplexy in one of the lifeboats.

83 Remain Aboard Ship.

Capt. Alfred W. Peterson and 82 members of the crew of the Havana remained aboard their ship, and at 6 o'clock tonight radioed cheerfully "All's well," although earlier messages had reported that the Havana was leaking seriously in holds 1 and 5, and that the engine room had been shut down. Three coast guard cutters were standing by and a wrecking tug was expected at 3 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The remaining 43 members of the crew were safe on the rescue ships, the freighter El Oceano of the Southern Pacific company and the Peten of the United Fruit line. Capt. Harry Spencer of the Peten wirelessed that he would land 11 passengers and 13 of the crew at Havana at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The master of the El Oceano, bound from New York for Galveston, radioed that he would take 39 passengers and 30 members of the crew to Miami, which he expected to reach shortly before midnight.

For a time there appeared to be a discrepancy and fears were felt for the safety of the two children of Mrs. Sondra London of Mexico City and Brooklyn, Elias, 8, and Fannie, 3, who did not seem to be accounted for. But they were later reported safe aboard El Oceano.

Morro Castle Sailors in Crew.

The Havana, a 416 foot vessel with a gross tonnage of 6,673, built in 1907 and rebuilt in 1927 at a cost of more than $1,000,000, sailed from this port on Thursday with 36 pasengers bound for Vera Cruz, three for Progreso, and twelve for Havana. She had a deck crew of 33, an engine room crew of 33, and 60 in the steward's department.

Her purser was R. R. Tolman, who was serving in the same office aboard the ill fated Morro Castle of the Ward line when she burned with a loss of 134 lives off Asbury Park, N. J., last September.

First word that the Havana was in difficulties came at 4:20 a. m., when she advised the offices of the line and the coast guard that she had gone aground on Mantanilla reef, about 60 miles east of Jupiter, Fla. Although she did not send an S O S until several hours later, she requested assistance.

Radio messages crackled through the skies from half a dozen vessels, offering to go to the aid of the stricken liner. The Peten and El Oceano turned their stems toward her, while the Cerro Azul and the tanker Japanese Arrow started for her, but were not needed.

Sends S O S Call for Help.

Capt. Peterson reported that the weather was moderating and the sea was lessening, but that his ship was leaking in holds 1 and 5, and was grounded 21 feet forward and 18 feet aft.

At 7:23 a. m., however, Capt. Peterson sent out an S O S in which he said that the Havana was "leaking badly and pounding." The coast guard cutters Vigilant, from Fort Pierce, the Carrabasset, from Port Everglades, and the Pandora, from Miami, were dispatched to her assistance. The tug Warbler of the Merrit Chapman company also started for her.

An hour later the coast guard seaplane Sirius, with Lieut. C. B. Olsen at the controls, took off from her base at Miami and sped to the aid of the harassed liner. Scanning the rolling billows, Olsen soon sighted the Havana and reported that she seemed in no immediate danger.

As a measure of precaution Capt. Peterson launched six lifeboats a few minutes before 9 o'clock, with all the passengers and enough members of the crew to man them aboard. Mr. Rittenhouse apparently succumbed to the excitement and dropped dead just as one lifeboat was being lowered away.

Hovering overhead, Olsen kept a close watch over the lifeboats, which gradually drifted to a position about a mile north of their mother ship. When El Oceano came over the horizon—first of the rescue ships to draw close to the scene of the wreck—the coast guard plane guided the freighter to the covey of lifeboats.

In his radio messages to the line during the long, anxious morning Capt. Peterson had indicated that he expected the Peten would be the first to arrive. El Oceano beat the United Fruit liner in a friendly race by a bare ten minutes, however, and just at noon the Southern Pacific freighter flashed the news that she was alongside two lifeboats.

Rescue Waterlogged Boat.

Capt. Spencer of the Peten relayed word to his office here that he had picked up a message from the Havana: "S. S. El Oceano is picking up all passengers. Nothing you can do now. Proceed your destination. Thanks. Master." Capt. Spencer decided, however, that since he was so close he might as well go to the scene.

It was fortunate that he did so, for while El Oceano was rescuing the occupants of four lifeboats, Olsen, in the Sirius, observed that one of the three other boats appeared to have shipped some water. The United Fruit liner sent out a motor boat to the assistance of the waterlogged craft.

After reporting that the rescue work was proceeding satisfactorily, the Sirius returned to her base at Miami. At 3:20 p. m. Capt. Peterson sent word by radio to the Ward line offices in New York that all the passengers were safe. His brief message said:

"El Oceano and Peten have picked up all passengers. [Signed], Peterson."

Guard Crew on Lines.

Commander C. H. Dench, in command of the coast guard divisional headquarters here, late in the afternoon advised the coast guard ships standing by the Havana, the Carrabasset, the Pandor and the Vigilant, to "take all precautions to safeguard the lives of the Havana crew forelaying against bad weather during the night."

Meanwhile, no information was available as to the prospects of patching the holes in the Havana's hull, and hauling her safely off the reef which was holding her.

The Havana was taken over by the government in 1917 for use as a transport during the world war and later converted into a hospital ship because of its comfortable quarters. It was then known as the Comfort.

SEES RESCUE FROM AIR

BY TED GILL.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

Miami, Fla., Jan. 6.—While a coast guard seaplane circled overhead for three hours and helped direct rescue activities, six lifeboat loads of passengers from the grounded Ward liner Havana were picked up, bedraggled but safe, from a rough sea today in Bahama waters.

I was in that seaplane, piloted by Lieut. C. B. Olsen. We left here early this morning in response to an SOS on a rescue mission and remained in the air for nearly seven hours. The boat was aground approximately sixty-six miles east of Fort Pierce, Fla.

Striking out northeast across the Gulf stream, we were the first to reach the Havana, which was hard aground on a ragged reef. Considerable oil could be seen on the water as we circled overhead. The vessel had dropped its anchor and was stationary in an upright position.

Some distance away we sighted three lifeboats filled with passengers. Those people were picked up shortly afterward by the tanker El Oceano, which arrived under full steam. Three other lifeboats later put out from the Havana. One of those was picked up by the El Oceano and the others were taken aboard by the United Fruit liner Peten.

When we first reached the scene and flew overhead there were few persons to be seen on the deck. They waved to us and motioned for us to land, but the sea was too rough.

Victims Appear Exhausted.

While making a wide circle away from the Havana we saw two lifeboats filled with passengers more than a quarter of a mile away from the stranded vessel.

One of the boats appeared to be nearly filled with water that had washed in and several men could be seen working frantically to keep the boats bailed out.

All of the occupants wore life preservers and appeared to be nearly exhausted. Several waved to us as we dipped low to enable a photographer aboard the plane to take pictures.

While completing the circle back to the Havana we spotted another lifeboat still farther away and we flew low over it. The occupants appeared to be in fairly good condition and smiled as they waved.

In a moment we sighted El Oceano coming to the rescue. We flew out and circled the craft and guided it up to the scene, dipping and zooming to indicate the spot where the lifeboats were wallowing in the sea. Fearful of going aground also, El Oceano came in as close as it safely could and dropped anchor.

Slowly the occupants of the three lifeboats, straining at oars against the heavy sea, made their way alongside the rescue boat and were taken on board by means of rope ladders dropped over the side. They immediately were taken below deck.

One Lifeboat Swamped.

While we were circling over it another lifeboat was lowered from the Havana and shortly afterward two more were put into the water. One of the latter two became swamped and two men went overboard.

They were wearing life preservers, however, and with the aid of poles they soon were pulled back into the boat, but not until they had been washed about badly in the rough water.

Before long we sighted two airplanes that fell in behind and followed us in wide circles over the scene. Shortly the Peten also was sighted proceeding toward the grounded vessel. Gaining altitude, we flew out and circled the Peten and directed it to the spot where the lifeboats were bobbing about.

By that time El Oceano had lifted anchor and moved to a spot more advantageous to pick up the occupants of one of the three lifeboats remaining in the water.

A motor boat was sent out from the Peten and picked up those in the other two and took them safely aboard.

SECOND LOSS FOR LINE

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—The S. S. Havana is the second passenger liner of the Ward Line to meet with disaster within four months. On Sept. 8 last the Morro Castle, of the same line, burned at sea off Asbury Park, N. J., with a loss of 134 lives.

Testimony at a federal inquiry here indicated the heavy loss of life was due largely to negligence or incompetency of commanding officers of the ship. The acting captain, William S. Warms, the chief engineer, Ebens Abbott of the vessel itself, and Henry E. Cabaud, executive president of the company, were indicted on charges of criminal negligence. A similar charge was made against the company itself.

search of the ashes would be started early today. He added that he would attempt to trace the watch from the factory to the merchant who sold it, and, if possible, to the owner.

"A suicide theory seems untenable," said Sherif Bennett. "Many things indicate it might be a murder.

"The presence of the gasoline can, and we'll try to find where it came from, strongly tends to show incendiarism. If this was a murder, the traces have been covered most thoroughly."

Barn Well Adapted to Crime.

The old barn was particularly well adapted for such a crime. The Johnson road is little traveled in winter, although in warmer weather it is a favorite "lovers' lane." The barn was only a short distance from U. S. highway No. 20 (Lake street), which leads directly from Chicago's west suburbs to Elgin. About ten miles to the north is Barrington, scene of the fatal battle between George (Baby Face) Nelson and federal agents about six weeks ago.

There was little chance that killers, turning off the main road into the lane and halting at the barn in the long winter evening, would be observed. Having placed the body on the floor they could have saturated the floor and walls of the barn with gasoline, ignited it, and have been many miles away before the fire was discovered.

Calexico, Cal., Reports 212 Births to 60 Deaths in 1934

Calexico, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP) — Sixty deaths as against 212 births was the 1934 record of this Imperial valley town. The city clerk said today that gave Calexico a claim to being among the healthier cities of this nation.

LINDY BABY'S NURSE TAKES STAND TODAY

Testimony of Betty Gow Is Awaited.

Dr. Condon is expected to take the stand Tuesday or Wednesday. He arrived tonight at the state's headquarters in Trenton, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Myra Hacker, and her husband, Ralph Hacker.

The 74 year old educator stepped from his automobile and pushed aside policemen who sought to escort him, saying, "Please keep your hands off me! I can get along by myself."

He posed willingly for photographers. Attorney General Wilentz, Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck Jr. of Hunterdon county, and Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf of the New Jersey state police, hearing that Dr. Condon was in the lobby of their hotel, hurried downstairs and joined him in grinning for the cameramen.

Suite Reserved for "Jafsie."

A suite has been reserved for Dr. Condon at which he will stay until he testifies, although he may make daily trips to the courthouse with the state's attorneys.

"There is no doubt that Dr. Condon will be a witness," Wilentz announced. "He paid the $50,000 ransom. He has to appear."

Betty Gow, who spent the week-end with the Lindberghs at the Englewood N. J., home of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh, will come to court tomorrow with Col. Lindbergh.

Announced attempts of Defense Attorney Edward J. Reilly to discredit Miss Gow's testimony and to implicate her as one of those involved in the kidnaping, were not taken seriously by the state.

Maid Eager to Testify.

It was made known that the prosecutors and the Lindberghs have full confidence in the maid. She herself was reported to be anxious to testify and to confute any insinuations directed at herself.

Assistant Attorney General George K. Large said the most important part of Miss Gow's direct testimony will be the identification of the baby's undershirt, which she made for him herself and put on him under his outer sleeping garment before she put him to bed.

This shirt was found on the baby when the body was discovered May 12, 1932. Mrs. Lindbergh already has identified it, but Miss Gow is the only witness who can testify positively that he wore the article of clothing the night he was kidnaped.

Miss Gow also will identify the sleeping garment which the baby wore when kidnaped and which was returned to Col. Lindbergh by the kidnaper during the ransom negotiations.

Forecast Visit to Home.

The visit of the jury to the Lindbergh home was forecast by several attorneys connected with the case. It is expected the jury foreman will ask Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard for permission to view the scene of the crime and that Judge Trenchard will follow precedent by granting the request.

The jurors thus will be able to see for themselves how, according to the state, the kidnaper placed a ladder against the wall of the home, climbed to the second story, entered the nursery window, and carried the child from its crib.

The state is expected to introduce the kidnap ladder into evidence as an exhibit in the case. It is regarded as a most important state's exhibit because the prosecution contends that it will show that Hauptmann constructed the ladder.

Ridicules "Gang" Theory.

There were reports today that the defense would name four members of a Detroit gang as the actual kidnapers of the child. These followed Reilly's statement yesterday that Thursday he would name "two women and at least two men" as the persons responsible for the crime.

This theory was ridiculed today by Attorney General Wilentz.

"The department of justice, the internal revenue bureau, and the police departments of New York and New Jersey have been working on this case since March 1, 1932," he declared. "To say we are suspicious of suggestions attempting to shift the responsibility for this crime from Hauptmann is to put it very mildly."

Tourists Flock to Scene.

Thousands of tourists flocked to Flemington today, swept aside police and guards, and invaded the courthouse, causing considerable damage.

Every road leading here was jammed with persons anxious to view the scene of the trial. The few ponce present attempted to admit the crowds to the courthouse in an orderly manner. The curiosity seekers passed through the courtroom in files at the rate of nearly 1,000 per hour for several hours.

CROSS-U. S. AERIAL SLEEPER WILL FLY SOUTHERN ROUTE

A Curtiss Wright sleeper airplane of the American Airlines, Inc., will leave Los Angeles at 7:15 p. m. [9:15 p. m. Chicago time] next Sunday to inaugurate the first air service linking New York and California through Washington, D. C., and the southwest, according to an announcement here yesterday by C. R. Smith, president of the company.

The passengers will arrive at 7:22 o'clock the next morning in Fort Worth, Tex., and change there to a Douglas Transport craft which is to take off at 8:10 a. m. They reach New York at 6:41 p. m. [5:41 p. m. Chicago time], after a total elapsed time of 20 hours and 26 minutes.

The first westbound plane will leave New York at 12:30 p. m. [11:30 a. m. Chicago time] on Jan. 14, landing in Los Angeles at 6:45 a. m. [8:45 a. m. Chicago time] the next day.

SEIZE 2 GUNLESS ROBBERS; ONE IS PAROLED CONVICT

Two gunless robbers, one a paroled convict, were captured last night after they held up the New York Wine and Liquor store, 3239 Madison street. Keeping their hands in their pockets as if grasping guns, they compelled Ted Lassin, 1743 Lull place, the owner, and a woman clerk, to turn over $30. As they fled Lassin pursued with a shotgun and caught one of them, who was identified as Joseph Casey, 32 years old, 3447 Madison street.

As a Fillmore street police squad arrived a few minutes later their police radio announced a robbery in the delicatessen of Frank Harris, 3467 Madison street. Placing Casey in the squad car, they drove to the store and nabbed Casey's companion as he walked out with $27 loot. He was identified as Charles Kohl, 26 years old, 5528 Leland avenue, a paroled convict.

Nazis and Foes Stage Vast Massmeetings.

SAARBRUECKEN, Sarr Basin Territory, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Nearly half a million Saarlanders got wet feet today in an orgy of demonstrations, the most comprehensive yet staged, for and against return of the Saar to Germany. Only minor disturbances were reported. Three cannon crackers filled with anti-Hitler propaganda leaflets exploded in the Saarlouis market place yesterday. They were harmless and police said quiet prevailed.

[The fact the demonstrations were orderly was taken as minimizing the possibility of a postponement of the plebiscite. The governing commission Saturday seriously discussed this possibility, fearing disorders Sunday would presage trouble Jan. 13.]

What looked like a quarter of a million snow covered umbrellas stormed a hilltop in one demonstration by Nazi adherents.

A day of damp marching, passionate singing and bitter oratory convinced both sides they will register a tremendous vote, but left neutral observers considerably in the dark as to just how the ballot will be divided in the plebiscite one week from today.

250,000 at Nazi Rally.

The Nazis announced more than 250,000 had attended their mass meetings, and a spokesman for elements favoring a status quo vote said 200,000 participated in an anti-Hitler gathering, but neither figure entirely satisfied neutrals.

International troops were on the alert and, although confined to barracks, were ready for emergency duty in case of serious rioting. Tonight the streets of Saarbruecken resounded to the strains of the Internationale sung by departing status quo marchers, many of them carrying communist flags with the hammer and sickle insignia.

Weather greatly hampered the Nazi meeting by drenching it with clinging, wet snow, while a few hours later Nazi municipal officials of Saarbruecken temporarily crippled a status quo rally by depriving it of electric current and loud speakers.

One company of the East Lancashire regiment from England moved into police barracks squarely between the two camps along the Saar river. All absentee permits and the customare religious services were canceled. Officials were admittedly apprehensive and took elaborate precautions to prevent unruly elements from getting out of hand.

Anti-Nazis Take Oath.

The most impressive moment at the status quo gathering was an oath taking ceremony by the anti-Hitlerites in the gathering dusk before an altar fire.

Raising clenched fists, they swore to return to Germany later, but never as long as it was ruled by Adolf Hitler. "For Germany and against Hitler" was the keynote of speeches, one of which was delivered by a communist who somewhat resembled the more corpulent reichsfuehrer, wearing a blue shirt instead of a brown one, but with a toothbrush mustache and oratorical mannerisms closely resembling those of the German leader.

While all status quo banners carried the slogan "For Germany," the gathering did not sing the German national anthem.

Saar voters next Sunday will have three alternatives to chose in connection with the future of the rich mining territory between France and Germany. Status quo elements favor having the Saar remain under the jurisdiction of the league of nations, which has ruled it since the world war under provisions of the Versailles treaty.

Almost all observers have been freely predicting the vote would favor return of the Saar to Germany, whose territory it was before the war. The other alternative is to vote for the Saar becoming a part of France.

Goebbels Urges Saar's Return.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—"The best sons of Germany are at Germany's border," Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of the Saar exhibition in Berlin today. He urged Saarlanders to vote for the territory's return to Germany.

SPANISH FILM ACTRESS TO WED

Rosita Moreno, Spanish motion picture actress, who announced yesterday she would be married to Melville A. Schauer, production executive for a film studio. [Acme Photo.]

Ceremony in June

PIQUETT ON TRIAL TOMORROW IN DILLINGER PLOT

U. S. May Tell Truth of Wooden Gun Coup.

The trial of Louis Piquett, former city prosecutor and subsequently attorney for gangsters, on the charge of harboring and concealing John Dillinger after the late gang leader's escape from the Crown Point, Ind., jail last March, will open tomorrow before Federal Judge William H. Holly.

This trial is designed by the government as an object lesson for "lawyer-criminals," and conviction of Attorney Piquett would carry with it a punishment of two years in prison, a fine of $10,000, or both.

It also may serve as the medium for an exposé of the plot under which Dillinger made his famous "wooden gun" escape and may reveal gang secrets and methods.

Subpena Woman Ex-Sheriff.

Mrs. Lillian Holley, former sheriff at Crown Point, in whose car Dillinger drove away from the jail; Earnest Blunk, a finger print expert, who was kidnaped by Dillinger and brought into this state, and Lew Baker, former warden of the lockup, have been subpenaed by the government. They have been asked to bring all the Dillinger records with them, including notations of visits Piquett made to the jail.

The unusual importance which the government attaches to this case is shown by the announcement that Joseph B. Keenan, chief of the criminal division of the United States attorney general's office, will sit at the prosecution table with United States Attorney Dwight H. Green.

Three of the chief witnesses against Piquett are to be men who were indicted with him Sept. 6 last, following the killing of Dillinger by federal officers in front of the Biograph theater, 2433 Lincoln avenue. These are Dr. Wilhelm Loeser, Dr. Harold Bernard Cassidy, and Arthur O'Leary, former investigator in Piquett's law office at 228 North La Salle street.

HITLER REPORTED FIRED UPON BY STORM TROOPERS

Berlin Hears His Chauffeur Was Wounded.

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Unconfirmed reports from unrelated quarters in Munich and Berlin tonight said two Storm Troopers attempted to shoot Adolf Hitler in the chancellery on the night of Dec. 31, not harming Hitler, but wounding a chauffeur. Another version, likewise unconfirmed, said the chauffeur was killed.

Both these reports were promptly denied in responsible circles.

It was noted that Chancellor Hitler has a new driver for his automobile.

Report French Papers Banned.

It was said the reputed attempt against Hitler's life motivated the mysterious secret meeting at the opera house in Berlin last Thursday.

A number of French newspapers were reported to have been confiscated in Germany for publishing reports of the alleged shooting.

Other rumors, officially denied, and unable to be confirmed, said the war ministry had been closed because of a suspected espionage plot involving 25 persons.

Hitler Supports Army.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—Much attention was given by Germans today to rumors about the mysterious meeting at the opera house in Berlin last Thursday. According to some rumors, the army compelled Chancellor Hitler to exonerate Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, former chancellor, who was killed in the June blood purge, and who had been accused of conspiring against Hitler with Germany's enemies.

Persons who were present at the meeting in the opera house insist that Hitler did not refer to Von Schleicher, but that the main subject of his speech had been the army. He assured the army leaders, who were present in full force, that they were the only ones entitled to carry arms in Germany.

Storm Troops May Lose Arms.

Consequently, the population believes that henceforth not only Storm Troopers but also Schutz Staffel members will be deprived of the right to carry arms, which they had acquired more or less surreptitiously.

Army leaders, who have been worrying about the armories in the hands of the Schutz Staffel, declare they are confident that Hitler is on the side of the army, come what may.

ARREST GALVIN, BOOTH AND 5 AT UNION MEETING

'Outlawed' Teamsters Defy Police; Gather.

Five teamster union officials and two union members were taken into custody yesterday by Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's police when the Chicago Coal Teamsters' union, so-called outlaw group, met in secret despite a police ban.

The secret meeting was staged at the Bricklayers hall, Monroe and Peoria streets, after Capt. Gilbert had placed twenty policemen about the Hodcarriers' hall, Harrison and Green streets, where the meeting first was called. When Capt. Gilbert learned of the new meeting he allowed it to continue, but made the arrests afterward, lodging his prisoners at the Des Plaines street station. About 500 men were in the hall.

Regular Union Meets.

State's Attorney Courtney opened a campaign against the union a year ago because of gangster domination.

The Coal Drivers, Hustlers and Handlers union, local 704, the new union formed through affiliation with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, an American Federation of Labor organization, met at the same time yesterday at the Washington Boulevard auditorium to install officers. Tom Cronin was put in as president to replace the ousted James [Lefty] Lynch.

Capt. Gilbert accused the outlaw group of holding its meeting in an attempt to draw members from the recognized group. He also charged that Michael Galvin, president of the joint teamsters council and president of Truck Drivers union, local 705, had packed the hall with his truck drivers.

Collect Votes on Mail Ballot.

Milton Booth Jr., president of the outlaw group and one of those arrested with Galvin, said that two weeks ago he sent ballots to all members of the union. One of the questions on the ballot was whether the members empowered their officials to call a strike if negotiations with employers fell through. He said 2,000 ballots were returned with affirmative answers, and the meeting yesterday was called to collect unmailed ballots.

Beside Galvin and Booth, the others arrested are Edward McDermott, 3515 South Union avenue, vice president of the outlaws; Louis Brenner, 5741 Waveland avenue, recording secretary; James Scully, 802 Madison street, Galvin's chauffeur; Ben Richards, 2703 Canton street, a teamster, and William Carron, an official of the Retail Truck Drivers' union local 707.

TWO PRISONERS BEAT UP JAILER; ONE ESCAPES

James Reilly, 18 years old, 2222 Seminary avenue, under arrest as a robber, last night escaped from the lockup of the Town Hall police station after beating Policeman Fred Masters, the lockup keeper.

With Reilly in a solitary cell near the police squadroom was Donald Cushing, 19 years old, 1868 Burling street, who had been arrested with him. They both attacked Masters when, at their request, he carried in water they had requested. Although he was slugged several times Masters, who is 50 years old, held on to Cushing.

Three policemen who were in the squadroom followed Reilly to the street, but were unable to catch up to him. Reilly and Cushing had been taken to the detective bureau earlier in the evening and had been identified as holdup men by several victims.

BROTHER OF U. S. SENATOR, WIFE DIE IN AUTO CRASH

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Charles D. Carey was killed and her husband, a brother of United States Senator Robert D. Carey of Wyoming, was fatally injured in a motor car smashup near Cheyenne tonight. He died in a hospital a short time after the accident.

The sedan of Mr. and Mrs. Carey crashed into the center support of a Colorado and Southern railroad underpass about a mile west of town.

The couple were returning to their home here from Laramie, Wyo. Coroner B. H. Finkbiner said an inquest would be held tomorrow.

BUDGET PLANS FOR TEN BILLION EXPECTED TODAY

President Will Tell Cost of New Deal.

on the creation of a system of unemployment insurance, old age pensions, sickness benefits and aid for maternity care, for mothers, for children and handicapped persons generally.

The unemployment and old age insurance plans, while held as yet in strict confidence, are expected by informed observers to draw heavily on the example set by Great Britain, but with changes necessitated by American social conditions and the different political setup in this country.

In no event will unemployment insurance be used as a term to cover cash benefits paid to those currently unemployed, despite a popular misconception to the contrary. It also is hoped by officials that unemployment insurance and old age pensions may be instituted without heavy cost to the federal government by placing them on a contributory basis.

How British Plan Works.

The British system, it is understood here, links unemployment and old age security payments in a single category, limiting the beneficiaries to persons with incomes of not more than 200 pounds per year and granting old age pensions only to persons who have been on the unemployment insurance rolls.

Due to a difference in the cost of living, it is expected that the administration program will provide a materially higher limit of income for beneficiaries in the United States than in Great Britain, where the principals of small schools and a host of skilled and "white collar" workers come within the insurance group.

The plan to be submitted by President Roosevelt also must be adapted to American political conditions, due to the fact that Great Britain is a single political unit and therefore need not consider the relationship of the states to the federal government, as in the United States.

Due to this condition in the United States, it is understood on good authority that whatever is enacted by the federal government along these security lines will represent an effort to encourage and correlate the work by states.

A pattern for such work was created a few years ago in a law creating federal employment agencies whereby the department of labor was authorized to establish such agencies in states having no state plan, but to remain out of or withdrawn from those states that already had or later enacted laws similar to the federal statute.

While no definite picture has been given of the plan for old age pension, except that the work probably will represent an effort to create uniform handling by states of the problem of indigent persons, the President is represented as having evolved a concrete plan for unemployment insurance.

Basis for Pension Program.

The program would apply, according to reports from well informed sources, only to persons now employed in private industry, while the immediate problem of the 5 million unemployed workers would be taken care of through an expanded public works program or other measures outlined yesterday by the President.

Unemployment insurance and emergency unemployment relief will be kept entirely separate.

The plan is expected to be made theoretically self supporting by levies on pay rolls of industries, collected in much the same manner as taxes but carefully segregated from other government revenues and handled by a special insurance corporation. It is understood that this money would be paid as a partial subsidy to states which enacted laws coming up to a standard to be set by the federal government.

Would Build Up Reserves.

The indeterminate factor in such a plan is the probable cost of the program at the outset while the insurance corporation would be building up reserves.

It is conceded by officials that state unemployment insurance systems would be more desirable than a federal agency, but shifting of industries and the wide disparity of industrial activity in the various states have created problems along that line that point to the probability of a centralized federal administration of the fund with the cooperation of the states in a manner that would avoid questions over the constitutionality of such a plan.

Revision of NRA Codes to Aid Consumers Urged by Board

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Charging that special interests have diverted the NRA from the purpose for which congress intended it, the NRA's own consumers' advisory board today recommended a drastic three point plan for revamping the code structure.

The three major revisions which the board suggested are:

1. Greatly increased government control over natural resource industries, such as coal, lumber, and oil, through the codes.
2. A campaign of "trust busting" against allegedly monopolistic industries, reputedly steel and aluminum.
3. Sharp curtailment of other codes until they cover only labor standards, wages, quality standards, and a few trade practices.

Price Fixing Opposed.

Elimination of price fixing and production control—which restrict production while "thousands are improperly fed, badly housed, inadequately clothed"—was demanded by the board.

Dexter Keezer, former economist for the board, now head of Reed college in Oregon, returned to write the report. It was submitted to the National Industrial Recovery board. The consumers' advisory board was headed by the late Mrs. Mary H. Rumsey, daughter of the late E. H. Harriman, reorganizer of the Union and Southern Pacific.

The board's recommendations were most radical in those sections which called for increased government control over natural resource industries and on "trust busting" directed against monopolies.

Takes Up Conservation.

"Natural resource industries," the report said on those points, "such as lumbering, bituminous coal mining, and petroleum extraction, differ from other code controled industries, in that they alone present the problem of conservation The active competition which elsewhere serves the consumer's interest, here occasions flagrant waste. It is unthinkable, therefore, that they should again be subjected to the anti-trust laws.

"But code control is not the only alternative. The codes are concerned not with ultimate shortages but with temporary surpluses. They are directed not toward the conservation of resources, but toward the conservation of profits. In no case do they cope with the basic difficulties of the extractive industries.

Specific Controls Favored.

"These industries require controls specifically designed to meet their peculiar needs. The very measures by which resources are conserved often place a check on one group of profit seekers and augment the receipts of others.

"Equity, therefore, demands that any set of output restrictions be accompanied by a tax which will appropriate for public uses the increase in income attributable to the controls which the government has applied.

"The consumer may be fairly asked to pay more for oil in order to conserve its supply, but he may reasonably object to a policy whereby the government compels him to contribute to the creation of private fortunes. The natural resource industries are too vitally affected with a public interest to be turned over to what is called 'self-government in industry' They must be regulated by public agencies for the common welfare.

Attacks Monopoly Growth.

"In other industries, not a few in number, monopolistic control is notoriously present. Competition had passed away long before the enactment of NIRA. It could not conceivably be resurrected by the reapplication of the anti-trust laws. Here these laws are impotent. But we are not ready to go to the other extreme of applying public utility regulation, controling securities, accounts, and services, determining valuations, and setting rates. We are confronted, therefore, with the necessity of applying some other type of control.

"We believe that it would be wise to experiment further with control by codes in this field. Such codes should outlaw monopolistic price practices, but they should be administered by authorities whose membership largely represents the public interest.

"They should require the regular collection, reporting, and publication of statistics on costs, prices, and profits.

Patent Revocation Suggested.

"It may be necessary to supplement such supervision and publicity by revoking the monopolist's patents, removing the tariff, which protects his market, taxing his profits, forcing him to face public competition, or applying other controls which go beyond the scope of the recovery act."

Attacking the price and production restrictions in existing codes, the board declared that consumers "want the lowest prices which is consistent with conservation, with honest merchandising, with proper quality, and with decent wages and hours and working conditions."

Although urging curtailment of fair trade practice provisions of codes, the board strongly urged that the government formulate and insist upon quality standards in all codes for industries which make consumers' goods.

ASKS CONGRESS TO RECALL U. S. ENVOY IN MEXICO

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Representative Higgins [Dem., Mass.] said tonight that he would introduce in the house tomorrow a resolution calling for withdrawal by the United States of recognition of Mexico and removal of Ambassador Daniels from the diplomatic corps. Higgins' decision followed announcements by Secretary Hull that the Mexican government's educational policy was a purely internal matter in which the United States could not interfere.

Higgins recently wrote President Roosevelt asking that the United States protest against the closing of Catholic schools and the expulsion of Catholic priests. Higgins said he would ask removal of Ambassador Daniels because "he was cognizant of what was happening, yet made no protest."

Fairview Sanitarium Opened on South Side

Fairview sanitarium, 2828 Prairie avenue, a new charitable hospital for borderline mental cases, was dedicated yesterday afternoon. Samuel A. Hoffman, former assistant state's attorney, conducted the opening ceremonies and was the chief speaker. According to Mrs. Lillian Roberts, for many years prominent in Jewish charities, president of the sanitarium society, the institution will care for persons not ill enough for state institutions and yet so affected that they cannot be cared for in their homes.

PLAN TO HOLD HIGHER LEVELS FOR GREAT LAKES

Army Engineers' Scheme to Affect Chicago.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 6.—(AP)—There's a good possibility, United States army engineers believe, that never again will man see the Great Lakes water levels so low as they have been this winter.

Nature is taking a hand, they say, to restore the lakes to a normal level and once that point is reached an ambitious engineering scheme is already designed to keep it that way.

Plan Compensating Works.

The engineers propose to do it by constructing a series of compensating weirs—large obstructions—at the bottom of the St. Clair and Niagara rivers at a cost of approximately $1,200,000.

In recent years, low water in the lakes, resulting from prolonged periods of drouth, has presented an increasing problem for the immense volume of navigation, a problem that mounts into millions of dollars, because it forces the big ships of the inland seas to decrease the amount of their loads to keep from scraping on the bottom in shallow channels.

In an attempt to offset this effect millions of other dollars also have been spent and are still being spent to dredge out hundreds of miles of channels and harbors.

Chicago Canal Flow Cut.

A dam has been constructed to control Lake Superior's outflow. Another action was a decrease in water allowed to flow into the Chicago drainage canal, a flow now amounting to about 6,500 cubic feet a second, compared to as much as 10,000 cubic feet a second in previous years.

However, the immediate major hope for increasing the lakes levels, in the opinion of Maj. W. F. Heavey of the army engineers, lies in the fact that this winter the Lake Superior region has experienced about the heaviest rain and snowfall in about 20 years.

Supplemented by heavy precipitation elsewhere, this probably will raise the lakes' levels six inches by summer, the major says, more if the snowfall continues abundant.

Up to Engineers Then.

Once nature lifts the lakes to a satisfactory level, the start of the engineering plan to keep it that way may be expected. The war department already has approved the project, and Canada also has signified it will consent when the lakes get back to a "normal high."

By retarding the outflow from Lake Huron into Lake Erie, and from Lake Erie into Lake Ontario, the weirs are expected, Maj. Heavey says, to keep the general level of the Great Lakes about 18 inches higher in future drouth years than in drouth years of the past.

Mexico Boosts Tax to Make Liquors Expensive Luxury

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Determined to make drinking too expensive for the working classes and a costly luxury for the rest of Mexico, President Lazaro Cardenas proceeded today with a general campaign against the use of alcohol by decreeing higher taxes on the consumption, sale, and import of alcoholic beverages.

Although he has plainly expressed his opinion that drinking is harmful, the president has given no indication he has in mind undertaking any prohibition experiment similar to the 18th amendment in the United States, or attempting to dry up Mexico completely by equivalent legislative measures.

"Unhappily," he said recently, "the problem is very complex and is related very closely with economic and cultural conditions which must not be underestimated."

Affects Native Earnings.

Among the economic factors to which Gen. Cardenas refers is the fact that hundreds of thousands of Mexicans make their living from cultivation of the maguey [or agave], the plant which is the source of the two most common and cheapest drinks in the country—pulque and tequila. The former, fermented juice of the maguey, sells for about the equivalent of 4 cents a quart, and tequila [or mescal], which is distilled from crushed plant leaves, brings about the same price for a small glass.

The maguey industry was in existence when the Spaniards conquered Mexico over 400 years ago. Before stamping it out it would be necessary to substitute some other form of agriculture that would provide a means of existence for the farming problem.

Would Substitute Fruits.

Such a plan is being studied by Thomas Garrido A. Canabal, secretary of agriculture and an ardent prohibitionist, who recommends the cultivation of fruits in place of maguey.

Pulque and tequila, while the most common drinks, are by no means the only ones favored in cities such as the capital, where there are as many as four or five "cantinas" in a block. Brandy, whisky, and gin, taken straight or mixed, provide the main features of numerous intervals in the business day during which all hands repair to the nearest bar for rest and refreshment.

Triplets Are Born to Rose; the Countryside Is Agog

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Rose, hitherto an ordinary Jersey cow, set the countryside in this vicinity agog with excitement today by giving birth to triplets. Her progeny, two hefers and a bull calf, all were doing well tonight on the farm of the Misses Emily C., Harriet B., and Mary Dugan.

ACTORS ATTACK MOVIES' CHIEFS IN CODE REPORT

Call Ethics "Lowest of All Industries."

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Five actors arraigned the motion picture industry today. They cited "low wages" and "the code of ethics the lowest of all industries."

The report came from Robert Montgomery, Claude King, Kenneth Thomson, Ralph Morgan and Richard Tucker. They had been appointed to formulate, under the NRA, a program of fair practices between producers and players.

Wages Are Called Low.

The report found only 1 3-5 cents of the theatergoer's dollar reached the actor's purse. The report added: "Actors, unlike producers, are paid only on results."

Eighty per cent or more of Hollywood's acting population was pictured as barely existing. The stars of today are the extras of tomorrow, the report said.

The set of recommendations has been sent to Sol. A. Rosenblatt, administrator for the motion picture industry.

"The actors have exhausted every effort to agree with the producers on working conditions," the report said. "They have been tricked, hamstrung and lied to. Every dishonest practice known to an industry, the code of ethics of which is the lowest of all industries, has been resorted to by the producers against the actors.

Discuss Level of Wages.

"Even excluding extra players, 71 per cent of the players who worked in pictures in 1933 earned from less than $1,000 to $5,000.

"Actors received only 1 4-5 cents, in salaries, of each dollar that came into the box office—and this has been whittled down to 1 3-5 cents."

Taking the total 1933 earnings of 1,563 players none of them "extras"—the report graded Hollywood salaries in the following strata:

1,112, or 71 per cent, earned from less than $1,000 to $5,000.

192, or 12 per cent, earned from $5,000 to $10,000.

196, or 13 per cent, earned from $10,000 to $50,000.

63, or 4 per cent, earned more than $50,000.

Agents Get 10 Per Cent.

The report pointed out, in comment on these figures:

"This was not net income. Ten per cent went to the actor's agent. Out of the balance the actor or actress had to buy wardrobe, which is part of his working tools. Moreover, even the higher paid group has a short period of earning power."

By contrast, the document quoted a report said to have been made to the United States senate on the annual earnings and salaries of film producers and studio executives. The list cited included:

David Loew, $521,000; Irving Thalberg, $135,200; Arthur Loew, $311,000; Winfield Sheehan, $250,000; Emanuel Cohen, $173,142; Carl Laemmle, $156,000.

Quoted 1929 Producers' Pay.

From the same statement, the actors' report quoted salaries of 1929 as:

Adolph Zukor, $372,389; Jesse Lasky, $372,389; Sidney R. Kent, $297,911; Ralph Kohn, $103,309. The actors' committee wrote of motion picture executives as "arrogating to themselves a despotic feudalism over the working conditions of those who actually make pictures.

The actors' side of two episodes that shook Hollywood several years ago was given in the 112 page report.

One was the "moratorium" of March, 1933, when, the report stated, "The producers, by threat of closing all the studios, forced those actors under contract to take a 50 per cent cut for eight weeks, and all free lance actors to take a 20 per cent cut for the same period."

The other was the "revolt" of October, 1933, when celebrated players left the membership of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences to organize the Screen Actors' Guild. Among them, according to the report, were Ann Harding, George Bancroft, Groucho Marx, Paul Muni, Lee Tracey, Jeanette MacDonald, Gary Cooper, Spencer Tracy, Miriam Hopkins, Adolph Menjou, Fredric March, and Robert Montgomery.

FRANCE ENTERS PACT WITH ITALY TO PREVENT WAR

Laval and Mussolini Reach Accord.

ROME, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini of Italy and Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France reached full agreement on all points of discussion between the two nations in a two hour after dinner session tonight at the French embassy.

The first two points of the program, the matter of Austrian independence and a pact of noninterference, earlier were settled in a three and one-half hour conversation between Laval and Mussolini, but agreement had been lacking regarding African colonial concessions between the two powers.

Speaks to War Veterans.

"I am glad to tell you Premier Mussolini and I now are in complete accord," Laval told a group of war veterans, French and Italian, as he emerged smiling from a small study of the famous Farnese palace.

It was said a draft of the agreement probably would be initialed tomorrow afternoon by the two statesmen.

Mussolini and Laval met in the study while virtually the entire Roman aristocracy and society congregated in the salons for the huge reception given Laval by French Ambassador De Chambrun.

As the guests prepared to leave because they had been unable to get a glimpse of the statesmen, the doors suddenly were flung open and Mussolini and Laval came out smiling to greet those who had lingered hopefully in the corridors. Laval then made his brief informal announcement.

Spread Word of Accord.

High Italian officials immediately circulated among the guests and spread the word of the agreement. The officials announced that every knotty point which had hitherto delayed complete accord had been ironed out in principle and that tonight's session could be said to have "actually accomplished" rapprochement between France and Italy.

The news quickly spread throughout Rome, where tension over the activities of the statesmen had reached its highest pitch in the last few days, especially since the arrival of Laval.

In high official circles the mood was one of great celebration. It was felt the drawing together of the two great Latin powers has dealt a severe blow to any threat of war in Europe. This threat had menaced the peace of every household for more than a year.

Details Public Today.

The details of the accord were strictly withheld, but it was understood they were along the well known lines of Austrian independence, and other collaboration of policies affecting central Europe. A communique was expected tomorrow.

Regarding the matter of Austrian independence, it was understood Mussolini and Laval have invited Austria's neighbor powers to underwrite their declaration.

The second point of the program—the treaty of noninterference—is to be signed by five powers, including Austria, or by six, if Germany is willing. This pact, which Italy, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and Jugo-Slavia are invited to enter, calls for nonintervention of any one of the powers in the internal affairs of any of the others.

In effect it strengthens Austria's independence without putting Austria in the embarrassing position of having her independence guaranteed. It is also aimed against international terrorism.

NORMAN DAVIS HOME; CALLS LONDON NAVAL CONFERENCE USEFUL

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador at large, and Rear Admiral William H. Standley, the two United States delegates to the London naval conference, returned today on the S. S. Washington of the United States Lines and will leave for the capital tomorrow.

The naval conference, Mr. Davis said, "was neither a success nor a failure. We had a frank exchange and now we understand each other's views. There is a friendly feeling between all of us. We feel the conversations have been very useful and have paved the way for a meeting later at which we can reach an agreement. That is all we can hope for."

MRS. MAE LOEB DIES OF SLEEPING POTION OVERDOSE

Mrs. Mae E. Loeb, 55 years old, widow of Sidney Loeb, wealthy mortgage and real estate dealer, died yesterday in the Michael Reese hospital from an overdose of sleeping potion. Mrs. Loeb was found unconscious in a bedroom of her apartment at 1124 East 46th street Friday evening.

Dr. I. I. Ritter, 5310 Dorchester avenue, the family physician who was summoned, told police Mrs. Loeb had told him on Dec. 18 that she was tired of living since the death of her husband Aug. 15. Relatives said that after his death she had been inconsolable.

On the advice of Dr. Ritter, a nurse, Mrs. A. H. Wunderlich, remained in constant attendance. Friday afternoon Mrs. Loeb retired for a nap. Her niece, Mrs. Mildred Jaffe, 1232 East 56th street, telephoned at 6 o'clock, and then the nurse found Mrs. Loeb's bedroom door locked. Entrance was forced and Mrs. Loeb was taken to the hospital. She never regained consciousness.

Mrs. Loeb, the former Mae Waters, married Loeb in 1924. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock from the chapel at 936 East 47th street to Rosehill cemetery.

MAURICE L. ROTHSCHILD

MINNEAPOLIS CHICAGO ST. PAUL

STATE WILL PUSH 2D PROSECUTION OF INSULL TODAY

State's Attorney Courtney yesterday set at rest all rumors about a possible dismissal of the state indictment against Samuel Insull. The former utility magnate will be tried on the indictment charging the embezzlement of $66,000 from the Middle West Utilities company.

Mr. Courtney said yesterday that when Samuel Insull's case is called this morning before Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in the Criminal court, the state would insist upon having the date set for the trial and would oppose further delays.

Bases of Previous Reports.

Previously, an agreement had been reached to obtain a continuance today because Attorney Floyd Thompson, counsel for Samuel Insull, was to be engaged in a trial in another city.

Reports that the state prosecution of former Insull utilities officials probably was all over arose from acquittals in two trials earlier this winter. Samuel Insull, his son, Samuel Jr., and fifteen other defendants won not guilty verdicts in federal court on charges of using the mails to defraud in the sale of securities.

Brother's Case Similar.

Samuel's brother, Martin, fared similarly in a state trial on charges of embezzling from the Middle West Utilities company, of which Martin was president. This case against Martin was closely analogous to the current state charge against Samuel. He was accused of putting up securities belonging to the Middle West company as collateral for a personal margin account in a brokerage concern.

One other indictment against Insull Sr. still is pending in the federal court—an indictment charging violation of bankruptcy laws—and doubts have been expressed whether this case ever will be called to trial.

Jail Fugitive Carrying Nitroglycerin Captured

Kokomo, Ind., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Ralph Cummings, fugitive from the Peru jail and the subject of a warning to police that he carried a vial of nitroglycerin on his person, was captured without mishap in a Kokomo residence tonight. The fluid is to be tested. Police suspect it is olive oil.

HOOD SKETCHES, NOTED BUILDINGS, HIS MEMORIAL

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—A memorial exhibition of sketches by the late Raymond M. Hood, associate architect with John Mead Howells for the Tribune Tower in Chicago and for the American Radiator, McGraw-Hill, and Daily News buildings here, will open tomorrow in the Bryant Park Center of the New York University college of fine arts.

The "idea sketches" of many of Mr. Hood's most famous buildings will be hung beside the final architectural drawings to show the steps between the archetect's idea and its completion in steel and stone. Also included in the exhibition are architectural and life sketches made while Mr. Hood was a student in Paris.

Mr. Hood was associate architect for Rockefeller Center and A Century of Progress Exposition, and among the sketches in the exhibit is one of a plan for the World's Fair, no larger than a special delivery stamp, which was drawn on a piece of scrap paper. This sketch is notable for its detail, despite its small size, and many features are recognized which later were incorporated in the final designs for the Fair.

Boy, 15, Kills Stepfather to Avoid Taking Bath

Laramie, Wyo., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Prosecutor Glenn Parker said Alonzo Phelps, 15 year old ranch youth, admitted today he had fatally shot his stepfather, William Powell, in resisting instructions to take a Saturday night bath.

POLAR MICE PERIL FOOD OF SOVIETS' SCIENCE COLONY

Rodent Armies Attack Arctic Camp.

MOSCOW, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Vast armies of little polar mice were reported today to be menacing the food supply of a party of soviet scientists at an isolated polar station known as Mare-Sale, on the Yamal peninsula in Siberia.

Wireless messages relayed from the northern sea route said the arctic observers were besieged in their winter quarters by these polar mice, or lemmings, fleeing before blue foxes and other polar animals. The lemmings, one message said, swept over the polar station in such hordes that dogs and traps could not cope with them.

Food Placed on Stilts.

A later message said the food had been placed on an enclosed platform raised above the ice on four poles which the lemmings were trying to climb.

Mare-Sale, on the Kara sea, which is navigable for ordinary steamers only in the late summer months because of ice packs, is on the route of Soviet steamers which make an annual dash to the mouth of the Yenisei river to carry supplies to the northern Siberian population in exchange for timber.

FIVE INCHES LONG.

The lemmings are arctic mice four or five inches in length with a very short tail, furry feet and small ears. They are tawny yellow in color, sometimes varied with black and reddish coloring.

There are several species. The best known in Europe makes devastating migrations in immense numbers at long and irregular intervals. One species, called the bog lemming, reaches the northern part of the United States.

TWO FINNS GIVE LIVES TO RESCUE FOUR ON ICE FLOE

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 6.—A heroic act of self-sacrifice by two Finnish fishermen was told today by four returning survivors of a party of fishermen who were surprised by a raging snowstorm Wednesday evening. The party was fishing on the ice off the coast of the Gulf of Finland and drifted into the sea on a small ice floe.

When the accident was observed ashore two friends set out in a small boat and ultimately reached the rapidly moving floe. Arriving there, they found the party inadequately clad to endure the cold, while they themselves were better equipped. They consequently gave their places in the boat to the poorest clad men and stepped upon the floe themselves, resolved to face death with the remainder. The heroes were named Paavo Rokka and Sula Rouvali. They were young and unmarried and very poor.

Despite several expeditions and the scouting of a wide area no trace was found of eight fishermen, who it is feared perished in the intense cold.

RAID 2 TAVERNS OPEN OVERTIME; HOLD GIRL, 4 MEN

Miss Edna Brown, 28 years old, 730 Cornelia avenue, was found by police serving drinks after 2 a. m. yesterday in a side room of the Universal club, a restaurant at 24 West Van Buren street, and was taken to the Central police station with Stephen Coloturas, 40 years old, 836 South Wabash avenue, the owner.

The Pickwick club, 59 East Wacker drive, was crowded when policemen entered after the closing hour and arrested the owner, the manager, and a waiter. Thomas Dallas, 40 years old, 4314 North Damen avenue, the owner, was charged with not having an amusement license.

All five captives are to be arraigned today on various charges.

PARAGUAY AIMS AT TWO OIL FIELD BASES IN BOLIVIA

War Extends Outside Chaco Jungle.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Four corps of veteran Paraguayan fighters, with a wedge pushed into the Bolivian line at La Pacho, and with important Fort Capirenda in their hands, pushed forward today in another drive against Bolivia's chief bulwark, Villa Montes, key to the rich Bolivian oil fields. In this oil territory lie large concessions held by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

In addition to the capture of Fort Capirenda, one of two major strongholds in the Gran Chaco, Paraguayan dispatches reported several positions had been taken in the Ibibobo sector on the Pilcomayo river.

Bolivia Drafts More Men.

Despite the jubilant declaration of Gen. José Estigarribia, chief of the Paraguayan forces, that the war was already won, it was expected the Bolivians would throw their major resources into an elaborate and stout defense along the line west of Caprienda and in the vicinity of Villa Montes.

The Chaco front now has been shortened to a line 60 miles long, permitting greater concentration of forces than ever before in the years long warfare between the two South American nations. Observers here said the deciding factor in the conflict may be Bolivia's newly called reserves.

Each of the four corps Paraguay has thrown into the conflict is composed of 10,000 men. After the capture of Fort Ballivian in November, these veterans pushed forward and had virtually all of the Chaco in their possession. Villa Montes, on the 63d meridian, has been their chief objective since Ballivian's capture. If it should fall, it would mean not only Paraguayan victory in the Chaco, but a threat to large slices of Bolivian territory proper.

Marks End of Jungle.

Marking the end of the Chaco jungle and plains and the beginning of the Bolivian foothills which roll westward to the Andes, Villa Montes lies beside the Pilcomayo river where it pierces the Aguragüe range of hills. From Villa Montes an old and well traveled Bolivian road runs northward through Santa Cruz department clear to the 12th parallel.

Westward and northwestward from Villa Montes run a network of highways into the heart of Tarija province, into the center of Chuquisaca, and on to the Bolivian railway system which connects with La Paz, the capital.

The plan of Gen. Estigarribia in mapping his western push was to advance into the oil fields and hold them to enforce Bolivian acceptance of Paraguay's peace terms.

PASSENGER BUS STOLEN; THIEVES DEMAND RANSOM

Two men who stole a 21 passenger bus belonging to the Indian system, with offices at 746 South Wabash avenue, yesterday offered, by telephone, to sell it back to the owners for $150.

The bus was taken by thieves Saturday morning while the driver, Chester Osborne, was having breakfast in a roadside restaurant three miles east of Gary. Osborne reported the theft and then returned to Chicago. Before he arrived the system officials received a message that the men who had it would call again. The promise was made good.

"We can deliver your bus in thirty minutes," said the caller. "We only want justice. The Nu-Way Bus company, that owned it before you bought it, owed us $150. Will you pay that to get it back?"

Irving Cheplowitz, head of the bus company, suggested that the men call again last night. Meanwhile he made arrangements with the detective bureau to arrest the go-getter collectors. But they didn't make this call, and Mr. Cheplowitz is trying to figure out another way to get his bus back for nothing.

VANCOUVER RESIDENTS PRAY FOR BETTER DAYS AT REQUEST OF MAYOR

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Thousands of persons crowded into churches here today to pray for better times, as asked in a proclamation by Mayor G. G. McGreer.

"We have fallen upon such evil days because we have forgotten God; we have been too proud to pray to the God who made us," the mayor said in his proclamation, issued shortly after he took office last Wednesday.

Sermons struck the note of prayer and contrition, and of looking forward into a new year and new beginnings.

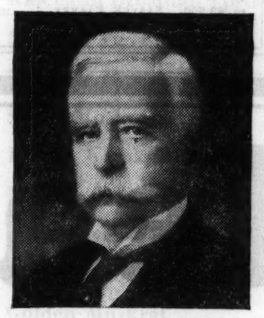
ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

THE MASTER BUILDER

Marshall Field, whose one hundredth anniversary has just been recorded, was first and foremost a builder. He was a builder of standards of service, of quality and of integrity in business dealings. He was also a builder in the physical sense, for he invested his faith and his fortune in the development of Chicago's future.



Marshall Field, Founder of The Estate that bears his name

The leadership for building which he established has never been relinquished. The spirit of Marshall Field is alive and active today, manifest in the mighty structures erected, managed and sustained in the name of the Estate of Marshall Field. The Field Building, the Conway Building, the Pittsfield Building, the Marshall Field Garden Apartments and a score of other properties all witness to his enterprise, all bear his unmistakable hallmark of quality, service and undeviating stability.

Of no man who ever took part in Chicago's growth can it be more truthfully and literally said, "If you would see his monument, look about you."

OPERATION OF A BUILDING BY THE ESTATE OF MARSHALL FIELD IS A GUARANTEE OF SERVICE SATISFACTION AND PRESTIGE . . . . .

BOY KING OPENS HOLIDAYS WITH YULE LOG RITUAL

Christmas Is 'Mother's Day' in Jugo-Slavia.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Twelve days after America and western Europe lighted their Christmas trees, little King Peter and his brothers today celebrated the Orthodox Serbian Christmas eve, which in Jugo-Slavia is known as Mother's day.

For the first time in his life, Peter performed the ancient ceremony of receiving the yule log from the royal guard. Dating from ancient days, this quaint Christmas ritual resembles the yule log ceremony of rural England.

Following another old tradition, King Peter and his brothers tied their mother with string to a chair. In return for her release, the queen was forced to give her children presents. Next Sunday fathers throughout Jugo-Slavia will be bound to chairs in similar fashion and will have to give gifts, but as Peter has no father now, he will tie down his uncle, Prince Paul.

Throughout Jugo-Slavia today peasants scattered straw in homes and inns to represent the stable in which Christ was born. Led by Queen Marie, mothers scattered nuts and fruit in the straw, then called their children like a hen calling her chicks, to find the buried treasure.

Pour Wine on Log.

Serbians sent their young men into the woods to cut down the yule log, which then was smeared with butter and honey and sprinkled with grain. A special baked cake was placed on the log, and wine poured over it while prayers were said for good harvests in the coming year. Then pistols were fired all over the land and national dances held around the stump to the accompaniment of gypsy music.

The yule log cut by the royal guards was received by King Peter, as head of the royal household, on the steps of Dedinje palace. In accordance with tradition, the young sovereign showered the log bearers with grain, then himself carried the log into the palace where he threw it into the great open fire.

A great shower of sparks falling from the burning logs was interpreted as a sign that Jugo-Slavia will be blessed with great prosperity in 1935.

Bitter Cold in Russia.

MOSCOW, Jan. 6. — (AP) — Orthodox Greek churches of Moscow held traditional Christmas eve services tonight in spite of 25 below zero temperature, but did not attract many worshipers.

For three days temperatures in central Russia have ranged from 25 to 32 degrees below zero [Fahrenheit] and weather forecasters predicted at least three more days of Arctic cold. All primary schools were closed, trains and cars delayed and the streets almost deserted.

Hunt Slayer of Kentuckian Found in Shallow Grave

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 6. — (AP) — The nude and headless torso of a man, believed dead less than 24 hours, was found in a shallow grave at Kosmosdale, 18 miles south of here, this afternoon. Capt. Stanley Searcy of the Louisville police record bureau identified the body as that of Fonzie Bratcher, 24, of Meadowlawn, Ky., an ex-convict. A search for the body was started after a dog was seen dragging a human arm through the streets of the village. Jack Shipley, a farmer for whom Bratcher worked, said the latter had gone to a dance Monday night and he had not seen him since.

Resident of Loop Hotel Killed by Electric Train

William H. Seymour, 33 years old, of the Bismarck hotel, died in Jackson Park hospital early today of injuries he incurred a short time earlier when he was struck by a northbound Illinois Central suburban train at 71st street and Jeffery avenue. Seymour, attempting to catch the train at the station, ran under the lower gates and was struck as he started across the track. He was taken to the hospital by his brother, Gordon V. Seymour, 45 East Schiller street, who witnessed the accident.

EXPOSURE PROVES FATAL.

Frank James, 60 years old, homeless, died yesterday in the County hospital of exposure. Desplaines street police sent him to the hospital Friday when he asked for shelter.

IMPROVED CROPS SEEN AS BOON TO STARVING CHINESE

Hopes Rise in Kansu Province.

LANCHOW, China, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Hopes were rising today throughout this Chinese northwestern empire called Kansu province that disease, famine and brigandage, which have taken probably 2,000,000 lives, will be mitigated by improved crops.

After a half decade of every kind of disaster, beginning with the drouth of 1929, nature is again smiling. Seasonable rains and snows give the once fertile plateau favorable harvest prospects.

While disease continues its heavy toll, brigandage appears to be lessening under the stabilizing influences injected by the National government forces of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek. The neighboring province of Shensi also seems destined in the coming season to enjoy the best crops of recent years.

Drouth Followed by Famine.

With relief in sight, the survivors of Kansu look back on five terrible years during which, missionaries estimate, one out of every three inhabitants of the sparsely settled region succumbed.

The drouth of 1929-'30 which turned Kansu into a sandy waste, was followed by famine. Then came disease and people died like flies from tuberculosis and typhus.

Bandit bands swept the province from one end to the other, leaving a trail of pillaged villages. Peasants, unable to make a living on their ravaged farms, joined the outlaws.

Dr. D. Vaughan Rees of the Chinese Inland Mission hospital here witnessed many scenes of horror.

Finds Money Useless.

"Money," he said, "was useless in the famine area. Food could not be bought. We found that it was even dangerous to feed our draught animals, for the starving people snatched handfuls of the fodder. The living had no strength to bury the dead, and the countryside was littered with corpses. Living skeletons wandered aimlessly, finally to drop dead from starvation.

"There is no doubt that at least 2,000,000 of Kansu's 7,000,000 people have been cut down by death during the last five years."

New England Publisher's Widow Dies in Lake Forest

Mrs. Margaret Fielden, 85 years old, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Neil N. Campbell, 215 Washington circle, Lake Forest. She was the widow of Francis Fielden, who was publisher of the Salem [Mass.] Observer. Surviving Mrs. Fielden are her daughter and a son, George P. Fielden of Andover, Mass. Funeral services will be held at the Campbell residence tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. Burial will be at Salem.

Chinese Breaks Up Dinner; Falls 4 Stories, Hits Table

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Sam Lim Ming, Chinese, broke up a dinner party in his plunge from a fourth floor hotel window tonight. Sam crashed through a restaurant skylight and landed on the table where the party was gathered. The dinner was ruined, but Sam was only cut and bruised.

In Midway Chapel

The manifestation of Jesus to the gentiles and the coming of the Magi to Bethlehem at the time of his birth were commemorated last night in the traditional candle lighting service of the feast of the Epiphany in the University of Chicago chapel. Soft lights flickered over pews filled with worshipers as the chorals, hymns, and organ music filled the nave. The service reached its climax when the altar candles were lighted and the University of Chicago choir carrying lighted candles and singing the Recessional passed slowly down the nave with the congregation following.

SEIZE 75 CULT MEMBERS WAGING DRIVE IN SUBURB

Seventy-five members of a religious organization known as Jehovah's Witnesses were arrested by the River Forest police yesterday and were charged with disorderly conduct. So great was the pressure on the jail facilities of the town that some of those arrested were sent to Oak Park and other western suburbs.

Many residents of River Forest, according to the police, complained that the cult members were disturbing their slumbers early in the morning with a truck on which loud speakers were blaring. Later several of the cultists rang doorbells in an endeavor to sell pamphlets outlining their peculiar brand of truth.

Five men were first arrested. Later twenty others, including ten women, were seized. Apparently notified of the arrests, an additional fifty descended on the suburb, striving to sell their pamphlets and defying the police, although making no attempt at resistance. It was said that the organization is campaigning to compel radio chains to give them time on the air. Of those in custody twenty-five in all are women. They will be arraigned Tuesday before Justice of the Peace Hugh Gardner.

Porter Shoots Bartender as Reply to Reprimand

While several patrons were dining yesterday noon in L'Aiglon restaurant, 22 East Ontario street, Fred La Marche, 30 years old, the bartender, was shot in the left shoulder by Charles Miller, 25 years old, colored porter. The shooting occurred in the kitchen during a dispute over Miller's work. According to witnesses, Miller drew the revolver from his overcoat and shot La Marche as the bartender berated him. The porter fled. La Marche was taken to the Passavant hospital.

SHOT BY ROBBER; DIES.

FOUR ARE KILLED, 3 HURT AS AUTO CRASHES BRIDGE

Wake Forest, N. C., Jan. 7 [Monday]. — (AP) — A heavily laden automobile crashed into a cement abutment to the Neuse river bridge, six miles from here, last midnight, killing four of its occupants and critically injuring three others.

The dead were: Clayton Mizzelle of Windsor, driver of the car; Leon White and James Morris, both of Windsor, and Katherine Batchelor of Durham.

Pauline Whitfield of Robersonville, Levora Grimes of Robersonville, and Doris Batchelor of Durham were taken to a hospital at Raleigh in a serious condition.

Coroner L. M. Waring said he found a quart bottle, partly filled with liquor, in the automobile. The coroner said the car was turning a curve at a high speed when it struck the abutment.

ARMY AND NAVY FLYERS TO JOIN FETE AT MIAMI

Miami, Fla., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Six hundred airmen, military and civilian pilots, are expected for the seventh annual Miami All-America air races Jan. 10, 11, and 12.

Civilian pilots will compete in 15 events for 65 trophies and $5,605 in cash prizes. Army, navy, and marine aviators will give a show of skill.

There will be nearly 100 fighting planes of the second "wing" from Langley field, Va., commanded by Maj. B. O. Jones. Army planes will come from several other fields.

High officers of the army, navy, and marine corps will witness the races, in which more than 300 army planes, augmented by 100 from the National Guard of 18 states, the marines, and the navy will take part.

Col. Ross E. Rowell will lead 34 marine planes from Quantico, Va.

LONG TERM GIVEN BOY BANDIT STIRS HOPE OF PARENTS

Sorrowing Mother Tells Him "to Be a Man."

Sorrow was assuaged by hope and relief yesterday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Dougal, 1618 North Kedzie avenue, when they considered the five year prison term imposed Saturday upon their 15 year old son James by Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

The sentence, imposed for interstate transport of a stolen automobile, was one of the severest ever to be given a boy of 15 in Chicago, but was given, Judge Barnes said, in an effort to "save the life" of the boy bandit against whom the state has an additional thirty-two charges.

James' parents, who have eight other children, said they felt relieved and that they could see some glimmerings of hope for the future of their second son, who has been wayward since the age of 11.

Sentence Brings New Hope.

"We thought the sentence was strong," said Mr. Dougal, a bald-headed man of 44, an interior decorator by trade who now is working for the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, "but if it'll save him from a gangster's life or a police bullet we're satisfied."

"We've tried everything else and prison may be James' only salvation," spoke up Mrs. Dougal, fiery lights glinting in her eyes as she nursed Thomas, her 6 month old baby. "Imprisonment is all right if they'll give him a chance to work when he gets out. I wrote him a letter just half an hour ago. I told him to take it like a man, for he'll be a man when he gets out. He'll be almost 21."

Hope He'll Learn Trade.

"Maybe he can learn a good trade out there," suggested her husband.

Mrs. Dougal nodded her head in earnest agreement—"yes, so he can earn a decent living. He's an ambitious boy. He'll do any kind of work for 50 cents—that is, he would before he escaped from the St. Charles school for boys, where he was sentenced for auto theft."

"James was always a trial," said the father. "We moved him from one school to another. Back when he started his stealing was when I was making my best money. We had a good home"—looking around the small, sparsely furnished flat, "and he had no cause to go out."

"We've always thought that he's been in the hands of older boys, and they've used him," interrupted Mrs. Dougal. "He used to cry out in his sleep, 'Don't hit me! I'll do it, I'll do it!' but he never would tell us what he was dreaming."

Hope Discipline Is Strict.

"I hope," ventured Mrs. Dougal, "that the discipline at that prison is strict. That's why he went wrong at St. Charles—it wasn't."

"I don't know," mused her husband, "but what it's just about the best thing that could have happened to him. When he comes out he'll be grown, he'll know a trade, he'll be able to earn a living——"

"And maybe," finished Mrs. Dougal, her tired voice breaking slightly, "maybe the depression will be over then."

PRISON WEAPON DETECTOR TO BE TRIED OUT TODAY

State officials will see this morning a demonstration of the new detector system at Stateville penitentiary, installed to warn guards when a visitor attempts to smuggle iron tools or weapons into the prison. The penitentiary, officials said, is the first in the United States to install such a detector system. Officials of the Paul W. Koch company, manufacturers of the device, yesterday explained the operation. Detector coils which are passed over a visitor's clothing, amplify magnetic impulses from iron or steel objects, and in turn sound an alarm and flash a light. In the search room a detector is also used on packages.

News of The Tribune Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Help the Birds!

Jan. 6, 1935.

CARL HENDERSON, manager of THE TRIBUNE auxiliary farm near Wheaton, in surveying the farming practices that pay, attributes a part of the farm's great success to the presence of wild fowl which are propagated and never shot. Years of observation in operating the farm has convinced him that "quail and pheasant are much more helpful out in the field than on the table."

It is tradition at the auxiliary farm to welcome useful wild birds, including quail and pheasant, and the other birds that come and go with the seasons. It is also a haven for water fowl. Many wild geese and wild ducks live in the ponds at the farm throughout the year, while others pay them regular visits, especially during the open hunting season.

Mr. Henderson says there are hundreds of pheasants and quail on the farm today, all protected.

"We raised 24 wild geese that are here at the farm in addition to many that come and go at will," he said. "There are ten wild ducks that stay on the farm all winter. Flocks of both geese and ducks that pass over the farm frequently drop down for a meal when they hear the honks and quacks of our geese and ducks on the ponds.

Pheasants and quail eat a great quantity of weed seeds and insects on the farm every year. We are in the great chinch bug belt but so far our losses of small grain and corn from this pest have been slight. It may be that the chinch bugs are eaten in such great numbers by the birds that they are held in check."

Mr. Henderson has found, also that the wild geese and wild ducks, as well as the 12 swans at the farm, eat millions of mosquitoes and water bugs off the ponds. For years Mr. Henderson has watched closely a big pond on the farm and has noticed that it is kept by water fowl practically free from mosquitoes and water bugs.

It will pay any farmer to put out feed for wild birds that live in the fields and geese and ducks that live in and around ponds, Mr. Henderson believes.

"I believe it will pay to feed the birds even this winter with corn at 85 or 90 cents a bushel and oats at 58 cents a bushel," he said. "It has been particularly necessary to feed the birds during the last few weeks with the snow blanketing the ground, covering up the weed seed. It does not require a great amount of feed to keep them alive. We feed pheasants, quail, geese and ducks throughout the winter at the auxiliary farm. It is necessary to feed the birds this winter in the middlewest because the drouth killed the weeds and farmers have done a thorough job of gathering everything they could find to provide feed for live stock."

"Every school teacher should inculcate the doctrine of letting useful birds alone. The beautiful songsters are not here now; but the school days are. Any boy ought to be shunned who will shoot, or in any way injure, either of the following: the night or mosquito hawk, chimney swallow, martin or swift, whippoorwill, cuckoo, king bird or bee martin, woodpecker, flain or high-hole, catbird, wren, bluebird, meadow or brown thrasher, dove, fire-bird or summer red-bird, hanging bird, ground bird or chewink, bobolink or rice bird, robin, snow or chipping bird, bluejay and the small owl!"

NORTH DAKOTA'S NEW GOVERNOR TAKES JOB TODAY

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 6.—(AP)—With his qualifications still to be determined in pending court proceedings, Gov. Elect Thomas H. Moodie will take office tomorrow as the third chief executive of North Dakota in six months.

The second Democrat in state history to be elected governor, Moodie must await a decision of the state Supreme court before he is entirely assured he will serve his full term. He will take over the authority from Acting Governor Ole H. Olson, a Non-partisan league Republican who supported him. In the last election Mrs. Lydie Langer, wife of the deposed governor, failed in her attempt to "vindicate" her husbands. He went out of office in July following his conviction of conspiracy to solicit political contributions from federal relief workers. The court attacks on Moodie's right to hold office are based on charges that he is not qualified by five years' residence in the state as required in its constitution.

BOYLE'S BACKING IN SPEAKER RACE SURPRISES PARTY

Capitol Leaders Feel No Alarm Over Caucus.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Chicago Democratic representatives dropped a small bomb into plans for organizing the Illinois house next Wednesday when they voted as a unit Saturday to back James P. Boyle for speaker. The caucus at the Morrison hotel was a surprise to some of the state house leaders, but apparently it did not disturb their belief that ultimately, out of the anticipated turmoil in the house caucus Tuesday night, a downstate speaker will emerge. John P. Devine of Dixon and Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island are the leading candidates with the odds a shade in favor of Devine.

JAMES P. BOYLE.

Chicagoans Face Hard Going.

Even though they will go to Springfield attended by a powerful ally, National Committeeman P. A. Nash, the Chicago members have a tough job. They number 35, eight short of the 43 votes necessary to rule the caucus, providing the entire membership of 84 is present.

Missionary work of a character potent enough to swing eight downstaters is no easy job, it is admitted. But Boyle and Benjamin S. Adamowski, the Chicagoans' choice for floor leader, are optimistic, and the entire delegation will be on hand at the St. Nicholas hotel in Springfield early tomorrow evening still tingling from the pep talk Committeeman Nash gave them Saturday.

Gov. Horner is keeping his hands off the Devine-Sinnett speakership fight, but is known to favor reëlection of Senator R. V. Graham of Cicero as president pro tempore of the senate. He would also like to see Rollo M. Shaw of Lawrenceville reëlected senate floor leader.

Governor for Downstater.

Since Graham, a Cook county man, is the administration choice for floor leader of the senate, the governor would like to see the speaker come from downstate. He had no comment to make yesterday on the Chicago drive for Boyle, but his advisers said that he would not support it.

Mr. Horner was still deep in the problem of his biennial message yesterday, hoping to finish it today and make corrections tomorrow. It will be read Wednesday morning to a joint session of both houses.

As they prepared to leave for the capitol and the six month session of the 59th general assembly, several legislators described bills they will introduce early in the meeting.

Push Communism Fight.

Senator Charles W. Baker [Rep., Monroe Center] will again introduce bills to withdraw state funds from educational institutions where it is proved in court that communism is taught, he said. The same bills passed the senate last session but failed in the house.

Representative Leroy M. Green [Rep., Rockford] declared that he would introduce an old age pension bill in the house in the event Representative R. G. Soderstrom [Rep., Streator], president of the state federation of labor, does not introduced one.

Representative Maurice O. Kalahar [Rep., Bloomington] will demand that a thorough investigation of expenditures of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission be made. He declared yesterday that the legislative committee named to conduct the investigation last session had made a "farce" of its work, calling only favorable witnesses and ignoring evidence of waste.

Three Held by Police in Slaying at Saloon

Three men were being held by the Woodlawn police last night in connection with the killing early Saturday of Lawrence J. Steele, 7130 Cyril avenue, an ex-convict. They are Edward Boyle, 50 year olds, bartender in a tavern at 410 East 63d street; John Brannigan and Martin Rabbit, owners of the place. Boyle has admitted shooting Steele during a fight in the tavern, but insists Steele walked out, apparently not seriously wounded.

"Moist-Throat" Method ended his COUGH in 2 days

"I'm a singer," writes Russell Johns, Chillicothe, O. "2 days before an audition I had a bad cough. Pertussin made it stop quickly!"

WHEN you catch cold, your throat feels dry because thousands of its tiny moisture glands clog. Infected mucus irritates—then you cough. To relieve the coughing, you must "unclog" those glands and so moisten the throat. Pertussin does just that. It helps the throat glands to pour out their natural moisture. Sticky phlegm loosens—Relief. Get a bottle now!

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

THE NEW RELIEF POLICY.

The President's message contained little, if anything, that was unexpected. The document merely confirmed the inspired forecasts of what he would say.

The President gave greatest emphasis to the problem of relief. He intends to transfer to the states and localities the support of a million and a half families whose breadwinners are classed as unemployable. The federal government is to continue to support another three and a half million families whose breadwinners are employable but have not found work. The President proposes to discontinue the dole and provide all these people with jobs. He will pay them more than they are now receiving as a dole but less than the going wages in private employment. The new projects are to be self-liquidating, so far as possible, and in any event useful.

After the budget message has been studied comment on the program can be more informed. Meanwhile it may be pointed out that the problem of planning and organizing useful employment for three and a half million persons is a stupendous one. Unless the plans are already completed it can be taken as altogether certain that no such number can be put to useful work in the few months which the President seems to regard as the transition period.

Meanwhile, too, attention should be directed to the fact that the states which contribute most heavily to the federal treasury are already [with some few exceptions] making the largest contributions to the support of their own unfortunates. If the new policy is rigorously pursued it will force the habitually mendicant states of the south and west to begin to meet their corresponding obligations. It remains to be seen whether this can be accomplished in the face of political alignments and pressures. A certain skepticism seems justified.

At present states like Illinois and communities like Chicago are finding it almost impossible to carry the burden. Illinois has been able to do its part only through borrowing and that process cannot be relied upon in future. If the federal government intends to add materially to the state and local obligation it must reduce the share of the state's income which it withdraws in federal taxes to spend elsewhere. If the federal government will reduce its exactions [as seems not to be the intent of the administration] the states and localities may find the money with which to support their dependents. Otherwise the President is demanding that the states make bricks without straw.

The President promises to hold federal expenditures within the limits of the government's credit. It remains to be seen if the program he has outlined will not place too heavy a strain upon the resources of those states, like Illinois, which are already carrying a disproportionately heavy share of the burden.

ON WITH THE DANCE.

Miss Provines, citing Col. de Basil as her authority, says that the Monte Carlo dancers are preparing a ballet "dealing with American history from the landing of the Puritans."

Lesser minds than the colonel's might be disposed to fragment the story, but De Basil, with characteristic boldness, shoots the works. He will not divide his material into even two periods of 150 years each. If one or two matters of some importance have to be omitted, the loss will be more than compensated by the gain in unity of impression. Bravo!

The production is awaited with more than ordinary impatience. The dancing of the austere fathers who thought dancing a sin is something which ought to be worth going a long way to see. It ought to be better even than the Russian Indians. A feeling for historical accuracy should not be permitted to cramp the style of the ladies of the company in particular. A chorus of Puritan mothers skipping about in ballet skirts may seem a bit incongruous, but it is possible to draw a distinction between truth and fact. Perhaps the Grandmothers of Revolution only seemed sedate when in truth their souls went pirouetting in tarlatans. At any rate, we know they had large families.

This much is certain: Whatever Col. de Basil does to American history will be received with delight by his American public. There may be naïveté on his side of the footlights, but it will be more than matched on the other. The American public and most of its critics were lost in admiration of "Union Pacific," and if they could take that they can take anything.

Nothing that the ballet will do with "American history from the landing of the Puritans" is likely to outdo "Union Pacific" in downright failure to comprehend. The laying of the first transcontinental railroad was one of the great epics in human history. The theme was Promethean. The fact that M. Massine missed the point is less his fault than that of his American collaborators. If they gave him a program which made the principal character in the epic a bartender and the principal scene a bawdy house he can hardly be blamed. Perhaps that was how the Trans-Siberian was built. Still, it is a pity that he wasn't taken to see "The Iron Horse," and especially "The Wings of a Century." The first had its quota of Hollywood and the second its rhetorical excesses, but by and large the feeling of both of these productions was right and that feeling could have been expressed in the dance.

It is to be hoped that Col. de Basil will engage a different set of collaborators for his forthcoming venture. The council of the American Historical association might provide him with more detail than he can conveniently handle in a performance lasting three-quarters of an hour, but he might compromise by calling in some less immoderately well informed individuals. Not that it will make any difference so far as the box office is concerned. The gallant colonel cannot know less about American history than his American audiences do, but even so, he ought not take advantage of their ignorance. He ought not, for example, present the Rev. Cotton Mather in pink silk tights.

AVIATION ON THE WAY.

In the course of an editorial written early in July to emphasize the progress that was being made by the airlines despite government antagonism and discouragement it was remarked that five hour service from Chicago to New York was standard, with four and one-half hour flights contemplated before the end of the year. Suggestion was advanced that the time would be reduced to three or even two hours within the next few years.

Early in September we were able to announce regular schedules of four and one-half hours, and our purpose at the present writing is to draw attention to a new schedule of the T. W. A., effective Jan. 8. Hereafter nonstop flights will cut the elapsed time to four hours and five minutes. Our suggestion for a three hour schedule was received with a certain amount of incredulity by Vox Pop, but here we are half way to that goal with only six months of the "next few years" exhausted. And we may observe that in the meantime the same T. W. A., Inc., has flown the distance on a trial trip in three hours and seven minutes, including a stop at Pittsburgh. It might be fully expected that this record will be lowered on many trips of the nonstop service on such days as the plane is assisted by a strong tail wind. Nonstop air flights have this advantage—that the published schedule is a maximum.

ARMY INQUIRIES.

Investigation of rumors of corruption in the awarding of certain army contracts ordered by Secretary Dern should not be confused in the public mind with action upon the report of the house committee on military affairs on inefficiency in the aviation division. Gen. Foulois, chief of aviation, is not among the suspects at which this war department inquiry is directed. As the scapegoat selected in the effort of the administration to mitigate public indignation over the air mail fiasco he will, it is assumed, be subjected to trial by a military tribunal on the basis of a house committee report which charges him with "misconduct and gross inefficiency."

It is important that not only corruption but also inefficiency, if they exist, shall be disclosed and corrected. It is even more important that charges shall be fully and fairly tried and not merely exploited for political purposes to distract public attention from unscrupulous political tactics. Pending further proceedings, it is only fair to Gen. Foulois, an officer of long and honorable record, to remark that, whatever errors and inadequacies in his direction of the air corps may be shown, army aviation, though below the high standards of the private air lines, seems, in the light of Gen. MacArthur's recent report, to be the most efficient branch of the army.

AMERICAN VOTERS IN THE SAAR.

The political pilgrimage of a number of naturalized Americans along with aliens resident in the United States to the Saar for the plebiscite has aroused a bit of curiosity as to the standing of these people in the country in which they have chosen recently to live and obtain citizenship.

There is in the proceeding a suggestion of dual citizenship which has been rightfully objected to as impossible. Mussolini made a stir some time ago when he said that Italians could become American citizens without being released from the claims Italy had upon them. The answer was that no such thing could possibly be.

It is to be recognized that the Saar election is a singular and peculiar affair and that the provision which permits the return of voters who would have been qualified if they had remained there was a part of the treaty. It is not necessary to make too much of a fuss about something that will pass over and be forgotten. The voters who have returned for the plebiscite get a European trip at Nazi expense, and most of them probably will enjoy it.

In principle, however, it is not to be admitted that persons who have accepted the privileges and responsibilities of American citizenship shall retain a voting privilege in important affairs of other countries. Congressman Dickstein of New York has introduced a bill covering future contingencies of this nature. The Saar incident, as it affects American citizens, is an extraordinary affair, and, although it in itself may be negligible, it does involve American people in an acute European situation which is none of their business, however much it may engage their sympathies and their sentiment.

FEWER ARRESTS FOR INTOXICATION.

[Rutland, Vt., Herald.]

Despite the fact that there were more arrests for all offenses during 1934 than in 1933, arrests for intoxication in this city were slightly less.

Repeal and the coming [1] of beer and wines [2] of spirituous liquor sold in the state store apparently did not increase intoxication; in fact, there were 15 fewer arrests in the year just past than in the year previous.

In addition Chief Leonard says that there were fewer of the worst cases of intoxication or raw alcohol poisoning [from "canned heat" and ether products], which indicates that state store liquor is less deadly than its more dangerous substitutes.

Although the chief did not say much about the bootlegger, it is stated in other quarters that one of the chief enterprises of the former supply merchants of the contraband is acting as middlemen, buying from the state store against a holiday and charging the improvident a decided increase over the state store rate.

All of this is very interesting and will no doubt be heard of in other cities, whose experiences may be cited when the control board makes its report to the incoming general assembly.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

VERBENA VETOES THE MESSAGE.

Work is a splendid thing. The President is quite right in saying that the government must go out of the relief business and all those unfortunate people now on relief must be given work at once. "We must preserve not only the bodies of the unemployed from destitution," says President Roosevelt, "but also their self-respect, their self-reliance and courage and determination." Those are noble words and immortal words, fit to ring down the long corridors of history. Right away I thought of Verbena. Now was the chance to pry Verbena off the relief rolls and get her back in my kitchen, where I felt she belonged.

Verbena was a great cook. Since she walked out on me one day to get on relief we've never had a cook like Verbena. Oh, what fried chicken and beaten biscuits Verbena made! A poem, a masterpiece, no less. And when Verbena made seed cake, well, there's nothing I can think of comparable to Verbena's seed cake but heavenly manna. And if the Prophet Elisha had ever eaten Verbena's cooking he would have given the ravens a swift kick in the pants when they brought him manna instead of seed cake.

And spoon bread! Verbena's spoon bread! Or a whole ham baked in sherry! And sweet potato pudding cooked with orange and ginger! Oh, when Verbena made a sweet potato pudding with orange and ginger—well, there's no use trying to describe it. It was simply one of the most delectable things ever concocted. And "cohn pones" and "pot likker" and gumbo filé—Oh, Verbena could certainly throw a mean gumbo filé. And chicken pilau or, as Verbena called it, "chicken all bogged down in rice." Oh, Verbena's chicken pilau was simply something to write home about. And lemon custard pie, the crust so flaky it was sacrilege to call it crust. And she could take any sort of meat, fresh from the butcher's or scraps from the ice box, and make the most savory dish out of it that was ever known.

We wanted Verbena back. We had always wanted Verbena back, but we could never pry her loose from the relief thing. But here was a chance! The President had spoken. The government must get out of the relief business right away. Everybody must go to work. That meant Verbena. I called up the drug store nearest to Verbena's home and had them send over and bring Verbena to the telephone. Then I broke the sad news to her about the government going out of the relief business and the President's assertion that everybody should go to work. Verbena was not deeply impressed. It was plain that she did not believe me.

"Ah'm perfectly sassyfried," said Verbena.

"But listen to this, Verbena," I said, reaching for a newspaper; "let me read you something the President said in his message:

"'The lessons of history, confirmed by the evidence before me, show conclusively that continued dependence upon relief induces a spiritual and moral disintegration fundamentally destructive to the national fiber.'

"Now, Verbena, what do you think of that? Do you want to be spiritually and morally disintegrated?"

"Ah hain't a-skeered," said Verbena. "Ah get the 'quivalent of fohty dollars er month from relief an' I hain't a dissergratin' none whatevah. Ah'm a-gittin' fat."

"But," I pleaded, "the President says further:

"'To dole out relief in this way is to administer a narcotic, a subtle destroyer of the human spirit. It is inimical to the dictates of sound policy. It is in violation of the traditions of America.'"

"Hit hain't 'nimical to me none," said Verbena. "Ah only got Thuhsday and Sunday afternoons off when I wo'ked, an' now I git every afternoon off an' the fohnoons, too, likewise an' also! That don't nimahcal mah spirits none."

"Well, Verbena," I said in a desperate effort at making a last stand fight, "if you won't listen to the President then maybe you'll listen to what Horace says, 'O laborum—Dulce leniment!' Which, if you recall your Horace, means 'O, sweet solace of labor!'"

"Ah don' keer nothin' about Mistah Hohace," said Verbena. "Ah wo'ked foh him once an' he allus made me pay foh dishes when Ah broke 'em. Wich you all didn't neveh do, I'll say that for you. But don't talk erbout no Mistah Hohace ter me. Ah'm stayin' on relief. Why, Ah done got mo' in mah pantry den yo' all got."

"Verbena," I said, despairingly, "are you coming back?"

"No," said Verbena.

And there was a finality about that "no" of Verbena's that she was not coming back, the President's message to the contrary notwithstanding.

SONNET III.

I shall not fashion any songs like those
That shelter Lesbos from oblivion,
Conceived in rapture, redolent of the rose,
Still blissful, though the singer long is gone;
Not from a steep Leucadian cliff, far-seen
By mariners upon the treacherous deep,
Musing on how Love's grave is late grown green
Will I forsake all faiths, and finally leap.
But for one lustrous hour, before Love leaves us,
Let us two dwell in song, that will some day
Demand remembrance, after Time bereaves us
Of all our hearts hold dear; and let none say,
"They parted in the midnight of regret"—
We will not weep; yet we shall not forget.

PYGMALION.

DEAFNESS.

It has been well said that there are two forms of deafness: one that is due to wax in the ear canal, which is curable, and the other, not caused by wax, which is not curable.

Until within recent years progress in combating deafness has been exceedingly slow. Because of the importance of the problem and the apparent increase in the number of persons who are hard of hearing, much attention of late has been given to this condition.

Deafness is now considered under two general headings. First, that which is due to some defect in the sound conducting apparatus of either the external or the middle ear, and second, some defect in the sound receiving apparatus of the internal ear or of the brain.

If a tuning fork is placed on the side of the skull of a deaf person and is heard for the normal length of time, we may be certain that there is no trouble at the receiving end, but that the difficulty lies somewhere along the line of sound conduction. If it is heard for a shorter time than normal the internal ear may be partly at fault. If it is not heard at all the nerve of hearing is dead.

From the outside, let us look into the canal leading to the ear drum. Perhaps there is some disease in this canal—a tumor, ringworm infection, or a growth. A plug of hard ear wax can cause considerable deafness. Skin diseases such as eczema may cause the canal to swell and thus obstruct sound waves. Boils in the ear canal cause pain and swelling and, for a time, may disturb hearing. Occasionally malignant tumors, particularly if they affect the bone, cause deafness as well as head noises and sooner or later they involve the middle ear.

Let us assume that the ear canal has been examined and is normal. The drum is found not to be diseased and we may pass figuratively to the inside of the drum and consider the structure of the middle ear. Attention has been called repeatedly to the necessity of keeping the Eustachian tube [leading from the throat to the middle ear] open and free from disease, in order that air pressure may be equal on both sides of the drum. If this important tube is infected and swollen shut, temporary or partial deafness will result. When repeated attacks occur chronic deafness may follow.

The middle ear may become infected with bacteria and the resulting scars tighten up the delicately adjusted sound conducting structures. Tonsilitis, measles, scarlet fever, and the common cold are all responsible for infection, and prevention consists in proper care of the throat in the presence of any one of these diseases.

Small perforations in the ear drum do not necessarily cause much deafness, but if the drum and ear bones are completely destroyed deafness is usually quite marked.

Another form of middle ear disease is known as otosclerosis. Head noises usually accompany the condition. The ear bones may become fastened solidly to the wall of the internal ear and hence be unable to conduct sound, although the ear drum itself may be normal. Treatment is most disappointing. It is believed that changes in the bone do not occur unless infection is present somewhere in the body, and hence diseased teeth, sinuses, and other foci are removed wherever found. Many individuals who notice the gradual and progressive onset of deafness are found to be suffering from fixation of the ear bones. While considerable research on otosclerosis is in progress, the remedy is not in sight.

Definite advances have been made in reeducating the deaf, and hearing devices such as head phones that conduct sound either through the bone of the skull or through the ear canal are available. Lip reading has been developed to a high degree of efficiency.

General infections that involve the throat pave the way for ear diseases and must not be regarded lightly.

WHITE FINGERS.

A. C. writes: If one has white fingers more or less periodically, what can be done to prevent a chronic condition?

REPLY.

This may be due to what is called Raynaud's disease, which is brought about by a sudden constriction of the arterioles, or the small arteries of the skin. When it first begins it is fleeting in character—it comes and goes. It is caused by some irritation of the sympathetic nervous system. In your case it may go no further, although if you are a tobacco user you should forego the use of the weed or greatly reduce your daily ration.

INVESTIGATE CAUSE.

R. W. writes: What are the causes and treatments for a running navel? I am a woman 30 years old.

REPLY.

Discharge from the navel [umbilicus] may be due to infection, or it may follow the failure of one of the ducts in the umbilical cord to close after birth. What is known as the vitello-intestinal duct usually closes after birth. If it remains open pressure of any sort, such as constipation, may force material from the intestine through this passage. If the discharge does not yield to local cleanliness and an antiseptic wash the cause should be investigated.

LEMON JUICE.

H. B. C. writes: I have always considered lemon juice beneficial to health. Am I correct?

REPLY.

Lemon juice furnishes some necessary vitamins and is a valuable preventive against scurvy. Furthermore, it supplies needed alkali. Hot lemonade is a good remedy for colds. Most persons can take lemon juice and lemonade freely.

ULCER DIET.

C. S. writes: About two months ago I was operated on for a peptic ulcer and upon leaving the hospital my physician gave me a diet. How long must I follow this diet before being cured?

REPLY.

Your physician will know best. Factors that brought on your first ulcer may still be present, and you may be required to follow what is known as the ulcer diet for many months. Your physician no doubt is hoping to forestall the formation of additional ulcers.

APPLICATION FOR CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—[Friend of the People.]—Please advise if a man who has been legitimately divorced and married again, and who also claimed exemption from war service during the war on account of wife and children, would be denied citizenship in the United States? A. N.

It is suggested that the writer submit an application for naturalization to this office, setting forth all the facts contained in his letter for consideration in connection with his application. It does not necessarily follow that the situation referred to will be the controling factor in considering his application for naturalization.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director of Immigration and Naturalization, Chicago District.

ESTATE TAX.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a given estate of $110,000 were left equally to two daughters, on what sums are the federal and state inheritance taxes levied against? For instance, with the present $50,000 exemption for each estate, would the federal and state inheritance taxes be levied against $60,000 or would the taxes be against $5,000 for each daughter, inasmuch as they would both receive $55,000? What is the exemption sum in the state of Illinois? P. R.

The federal estate tax depends on the size of the total estate, so that it would be levied against the $60,000. The Illinois inheritance tax depends on the size of each separate gift. The exemption to each daughter is $20,000.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TITLE TO PROPERTY.

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—By my husband's will I hold an undivided one-half interest in some lots in Tennessee and also an undivided interest in a small acreage tract. My husband's former partner, who holds title to the other one-half of this real estate, tells me the deeds to the property are registered in the county courthouse. 1. Should I have duplicate copies of these deeds made out and sent to me? I wish to convey my one-half interest in this property to my daughter. 2. Please tell me the simplest way to do this. E. M. B.

1. No. Possession of the deed is unimportant after it has been recorded.

2. Secure a printed form from a stationer and fill it in, but if you have had no experience in such transactions we advise you to employ an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CLAIM AGAINST ESTATE.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife and I each have a claim against an estate, and the case is now pending in the Probate court. 1. Must all persons having a claim be present in court when the case is called? 2. Does the Probate court notify all persons having a claim when the case is coming up? 3. Does the estate have to stay in Probate court one year before the case is called or are some claims settled before a year? 4. Is there any way I can find out when the case will be called? 5. Does the fact that they didn't charge me a fee for filing my claim have any significance? 6. Why do they charge a fee for filing some claims? E. P. L.

1. Not unless they wish to be. The proper course for creditors is to file their claims. If the administrator is not willing to mark the claims to be allowed, the creditor should serve summons on him and be present in court when the claim is reached on the calendar.

2. No. Notice to file claims is published. After filing his claim the creditor must follow the matter.

3. Each claim is heard separately. The claims can be heard without waiting for the year to expire.

4. If you have filed a claim you can inquire at the office of the clerk of the court as to its status.

5. No.

6. We suggest that you direct these questions to the clerk of the court.

THE WAY TO STIMULATE BUILDING.

New York, Dec. 31.—If it is desired to take up the slack in employment and end the depression it would seem that the quickest and safest way to do so would be to restore the normal flow of mortgage money at attractive rates. If, instead of squandering billions in ways which six years ago no one outside of a lunatic asylum could have proposed, the government would set up an agency for discounting sound 60 per cent mortgages made by the lending institutions at a reasonable rate of interest, a great wave of industry would quickly follow and with it a demand not only for all the new construction but for that which now lies vacant. Moreover, the government would stand to lose nothing by the venture. The proposed insurance of mortgages is too onerous to be effective.

There must be a vast number of other responsible persons throughout the country situated as I am who would gladly undertake building operations if they could obtain mortgages at reasonable rates. Under such a condition I myself could immediately commence work on projects which with all their ramifications would probably afford employment to four or five thousand persons for a year or more, and there are undoubtedly thousands of others who would do likewise to a greater or less extent.

For almost five years now this great stimulus to industry has been dried up. Five or six million men formerly engaged in the building industry have been either out of work or else employed only a small part of their time.

The paralysis in this line has affected all other lines, so that upward of ten million men have been consumers at the public expense instead of producers, and all the wealth which they could have created by their labor has been lost.

With employment a vast demand for floor space would quickly develop, not only for living quarters but for all other purposes, while the creation of that space would afford the necessary employment.

Many shortsighted persons, among whom are the heads of most of the large lending institutions, look askance at new building and ask why have more while so much is vacant. They do not seem to realize that the vacancies are chiefly due to the stoppage of building.

The depression feeds on itself and each curtailment causes others, and the strange part is that there has been no loss of real wealth but only of courage. Meanwhile the national government adopts measures most admirably adapted to scare off private enterprise and pours out billions in the vain effort to restore prosperity by unnatural means, with the result that an ever increasing proportion of the population is being supported at the taxpayers' expense, and we are fast approaching the brink of economic chaos. ERNEST FLAGG.

A DANGER TO CHILDREN!

Winnetka, Ill., Jan. 2.—Who is the genius who decided upon the schedule for the new fast flyer which is to speed through the north shore suburbs just after school lets out?

Or did it take a whole board of railroad experts to arrange to have this crack train plow through at exactly the time when the problem of getting the smaller children home from school across the tracks is most acute?

I suppose one can't hope to influence a railroad which persists in being a left-handed railroad in a world trained to right-handed trafic, but it should be pointed out that if the flyer could be scheduled to go through while the smaller youngsters are still in the schoolroom it would reduce disasters in the kindergarten and grammar school sets without at all lowering the quota for adult catastrophes. The adult population, of course, chooses its risks.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE RACKET.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Each year as Christmas comes our city is being overloaded with bad shaped Christmas trees that the public will not buy. They are trucked into our city by men who live in Wisconsin and Michigan and are sold to small merchants or new beginners as good trees. The merchants are shown a few nice bundles and then when they open the balance of the load it is found to be nothing but brush, so these men go back and tell their friends how easy it is to fleece the beginners here, which is plain fraud, and then they come in and catch some poor fellow who probably borrowed the money to buy them. In most cases these trees are of no market value and are thrown into alleys and lots, and the city has to gather them up.

SALES TAX SUGGESTION.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—I am replying to the letter from "Druggist" of Jan. 4. Until the state of Illinois has a definite method of collecting the 2 per cent sales tax from the public, and not 4 and 5 per cent on small sales, there will always be complaints. The state could issue sales tax cards which would be good anywhere where the sales tax is applicable. There are a few places here in Chicago that give their customers the correct sales tax percentage by issuing tax cards.

The Cabana Knows That Every Woman Who Goes South Isn't Size 12

Hats from the French Room Fifth Floor

We love young things . . . we love their mad young fashions and we've stocked plenty of them in the Cabana. But we haven't overlooked the fact that the overwhelming majority of those who go south are women. We know these women aren't necessarily interested in the latest whim in shorts or culotte skirts. We know that what they want is well cut, flattering, youthful clothes such as they'll find in the Cabana.

So successful was the last visit of Miss Maud Downing of Miami Beach and Eastern Point, Connecticut, that we have prevailed upon her to return for the better part of this week to again show her lovely hand-knit suits and dresses. These are especially designed and are made to order. Be sure to see them near the Cabana shop on the 6th floor.

Victor Stiebel's exotic turban is the youngest hat we know of and lovely on women. Copied in white (belting ribbon). $22.50.

A new shallow brimmed sailor to travel down in and live in when you get there. This one in pastel felt and Bakou straw. $20.

Formula—one knit dress at least. This chenille cotton knit ensemble comes in all white with deep blue monogram and belt. $39.75.

Formula — quantities of pastel and white crepes. This one in crepe Algier has a navy or brown finger tip jacket with polka dot taffeta revers. $65.

CORONERS FIGHT RISING AUTO TOLL IN CHICAGO AREA

1934 Increase Alarms Nearby Counties.

Coroners of the counties surrounding Cook county reported a total of 378 automobile accident deaths in 1934, which is an increase of 25 per cent over the deaths in 1933, and yesterday they gave varying opinions as to the causes of the increase.

One coroner blamed drink for the increase in accidents, while others suggested there were a greater number of machines on the roads in 1934, that the depression caused the use of worn out cars with faulty brakes, and that widened roads and improper lighting were contributing causes.

Lake county, Indiana, the industrial district to the south of Chicago, and including the cities of Gary, East Chicago, Indiana Harbor, Hammond, and Whiting, had 161 fatalities, 42 of which occurred at railroad grade crossings.

Blame Heavy Traffic.

This county, with 30 per cent of the population in the counties from which reports were received, had 40 per cent of the total fatalities. It was explained that most of the traffic between Chicago and points in Michigan passes through this county, which has many grade crossings. In 1933 there were 31 grade crossing deaths, compared with 42 in 1934.

County.	Pop. In thous.	1932.	1933.	1934.
Lake, Indiana	276	114	129	161
Lake, Illinois	111	41	42	58
Kane	132	38	36	25
Du Page	99	33	32	49
Kankakee	55	15	14	18
Will	113	36	39	53
McHenry	40	14	10	12
Totals	826	291	302	378

Of the 378 deaths, 52 occurred at railroad crossings and as the result of trains hitting automobiles. Only ten of them occurred in the six Illinois counties. These ten, by counties: Kane, 3; Du Page, none; McHenry, 1; Kankakee, 2; Will, none; Lake [Illinois], 4. Except in Will county, where 32 of the victims were pedestrians, the majority of the deaths were of persons riding in cars which were involved in collisions, went off the road or ran into obstructions.

One Coroner Blames Liquor.

Dr. John L. Taylor, the coroner of Lake county [Illinois], blamed intoxicated drivers for most of the 58 automobile deaths in that county. He said that at numerous inquests the drivers involved in accidents admitted having had a "few" drinks prior to the fatality, and that in many instances the word "few" was perjury. He urged that the courts take a firmer stand against drunken drivers.

Dr. P. A. Isherwood, coroner of Du Page county, said improper lighting on trucks caused many of the deaths occurring in that section, west of Chicago. Truck trafic has increased tremendously in the last year or two, he asserted, and considerable merchandise and even cattle is shipped to and from Chicago over highways passing through his county. Two main highways were widened, and have become speedways, he said.

Safety Drive Cuts Toll.

Coroner Herman J. Vierks of Kane county, the only county to show fewer deaths, said the decrease is the result of a safety campaign conducted during the last year. At every inquest a careful analysis was made of the conditions surrounding the accident, and warnings issued to guard repetitions of avoidable accidents.

All the coroners interviewed said that the condition of the average car on the highway today is not what it was a few years ago. Not as much money has been spent per car in keeping them in the best condition, they said.

BURIAL RITES TUESDAY FOR TRAPPIST ABBOT

Gethsemane, Ky., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Trappist monks at Our Lady of Gethsemane abbey maintained a silent vigil today at the coffin of their beloved abbot, the Rt. Rev. Edmond M. Obrecht. He died Friday at the abbey over which he had presided more than 35 years. The funeral will be on Tuesday morning.

The abbot, who was a personal friend of four popes, was head of the Trappist order in North America.

Women are not permitted to enter the monastery at any time, although an exception is made in case of the wife of the governor of the commonwealth on the theory that she is a "queen" and the governor a "king." The monks observe a vow of perpetual silence.

PROF. G. P. BAKER, 'FATHER OF DRAMA WRITING,' IS DEAD

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Prof. George Pierce Baker, who was described by former President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard as the father of dramatic writing in the United States, died here today of pneumonia. He was 68 years old. At his bedside were his wife and their four sons.

In the course of his career of 36 years at Harvard and eight at Yale, Dr. Baker has had among his students men who became famous playwrights. He retired in 1933.

Mr. Baker was the professor under whom Eugene O'Neill, Philip Barry, Sidney Howard, Kenneth MacGowan, Robert Edmond Jones, and a score of others learned first about the theater.

"Baker's workshop," as it was called at Harvard, came into existence in recognition of the difference between a written and an acted play. It tried out what the students wrote. It flourished as "English 47" at Harvard from 1913 until 1924, and then was moved to Yale, where Edward S. Harkness had provided an endowment of $1,000,000 for the establishment of a university theater.

At Yale Prof. Baker, from 1925 until he retired in 1933, headed the first full-fledged school of the drama in all its contributing arts. In eight years it trained many of the current actors, stage managers, playwrights, critics, and producers.

WIFE OF BROKER, STRUCK BY AUTO, IS RECOVERING

Mrs. Lawrence A. Cuneo, 4812 North Winchester avenue, is recovering at the John B. Murphy hospital of injuries incurred Saturday night when she was struck by an automobile as she was crossing Sheridan road at Roscoe street. Mrs. Cuneo, the wife of a broker with offices at 111 West Washington street, suffered a possible fracture of the arm and cuts and bruises. Jacque Fumagally, 4157 Clarendon avenue, driver of the car which bore a 1934 license plate, was not held by the Lincoln park police when witnesses said the accident was unavoidable.

With no fatal accidents in Cook county since Saturday afternoon, the automobile death toll for 1935 remains at 8.

DEBUTANTE RESCUED BY LIFE SAVER
Society was stunned last night by the mysterious disappearance of Diane Lee from her own engagement party. The well-known heiress, it is said, left her guests for a midnight swim in the bay. She became exhausted, and when her screams were heard, a mysterious boat put out from shore rescued her, and then disappeared. Further news will be broadcast.

Miss Bertha Will Be Bride of Easterner

Family's Announcement Comes as Surprise.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD M. BERTHA of 181 Lake Shore drive announce the engagement of their daughter, Marjorie, to Orville H. Shell Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Orville H. Shell of New Rochelle, N. Y. This formal announcement carries with it distinct surprise as well as interest this morning for all but Miss Bertha's most intimate friends.

Unfortunately, Mr. Shell cannot be here as the news is being told but Miss Bertha will be seeing him on Wednesday for she is leaving tomorrow for New Rochelle to visit him and his parents.

Miss Bertha, familiarly known as "Moxie," is one of Chicago's most popular and attractive post-debs even though she has spent a great deal of time away from the city. After her debut at a dinner-dance at the Blackstone during the Christmas holidays of 1931 she continued her studies at Smith college, where she was graduated last June. She was prepared for college at the Girls' Latin school.

Mr. Shell prepared at Lawrenceville for Yale university where he was graduated in 1930. Three years later he received a degree from the law school of Harvard university. Now he is practicing law in New York City where he and Miss Bertha will make their home after their marriage in May or June.

After her visit with her fiancé and his parents the next fortnight, Miss Bertha plans to go on to Bermuda before returning to Chicago.

Boydens to Entertain for Ethel Johnston.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard N. Boyden are entertaining at dinner tonight in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Leidy Johnston, Mrs. Boyden's parents, for Miss Ethel Johnston. Miss Johnston, a debutante of the last season, is Mrs. Boyden's cousin. The young people will go on to see "Roberta" after dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyden will be among those entertaining at cocktails before the Bryn Mawr dinner for Miss Marion Park, president of Bryn Mawr, Friday night at the Casino. Among others who will organize small groups of friends to attend the dinner and hear Miss Park and Dean Lloyd Garrison of the University of Wisconsin law school speak are Mrs. William B. Hale, Mrs. Edward K. Welles, Mrs. F. Goddard Cheney, Mrs. John L. Cochran, whom Dean and Mrs. Garrison will visit over night in Chicago; Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. Stephen Gregory Jr., Mrs. Philip W. Moore, Mrs. Laird Bell and Mrs. Gilbert Scribner.

Interesting Events at Two Clubs.

Invitations in the week-end mail announce interesting events at both the Woman's Athletic club and the Arts club. Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., well known for her musical ability, is to give a program of music for two pianos with Mae Doelling Schmidt at 11 o'clock tomorrow at the Athletic club. A number of luncheons are being planned to follow the program.

The Arts club is inviting its members to a reception from 4 to 6 Friday, marking the opening of three exhibitions—paintings by Pavel Tchelitchew, drawings by Romaine Brooks, and oceanic sculpture. A second card from the Arts club calls attention to the fact that a lacker shrine holding three ancient Chinese bodhisattvas has been presented to the club by C. T Loo of Paris and New York in memory of the club's late president, Rue Winterbotham Carpenter. This will be displayed for the first time at the Friday reception.

Middlesex School Graduates to Meet.

Local graduates of the Middlesex school at Concord, Mass, parents and potential parents of eastern preparatory school boys are going to meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the TEN members of the Code Authority for the Fur Dealing Trades held a round robin meeting by long distance telephone Thursday afternoon. Conference—Anti-Superstitioners—Pilgrimage—Error. There is one Chicago member, Theodore G. Remer; a Minneapolis member, two St. Louis members, five New York members, and one member in Washington. All the members were on the telephone at the same time, the New York members listening at a loud speaker provided by the telephone company, but each with individual telephone connections so that he could speak his mind when urged.

Eddie Voynow, who relayed the item, says that the ten men talked for more than an hour, at a cost of about $200, and saved about $3,000, which it would have cost for a Washington meeting.

* *

THE second anniversary of the founding of the Anti-Superstition club will be observed by the members on Sunday, Jan. 13. This was brought to attention by the action of Nathaniel Leverone, chairman of the crime commission and president of the society, in writing to the secretary of state at Springfield to apply for a new automobile license. He wanted license number 13, or 1313, or 131313, he wrote. The secretary of state wrote back that he was indeed sorry, but that holders of those numbers clung to them tenaciously, and the best he could do in the way of a "13" license was to give him 13-323.

There are thirteen charter members in the Anti-Superstition club, including Judge R. Jerome Dunne, Charles Walgreen, Sr. and Jr., Charles Barney Cory, and Carroll Sudler Jr.

IN the morning mail. "Your story of the little girl's selection of a Christmas song in last week's TRIBUNE prompts me to relate the story I overheard. Jean, the 6 year old daughter of Representative L. M. Green of the Tenth district [who is a bitter opponent of the sales tax] was telling the story of Joseph and Mary to her small sisters, Julie and Joanne. Her narrative ran:

"'Joseph and Mary lived in the country and were very poor. They traveled a long way to Bethlehem to pay their sales tax.'"

DR. ERNEST F. TITTLE of the First Methodist church of Evanston and Mrs. Tittle held their annual New Year's reception to the members of the church this year we begin in leisurely fashion.

Two charming elderly ladies, stanch churchwomen in their mode of living, drove to the reception in a taxicab, and, not being certain of the number of the house, directed the driver to go to the 1800 block on Hinman avenue. Seeing a home from which an awning was stretched to the curb, the driver pulled up in front. The two women entered the house and a maid took their wraps and escorted them to the room for refreshments. While they were sipping a delicious pink drink that tasted even better than lemonade, they were astonished to see several women smoking. Then they realized that they were in the wrong house and that for the first time in their lives they had had a cocktail. They left precipitately and arrived at Dr. Tittle's home pretty flustered and afraid their host and hostess would smell liquor on their breath.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"Roberta," a superior article in the musical comedy line, reached Chicago last night at the Erlanger theater and confirmed the reports of all the folks who had seen it in New York. It is a musical comedy so slicked up and sophisticated and aware of the tricks of its trade that it might be called an operetta, particularly since it has a suave, admirably orchestrated score by Jerome Kern, my favorite composer for the lighter phases of the American stage.

This admirable diversion bears the trade mark of Max Gordon, its impresario, in its alert conduct, its smart costuming and its intelligent stage direction. Mr. Gordon is the champion window dresser of Broadway theatricals, and when a production leaves his hands at the dress rehersal it has an air of being in advance of its time. The shows that he turns out are smart, expensive and "civilized," and at the same time they never forget to provide a copious amount of sound and staple entertainment. Although unlike "The Cat and the Fiddle" and "Music in the Air," in certain ways "Roberta" is like those other Max Gordon achievements in its general effect. It has a sleek, easy charm and a casual opulence.

The story of this lyric romance, which comes out of Alice Duer Miller's novel "Gowns by Roberta," starts in a college fraternity house and settles down in a dressmaking establishment of "haut luxe" in Paris. Its hero is an All-American full back, regarded by his friends as none too bright, who inherits the couturier business from his aunt, Mme. Roberta; its heroine is that grand old lady's assistant, a mere working girl, but a Russian princess according to her pedigree.

Now all this cannot be proclaimed as highly original. There have been hundreds of dressmaking shops in the musical comedies of the past, and royal Cinderella girls have figured in countless libretti. But Max Gordon and his accomplished authors, plus the necessary technicians, contrive to make "Roberta" seem like a fresh and dewy novelty. They conjure up an atmosphere of reality for the familiar tale. The show conveys a well sustained illusion of reality.

The All-American full back might be Jay Berwanger; in fact, by a happy accident of casting, the player of the rôle, Raymond Middleton, vaguely resembles the pride and joy of the University of Chicago. The Russian princess and shop manager, as impersonated by the winsome and patrician Tamara [her only professional name], could fit into any colony of aristocratic emigrés from the bolshevik revolution.

This Miss Tamara, new to Chicago playgoers, gives a charming performance, puts a touch of light feeling into the sentimental phase of the story, and sings gracefully. To her falls the number that publicized "Roberta" so effectively in every cabaret show in the land during the past year—the soothing lilt called "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."

Fay Templeton, lyric star of the past generation, now 70 years old, plays the rôle of Mme. Roberta with rich and gentle effect, creating a striking character out of a few pages of dialog. Incidentally, this rôle establishes a new tradition in musical comery; Mme. Roberta dies in full view of the audience, but without tragic effect, at the end of the first act. This is the first time that the song-and-dance stage has recognized mortality.

Marty May, as a smart-talking dance band leader, and Sydney Greenstreet, as a portly British lord, are also contributors to "Roberta's" excellent interpretation. Odette Myrtil too must be mentioned for highly humorous conduct as a Parisian "vedette." In all of its many rôles, in fact, "Roberta" is exactly right.

Film Guild Demands NRA Fair Practices Hearing

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Demand for an immediate hearing on the rejected plea of the Screen Actors' guild for a code of fair practices for motion picture players is made in a lengthy brief to be filed with the National Recovery administration in Washington tomorrow. The brief is the result of the failure of meetings of actors and producers to bring about any amicable settlement here.

Heifetz Turns to Sonatas in Concert Here

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Having made the professional sacrifice of his first name, Heifetz, as he now prefers to call himself, would seem to have entered upon a new phase of his professional career. His program at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon consisted in about three-quarters of its length and at least seven-eighths of its artistic weight of sonatas, and his playing thereof fully fitted the program.

A great many notes have passed across the bridges since the time, back during the war, when this incredible young wizard of the violin began to come to Chicago and create ecstasies with the rapierlike harmonics of the "Valse Bluette" and similar marvels. Perhaps he still plays it, but yesterday he was much more interested in sonatas, the D minor by Brahms, the "Kreutzer" by Beethoven, which he played with Emanuel Bay at the piano, the G minor by Bach, which he played without accompaniment.

An incredible boy had retained all his incredible technical ability, but had grown up, and instead of rejoicing in golden tone and glittering accomplishment for their own sake had put them to work to reproduce and project what Brahms and Beethoven and Bach had set down in notes. The artistic stature of Heifetz was thereby increased and his honor will be the greater.

Two artists of the Chicago Grand Opera company inscribed their names in the early records of 1935 by giving recitals over the week-end. Sidor Belarsky, basso, appeared at Kimball hall Saturday night. In a program made up mostly of Russian composers, operatic and lyric, he made a pronounced impression both for the quality of his voice and his fine style of singing. The hall was crowded.

Another well filled house greeted Mario Fiorella, baritone, at the Studebaker yesterday afternoon. Here the program was largely Italian, although there was an interesting Chicago feature in the form of a group of songs with poems by Mrs. Frank G. Logan which had been set by Lulu Jones Downing and Louise Ayres Garnett. Mr. Fiorella is a singer who has accomplished much and who shows promise of accomplishing more. His voice is smooth, easy, and of attractive quality, and he interprets with a marked sense of the dramatic.

House Dresses Take a Turn at Style Spotlight

Tricky Sleeves, Collar Lines Get Attention.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SPICK and span, and as crisp as sugar cookies, are the more than cheerful cotton house dresses. If you have a yen for domesticity you'll grab these new models in a hurry.

Tricky sleeves that race right up the shoulders to form unusual raglan ideas, trickier collar lines with none of the old time plugginess that formerly ruined many a promising frock for a finicky shopper, plaits, tailored details, and short, snappy skirts mark every one of these delightful house frocks that deserve a much more alluring name. They're really knockout affairs.

There are some big checked numbers in vivid contrasts in cottony crash, some winners in bright, big plaids in seersuckers, and some striped models in candy stripes made with rows of buttons down the front, all of them as perky as the first spring flowers.

Deep oval yokes are outlined in frills of the material, round collars are accented with flippant little colored balls of yarn, and some of the more ambitious creations have simple little black velvet belts.

Watch the printed cottons that look for all the world like soft imported tweed materials, even the colors have been filched from the tweeds, with checks and double checks in such unusual color contrasts as yellow and blue, gray and blue, and all the beige tints.

Some imaginative designer really went to town with diagonal cottons, cutting the skirts with bias seams, and the results are as breath taking as the almost give away price tags pinned to every one of these very different and distinctive house dresses that will cause the most hardened gadabout to decide to stay at home for a while.

RED STEFAN

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, had lived as a boy on the large Russian estate of his stepfather, and grew up with a peasant couple and their large brood of children, until his mother got him an English tutor. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian in England. After the revolution in Russia, as Stefan Ivanovitch, he became a "secret observer" for England, adopting various peasant rôles to hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and is anxious to quit his hazardous work. He is escaping out of Tronsk when he meets and rescues Elizabeth Radin. She is the widow of an executed engineer. Though English her husband was half Russian. She is flying from the advances of Commissar Petroff, who is also anxious to obtain from her a secret formula of her husband's. Stephen takes her with him and tells her his history. They stop at the home of the grandparents of the peasant children Stephen had grown up with, who believe Stephen to be one of their many grandchildren. Stephen tells them Elizabeth is his wife and her name is Varvara. Akulina dislikes the frail woman, as she does Irina, a beautiful communist friend of Stephen's. Irina wanted Stephen herself and resents Elizabeth. Stephen knows she might prove dangerous. He and Elizabeth must get away. They travel by sledge with Yuri to Tronsk. Irina has departed for a nearby collective farm, and Stephen has learned Petroff is there.

INSTALMENT XIX.

A DANGEROUS SECRET.

Elizabeth looked away across the snow for some time. Little feathery clouds blew up from the horses' hoofs. The bells on the harness tinkled. The runners of the sledge made a soft crunching sound as they slid over the snow and pressed it down. There were no other sounds. Everything beyond them was cold, still, and empty—life, and growth, and fertility all frozen. But in Elizabeth herself they had suddenly, wonderfully quickened. The frost was all gone from her heart; just in one moment the last of it had broken and dissolved in a strange warmth and confusion of thought and feeling. She felt as if it were about to sweep her away. Her hands clasped one another beneath she sheepskins. She closed her eyes for a moment.

At once Stephen was asking her:

"What is it? What's the matter?"

She looked up at him, then, a strange, bewildered look.

"What were we talking about?"

"Are you all right? Why did you shut your eyes like that? We were talking about the formula."

"Yes," said Elizabeth, "the formula. You wanted it?"

She had quite forgotten why Stephen wanted it, and it did not matter in the least. She had a most overwhelming desire to give him whatever he wanted. If it had been the heart out of her breast, it would have been a little thing, and this longing to give would be still unspent. The formula was like a mere speck of dust caught in a torrent. If he wanted it, it was his. Whatever he wanted of her was his already, given with both hands and a heart that asked only to go on giving.

She beckoned them in, and shut the door again.

She told him the formula in a soft, steady voice, repeating it as she had learned it from Nicolas Radin's dry and shaking lips. Poor Nicolas! She thought of him with a great softness of pity. She said the words he had taught her without missing a syllable. She repeated the figures, the instructions, the explanatory details. How many hundreds of times had she said them over in her mind—as she walked along a lonely street, as she stood silent in the bread queue waiting for her poor ration, or at night whilst the old woman snored beside her in the dark? It was as if they had been frozen into the ice about her heart. Now, on this new warm flood, they came pouring out. Only she could still control her voice. The outpouring was in thought alone. The words came in a quiet, measured order, whilst her hands held one another hard and her eyes looked away across the snow to the gray horizon. For Elizabeth it flamed with all the jewel colors of sunrise.

He had produced pencil and paper. She found him looking at her with a gratified air.

"Do you mind saying it all over again? I want to write it down."

Elizabeth didn't mind how often she said it. She wanted to do what Stephen wanted her to do, and to unpack her mind of this dangerous secret stuff gave her a sense of pure relief. She gave the words and figures again with a slow, meticulous accuracy and watched him write them down.

When he had finished, she asked him:

"Where will you hide it?"

Lovely to feel that it was no longer any affair of hers. But just for curiosity's sake she might ask her question.

Stephen said, "Hush!" and bent a frowning face over the paper. His lips moved in a soundless mutter. He made horrible faces like a schoolboy.

Elizabeth regarded him with tenderness. Men never grew up. No, that wasn't it—the man you loved never grew up. Behind the grownup make believe there was the little dear funny boy whom his mother had loved. Perhaps some day there would be another little boy, very dear and funny, with bright blue eyes and an inky frown.

"How are you going to hide it?"

He burst out laughing and tapped his forehead.

"Here," he said, and began tearing the paper into tiny scraps which he tossed out upon the snow.

In the stable behind the tumble-down pothouse where Yuri unharnessed his horse it occurred to Elizabeth for the first time that she did not know where they were going. Perhaps at the back of her mind she had taken it for granted that they would go back to the room to which Stephen had taken her on that first night. It appeared, however, that she was mistaken. Stephen, when asked where they were going, said that he didn't know. After which he linked his arm in hers and marched her out into the street.

"Are we not going to the same place as before?"

He shook his head decidedly.

"No. It's not fit for you—and it's dangerous."

"Are we just going to walk about the streets?" said Elizabeth demurely. Stephen laughed.

"Would you like to? I don't trust you, you know. You might just slip away into the snow and get lost. There's not much more of you than a snowflake. Would you like some hot coffee?"

"I might like the moon."

He patted her arm.

"O, you'll get the coffee all right. Here—there's a shortcut down this alley. It takes us in by the back way."

"But in where?"

"It's a café. I'll have to leave you there whilst I go and prospect. I think I know some one who will lend us a room, but it might be dangerous to take you there till I'm sure the coast is clear."

They turned out of the alley into a yard. A path had been cut through the snow to a door in the wall of a ramshackle house. On this Stephen knocked. It was opened by a middle aged woman with a face heated and reddened by cooking. She beckoned them in, shut the door again, and began to scold Stephen for coming in that way. Talking and scolding all the time, she took them across the kitchen and up some steps, at the top of which she left them. The scolding voice retreated. They were in a narrow, dark passage where Elizabeth could see nothing. She pressed involuntarily against Stephen, and for a moment his arm came round her and held her there. He said something under his breath, but her heart beat so loudly that she lost the sense of what he said. It was just Stephen's voice which came to her, low and moved. And then a door in front of them was pushed open and a tall, thin man in the dress of a waiter stood aside to let them pass.

They came into a room with alcoves on either side and small tables everywhere. Stephen took her across to one of the alcoves, ordered coffee, and when the waiter had gone put the money to pay for it into her hand.

"Now all you've got to do is to sit here till I come back. Keep turned away from the room and drink your coffee. No one will notice you. I shan't be longer than I can help." He spoke in Russian, and his voice was as cool and practical as if there had never been that moment in the passage. Then he was gone, threading his way among the tables and disappearing through the door by which they had come.

Good Morning!

Here's the Barrie classic transformed into a charming, a finely executed photoplay. Too delicate, too elusive, perhaps, for mass appeal, but a cinema for which lovers of true art on the screen will give thanks.

Thought and intelligence are everywhere evidenced in this screened story of the little "meenister" of Thrums, who loved a gypsy, to the sorrow, horror, and dismay of his adoring parishioners.

You observe the cast and find each player in accord with his rôle. You are struck by the mastery of the direction. Your eye is charmed by scenery, costumes, and photography. The exquisite whimsy enchants and the quaint Scottish dialog falls on your ears like music.

A rave, says you. A rave, agrees I.

No attempt, praise be, has been made to modernize the story and the piece is sentimental without ever becoming maudlin. A triumph for director and players.

Katharine Hepburn invests the rôle of Babbie—created by Maude Adams in 1897—with the strange, eerie, lovely naturalness that distinguishes all her portrayals.

John Beal is immensely effective in the title rôle. Other outstanding characterizations are that of Andy Clyde as Wearyworld the village "polis" to whom nobody will talk, Alan Hale as the town drunkard, Rob Dow, and Billy Watson as little Micah Dow. In Billy behold still another marvelous child actor! Will the brilliant parade of infant prodigies never cease?

Here's one more picture I pray the Legion of Decency to support. Will the prayer go unanswered as it did in the case of "Babes in Toyland?"

Cimini Predicts Great Musical Future in Films

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Pietro Cimini, former Chicago Civic Opera conductor, who recently conducted the music for Tullio Carminati and Grace Moore's "One Night of Love," today said: "There is sufficient factual evidence at hand to warrant the prediction that 1935 will see the screen surpassing the stage in the presentation of fine music and grand opera. The screen enjoys a number of advantages over the stage. In the concert or operatic theater the listeners do not get the full value of a singer's voice, expression or personality, all of which weigh heavily in the dramatic presentation. This theater handicap hinges partly upon the practical handicap of seating. Only at the front seats of an opera can one get full value. The screen has the tremendous advantage that audiences may sit where they please, pay the same price for any seat and get full volume, quality, and scene all the time."

Cimini also said: "On the screen the orchestra volume is under complete control, but there is no manner of controling this on the opera or concert stage. By the judicious placing of microphones, the balance between the orchestra, the soloist, and the chorus can be made perfect for reproduction in sound pictures."

Miss Bertha Will Be Bride of Easterner

Family's Announcement Comes as Surprise.

Ambassador hotel to hear Winston B. Stephens, a representative of the school, tell about the fifteen new scholarships being offered by the school. The scholarships range in amount from a maximum of $950 to a minimum of $350.

These scholarships are to be awarded by competitive examinations held about March 1, 1935, and are aimed at obviating the danger that the student body will be confined to a narrowing circle of the sons of former graduates and their immediate friends, and to further assure the school a student body representing scattered localities. A second meeting of this character is to be held Wednesday evening at the Winnetka home of Frederick W. Copeland.

Middlesex graduates in and about Chicago include, Daniel H. Burnham, William C. Boyden, William H. Mitchell, James and Ralph Otis, Leonard C. Larrabee, Robert M. Roloson, and Samuel Rowe. There are a number of sons of prominent Chicago families now at Middlesex, including Spencer Otis Burnham, James Andrew King Sr., Loring W. Coleman Jr., Robert Edward Cudahy, Richard Mellier Burnes, Edward R. Ferris Jr., and John Smyth Nacey.

Miss Baumann to Give Tea for College Head.

Miss Nettie Baumann, president of the Chicago Smith College club, is opening her home at 530 Hawthorne place for a tea a week from tomorrow afternoon for Miss Virginia Judy Esterly, assistant to the president of Scripps college. Miss Baumann has asked a number of Smith alumnae to meet Miss Esterly and to hear her speak at 3:30 o'clock on "The Place of Human Relations in Education."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Peck Jr. and their twin sons, Bobby and Bill, arrived Friday to make their home in Chicago, much to the delight of Mr. Peck's parents, Col. and Mrs. Robert G. Peck. The young Pecks have been living in New York. Mrs. Peck Sr. is well on the way to recovery from an automobile accident last fall when she and Col. Peck were driving their niece, Miss Laura Moyer, to her eastern school.

Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum is so undecided about her future plans that she is even unable to tell a shoe clerk where to deliver a pair of shoes three weeks hence. Having returned from an extended stay abroad just before Christmas, she is now at the Lake Shore Drive hotel, but she isn't at all certain where she will be ten days from now. There is the lure of her farm near South Haven, also the lure of an immediate return to Europe to compete with the idea of remaining here. In all probability she will be back in Munich this spring, however, for she has been invited to tell an audience of Germans just what American women are like.

Masons Congratulated on Birth of Son.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold D. K. Mason of Winnetka are being congratulated on the birth of a son, Harrington Kerfoot Mason, on Dec. 28 at the Highland Park hospital. Mrs. Mason is the former Phyllis Harrington. Her mother, Mrs. Everett James Harrington of Newton Center, Mass., is visiting the Masons.

Miss Eloise Requa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Requa, returned to Bryn Mawr college at Bryn Mawr, Pa., yesterday. This year Miss Requa is doing graduate study and also working with the alumnae association. Her interest, however, in the Library of International Relations, of which she was the director, has not waned, for she spent a good portion of her holiday at the library.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Burns [Sarane Otis] have left Chicago temporarily for a combined business and pleasure trip to Montreal, New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, but they will be back here with Mrs. Burns' parents, the Ralph Otises, before they return to their Los Angeles home. Meantime Grandma Otis is enjoying having the Burns children with her. Mr. Burns will not have been here long when he returns, for he must get back to business on the west coast, but Mrs. Burns expects to remain for at least a month.

Dodds Unable to Visit Chicago.

To the regret of their many friends here Ambassador William E. Dodd and his daughter, Martha, will not come to Chicago before returning to Germany. They came to this country just before the holidays, spent Christmas in Virginia, and are now in Washington, with no prospects of returning to their home on the south side.

The most modern kind of a contest has been planned by Mrs. George W. Dulaney Jr. [Helen Hughes Dulaney] for the Emerson house ball a week from Friday night in the Joseph Urban room of the Congress hotel. From now until then Mrs. Dulaney and a committee will choose the most modern "streamlined" Chicago girl of 1935 from the point of view of hair, costuming, manner, and figure, and a modern prize will be awarded to the winner, who will be announced at the party.

The Carioca dance contest has been changed to one in which the Continental dance will figure, for many young-marrieds in town and in Lake Forest have been taking Continental lessons. The three winners of last year's contests, Walter Hoving, Walter Frazier, and Leif Buch, who is attached to the Danish consulate, have been asked to judge the dancing on the 11th.

These plans were announced at a tea at the Congress Friday which was given for the Emerson house board, and also for Mrs. Jacob Baur, who is sponsoring an afternoon and evening of bridge with Ely Culbertson under the auspices of the Women's National Republican club, on Jan. 17; and Miss Hope Hamilton Kaufman, daughter of the Harry L. Kaufmans. Miss Kaufman, who is a granddaughter of Mrs. William A. Hamilton of New York, is returning to Farmington for her last year. She will not be a debutante for another year or two. While the Kaufmans live in New York, they may be returning to Chicago to spend next winter here.

Something New in Lingerie

JUNIOR GIRL'S TAILORED LINGERIE.

Here is something new in a pantie and brassiere set, and it's so easily made, too, that it surely has an attraction. The deep pointed yoked panties fit snugly about the hips and have comfortably flaring legs. The fitted brassiere closes at the side.

A minimum of material is required and you surely can find lengths you can use at the remnant counters, effecting a considerable saving. Crêpe de chine, flat silk crêpe, and washable satin are the loveliest materials.

The pattern, No. 577, comes in sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19 years.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

SLAM DEVELOPMENT AFTER A THREE-BID.

I want to give another instance where the responding hand can take a constructive part in the bidding though at the same time denying possession of a card for which his partner is probing. In this case, he bids no trumps to invite a probe and save a round of bidding.

Sp. x x	Di. A K x x
Ht. x x x	Cl. K x x x

Your partner bids three hearts and your response is four diamonds. Now he bids four spades, calling for the king. He is also telling you that the hand is safe at five hearts, since you will have to bid this if that is your only way of denying the king of spades. In other words, either your diamond ace removes a loser or else he had only two losers from the start. Now if you bid five hearts, he cannot probe for a minor king except by bidding one of the minors at the six level, which may be too high in case you have no king in your hand. So, save a round of bidding and invite a probe, by bidding four no trumps over four spades. This says, "You have told me we are safe at five hearts; I am making it easy for you to call for a minor king without getting us beyond the five level in case I cannot supply the card you want; but I can supply at least one of the minor kings, otherwise I would sign the hand off now at five hearts and dispel any further hopes."

This Is How I Analyze the Situation.

If he now bids five clubs, then I know we are safe at six hearts, as I can show him the king of clubs by bidding six clubs. He still has a spade loser, since he earlier inquired about that king. He can still inquire about the king of diamonds if that card will give him seven. This move is not interfered with by the fact that I have already bid this suit to show the ace. If his third probe is a bid of six diamonds over my six clubs, I know that I must now bid seven diamonds to show that king, because he is asking me to do so; it means that a grand slam in hearts is sure, that only a first round ruff will beat it. I know now, from his "call" for it, that he needs the diamond king to take care of his spade loser. Lacking it, my bid would be six hearts, which would be our final contract. Having it, I obey the probe and bid seven diamonds and he bids seven hearts. He would bid in this manner with such a hand as

Sp. A x	Di. x
Ht. A K Q J x x	Cl. A Q J 10

These Opening Forcing Bids Are Your Tools; Respect Them But Select them with Foresight.

Do not shade your forcing bids and do not gamble on cards which you can get your partner to show or deny; but always remember that these bids are your servants, not your masters. Use and select them with your eyes open. One of my star teachers showed exquisite judgment and resourcefulness with this freak monster:

Sp. A K Q x x x	Di. —
x x x	Cl. A
Hts. A K

It was in a duplicate game, and she realized that every one would get at least to seven spades, and that this score would at best tie for bottom. The only way to beat it was either to play in seven no trumps if partner had the ace of diamonds, or to get doubled somehow, or both. She, therefore, bid three spades to locate the ace of diamonds. Her partner denied it. Now she probed for every king in the deck [other than spades] in such manner that her left-hand opponent, with the missing ace and the king, jack of clubs, thought she had gone haywire and muddled up the three bid, and so doubled her at seven spades, into which she appeared to stumble. Redouble. Tied for top. Had partner been able to show the ace of diamonds, she would have maneuvered similarly to try and be doubled at seven no trumps.

A Qualification.

Students of "Money Contract" will find, in the pre-1934 editions of that book, a ban against making a three bid if you have all four aces, or if there is no holding in your hand which lacks its ace. I did so because at that time I had not perfected, or was not ready to publish the "king-calling" feature. Now that you can so easily probe for kings, that ban no longer holds good. Make a three bid with four aces [provided your count of losers and your big suit meet the requirements] if the important thing is to probe for kings as soon as your partner has made the response you know is coming—three no trumps. Also with three aces and a void, make a three bid if that will suit your purpose, in view of the later developments available to you, more conveniently than a two-bid. With a choice between the two, select the one which will better facilitate your probing. Look ahead.

"Candies That Are Fun to Make," a booklet containing twenty-eight candy recipes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Chickens just love spaghetti, macaroni, and noodles. They don't, of course, when they're cluck-clucking about in the barnyard, but they certainly do when they become modest left-overs on the pantry shelf—longing for some kindly "extender" to turn them into a full meal again.

And there's nothing the spaghetti family likes better than to be able to show itself in company with an aristocratic chicken. It may happen in a casserole dish, a loaf, a soup, or a salad. But wherever this combination turns up it's certain to make most excellent eating. First proof airs itself under the name of Chicken Wiggle—why the name we can't guess.

CHICKEN WIGGLE.

2-3 cup cooked spaghetti
½ cup cream
½ cup milk
½ cup chicken stock
1 tablespoon butter
2 egg yolks, well beaten
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped walnut meats
½ cup peas
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup cut-up cooked chicken

Cook the spaghetti in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain. Meanwhile scald the cream, milk, and stock together. Add the beaten egg yolks, the butter, and the salt. Cook until the mixture thickens. Add the cubed cooked chicken, then the drained peas and the cut-up celery. Cook all until tender. Add this to the cooked spaghetti and beat thoroughly. Stir in the nuts and serve hot over toast triangles.

Then comes a dish with a touch of the tango and a nice stout dose of chili powder.

MEXICAN CHICKEN.

2 cups minced cooked chicken
1 tablespoon chili powder
2 tablespoons butter
2 hard cooked eggs, chopped
1 small bottle stuffed olives, sliced
1 small onion, minced
2½ cups canned tomatoes
Salt to taste

Cook the spaghetti until tender in boiling, salted water. Line a buttered baking dish with the spaghetti, curling it around the edges of the dish. In the center arrange alternate layers of chicken, sliced eggs, and sliced olives. Fry the minced onion in the butter, then add the tomatoes and chili powder. When it is thoroughly heated pour this over the spaghetti and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 25 to 30 minutes.

Or just to be different catch your chicken before it becomes a left-over and present it to the family in a fricassee, all glorified with egg noodles. This is the way of it:

EGG NOODLES WITH FRICASSEE OF CHICKEN.

1 package wide egg noodles
1 chicken
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2½ cups chicken stock
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Prepare the chicken by dressing, cleaning, and cutting it up in the conventional sections for serving. Cover the pieces with boiling water and cook slowly until tender, adding salt to season when about half done. Drain the chicken from the broth, sprinkle it with salt and pepper, then dredge with flour. Sauté it in hot fat in a frying pan until golden brown on all sides. Boil down the stock to 2½ cups. Meanwhile cook the noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Arrange the hot fried chicken on a heated platter with the noodles around it. Make a sauce by browning the flour and butter, adding the stock and seasoning it with salt and pepper. Just before serving pour the sauce over the noodles and chicken.

Macaroni and chicken salad is our closing tip. One-half package of cooked and chilled elbow macaroni may be tossed together with two cups of diced, cooked chicken, one cup of chopped celery, and one tablespoon each of minced onion and chopped green pepper. You will need about one teaspoon of salt and one-quarter teaspoon of paprika for seasoning. Blend all these with one-half cup or more of mayonnaise and drop lightly into crisp lettuce cups. Garnish the salad with olives or pickles and serve well chilled.

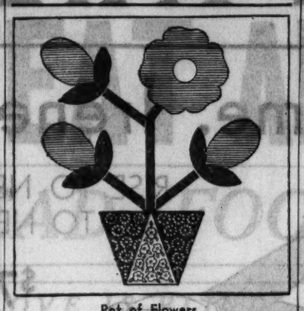
Scraps from the Rag Bag Used for This Quilt



Pot of Flowers.

By NANCY CABOT.

A "Pot of Flowers" is one of the first of our spring patterns presented in compliance with requests for floral designs which we find in our mail, as is usual at this time of the year. One of the most delightful considerations concerning this applique pattern is that one does not of necessity make any two alike. Flowers and flower pots, in any harmonious shades, may be made from scraps salvaged from our rag bag.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Youngsters Can Benefit from Better Posture

The Slovenly Carriage Is Detrimental.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

This is for you young things who seem to think all the talk of posture and body molding applies to the old mamas whose day you think is done except for dieting and learning the latest contract bridge rules.

You're the ones to listen to posture talk, because you're the real offenders. You haven't fat stomachs and waddly hips to bear you down. Sometimes you haven't enough weight to do right by your dance frock, nor your school jersey, for that matter. But how with those supple young bones and muscles of yours you can get so out of shape is just amazing! I think of one of your contemporaries, a Miss known to me, who doubles up like a jacknife when she sits down and when she walks she looks as if she were about to fall apart.

What manner of thinking among you young ones is it that influences the caved in chest, the hunched over back! Somehow, difficult as it would be for an older woman to try to copy, you manage the most amazing stomach bulge with the caved in cest and rounded shoulder.

Pull back that abdomen, pull up that chest, straighten your chin and stretch yourself up tall, and with your indisputable other youthful contours, you'd simply be the world's ten best looking girls rolled into one. You youngsters haven't any idea of what you have.

You have the clothes, as all you young ones manage the latest, smartest styles, somehow. You have everything—everything BUT. But posture! This youngster of whom I speak comes down on those small feet of hers as if out for the heavyweight cup. How one so flesh-unburdened can make so much noise is a wonder.

Come on now, young women, drop the mascara and the lipstick for a minute and see what you can do about touching up that raggedy-Ann carriage of yours!

Don't Look for a Moral Sense in Young Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

The young voice came floating up as I sat near the window writing.

"Dat's Mrs. Brown's house. I broke her window. They had a drate deal of trouble putting the glass in again." You could hear the quotation marks. "It's fun to break windows, but I dess I won't do it any more."

I stood up so I could look out. There they were, looking up at the house—three little gnomes—for that's what they look like in their winter outfits. Not any of them over 4—the youngest offering his bland explanation of a recent adventure.

I don't believe there's a child living—certainly not a boy—who hasn't longed at some time to break a window. It's such a satisfying noise—the smash and tinkle of glass. And it's so easy to do it.

This small one probably had the time of his life—first whacking at the glass with such gratifying, crashing results—then the excitement of people running to see what it was all about—then the conversations about the trouble it made, and last, watching the fascinating job of cutting a new one and puttying it in. There was no sense of wrongdoing about this, even though he recognized the disapproval it called down on his head, and decided that the game wasn't worth the candle.

It is this angle on small children's doings that mothers could remember to their advantage. The young child has no moral sense. He does not know right from wrong. And this applies to all his acts.

What he does understand and what regulates his behavior to a large extent is the approval and disapproval of those he loves. He doesn't know from within himself that things are right or wrong, but he knows from without that certain things may or may not be done. When he is small we can accomplish our training through the use of approval and, less frequently, disapproval, and by appealing to his intelligence—but not by expecting him to know the intrinsic difference between right and wrong. Understanding this will change your attitude toward, and therefore the handling of, your child.

Beware of Colds NOW!
With Flu in the Air
Colds Are Doubly Dangerous

COLDS—always treacherous—are doubly dangerous now, with flu reported in many sections. Colds lower body strength and often pave the way for flu and other serious ills. Heed even the slightest sniffle as a danger signal. It's no time to take needless chances.

The safest course to follow is that outlined in the famous Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds. The Plan's effectiveness in helping its followers to greater freedom from colds has been clinically tested by practicing physicians—and proved in every-day home use by millions. Full details of the Plan are in each Vicks package. Briefly, it is this:

TO HELP PREVENT COLDS: At the first sniffle, sneeze or nasal irritation—quick!—use Vicks Va-tro-nol . . . a few drops up each nostril. The timely use of Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off other colds in their early stages.

TO HELP END A COLD: If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, vigorous measures are necessary. At bedtime rub on Vicks VapoRub, the modern external treatment for colds. Its double direct action—by Stimulation and Inhalation—soothes inflamed membranes—loosens phlegm—eases the breathing—helps break congestion.

(NOTE—FOR ADDED PROTECTION: When flu is in the air, it is a wise precaution to gargle, night and morning, with Vicks Voratone Antiseptic. Voratone thoroughly cleanses the oral cavity, and aids in defense against infection which enters through the mouth.)

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

BITS about beauty:

If your hair is gray, prematurely or otherwise, be wary about the looks of your eyes. Take the housekeeping money and spend it on the glorification of those orbs. Have the brows and lashes darkened if they're pale; avoid strain so the eyes won't be bloodshot and droopy, and above all, keep the line of your brows becoming and well groomed. Gray hair is an asset if the eyes are young—and they can be made to look young if you know your beauty onions.

And if you've fallen for the Hepburn fringe—no reason why you shouldn't if the style suits you—mind the eyebrow line as you never did before. There is something about bangs that make the brows stand out in a large way.

The zero weather is hard on the girls in more ways than one. Skins act up generally and the chapped flesh where the galoshes end is something to worry about. Put some of your favorite makeup foundation on the skin above your ankles and all will be well. A foundation serves as a protective and puts an end to chafing. Before you go to sleep, when you cold cream the face, remember to rub some cream on your legs; you'll be much more comfortable next day.

And speaking of galoshes and cream, it isn't a half bad idea to cream your feet, especially if those feet spend a good part of the day encased in galoshes. A lavish creaming every night softens the skin and eases up the stress of wear and tear.

HARVARD NAMES HARLOW HEAD FOOTBALL COACH

Quits Job at Western Maryland.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Harvard's 60 year old graduate football coaching policy was abandoned tonight when Richard C. [Dick] Harlow, who learned his football at Penn State and taught it there, at Colgate and at Western Maryland, was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Eddie Casey, one of Harvard's immortals.

The official announcement of Harlow's appointment came more than 24 hours before the committee on the regulation of Harvard's athletics was scheduled to hold its regular January meeting. This committee, which includes representatives of the alumni, faculty and student body, usually meets on the first Monday of the school year months.

Selects Own Assistants.

Harlow's appointment, announced by Athletic Director William J. Bingham, was evidently approved at a special meeting, about which the committeemen declined to talk. Bingham also would not comment on Harlow's salary, whether he was given a contract or any other arrangement made with him.

He will have, however, the entire responsibility of selecting his assistants, a concession that will probably force the withdrawal of Adam Walsh, former Notre Dame star, and Ohio State's Wes Fesler from active participation in football at Harvard.

The appointment of the highly successful Western Maryland coach closely followed the blast that Bingham gave big time football during recent New York meetings. Harlow's background, however, appears to place him in the ranks of the so-called career coaches, which means a successful one, despite his recognized ability in the fields of ornithology and botany, which he entered after gaining the degree of master of science from Penn State in 1913.

Bingham Is Happy.

Harlow will probably come to Cambridge without a contract of any sort, for, Bingham pointed out, it is Harvard's policy to engage coaches on a permanent basis without a contract, rather than from year to year. It is likely that Harlow's salary will exceed the $8,500, less the 10 per cent general wage cut suffered by all Harvard A. A. employés, that was paid to Casey.

"I am very happy," Bingham said, "that Mr. Harlow is the unanimous choice of the Harvard athletic committee. He comes to Harvard well qualified to coach our football teams."

Harlow played tackle at Penn State from 1908-'11. In his senior year he blocked 17 punts in seven games.

He became head coach at Penn State in 1912 and remained there until 1921, when he was engaged by Colgate. He stayed in Hamilton for five seasons and, in 1926, moved on to Western Maryland where he served as head football coach and athletic director until his Harvard appointment.

APPOINTMENT WAS SUDDEN.

Westminster, Md., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Robert Gill, chairman of the alumni athletic committee at Western Maryland college, said tonight he and his associates were "very sorry" to see Coach Dick Harlow leave, but "no one wishes to stand in his way."

Harlow, at his Westminster home, said the "suddenness of the offer" had left his future plans uncertain. He said he would "go to Cambridge in about a week to confer with Harvard athletic authorities."

Since he came to Western Maryland nine years ago his teams have won sixty-one games, tied seven, and lost thirteen. They have scored 1,742 points during the period to 368 for opponents. Last season Western Maryland won eight games, tied one, and lost none.

Hungarians Sweep Matches With U. S. Table Tennis Stars

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Viktor Barna and Sandor Glancz yesterday gave the best table tennis show ever presented in Chicago. The two Hungarians, who monopolized the world singles and doubles championships, swept through seven matches against a team of the best American players without the loss of a game in a series played in the afternoon and evening at the Stevens hotel.

The visitors disposed of Jimmy McClure, national champion; William Condy, ranked No. 2 in the United States; Coleman Clark, Max Rushakoff and Edward Dugan in singles matches, and overcame Paul Pearson and Edwin Lewis, former American champions, in a doubles encounter.

Victory Is No Surprise.

The victory of the visitors was no surprise, even to the most optimistic followers of the home team. A capacity crowd filled the hotel's ballroom to learn the answer to two questions—what chance has 18 year old Jimmy McClure in his forthcoming quest of the world's championship, and what does table tennis look like at its best?

The answer to the first question gave considerable optimism to the followers of the Indianapolis youngster, who finished first in the recent American eliminations for the world's championship event. He will go to London next month to compete for the title and then will go on a playing tour of Europe.

McClure Will Improve.

In his first attempt yesterday at international competition, Jimmy held Glancz to scores of 21-10, 21-15, and Barna to 21-16, 21-16. Most experts were of the opinion that with the experience McClure will gain in the next few months he will develop to a point where he can cause plenty of worry to the best in the world.

On numerous occasions in the course of the afternoon and evening the spectators were interrupted in their investigation of the second question—what does table tennis look like at its best? These interruptions were caused by storms of applause which shook the room as Barna and Glancz made almost magical shots.

The afternoon and evening programs were climaxed by exhibition matches between the two Hungarians, Barna being victorious in both. He won the first, 21-18, 21-15, 22-20, and the second, 21-11, 17-21, 21-18, 15-21, 21-15.

Glancz Is No Stooge.

The scores made it clear that Glancz was no mere stooge for the champion, and that fact was even more apparent to those who watched them play. Barna stood ten feet behind the table, slapping shot after shot within three inches of the baseline, while Glancz went through intricate acrobatics returning them. Both players frequently raced far back or to the side to fish the flying ball from the neighborhood of their shoestrings.

Summaries:

AFTERNOON MATCHES.

Viktor Barna beat William Condy, 21-17, 21-13.
Viktor Barna and Sandor Glancz beat Paul Pearson and Edwin Lewis, 21-19, 21-17.

EVENING MATCHES.

WILDCATS OPEN BIG TEN SEASON AT WISCONSIN

Chicago Battles Iowa at Iowa City Tonight.

Games Tonight

Ohio State at Michigan.
Purdue at Illinois.
Northwestern at Wisconsin.
Chicago at Iowa.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Wisconsin, having failed to defeat Purdue Saturday night by virtue of a last minute free throw by Shaver which gave the Boilermakers a 19 to 18 victory, turns its attention to Northwestern tonight. The Wildcats, finishing in a tie with Wisconsin for second place last season behind the championship Purdue five, are rated with Purdue in the current race.

Before Northwestern, despite a preschedule record of six consecutive victories, can have occasion to foster title hopes, it must beat Wisconsin, always a hardy crew on the home court. In other words tonight's game may be all important despite the fact that it is the first of 12 Big Ten contests for the Wildcats. If the advance guessing that Purdue and Northwestern are the outstanding quintest is correct, the series between the schools will be the high point of the season.

How About Gophers?

This prediction will draw criticism from Iowa and Indiana, in particular, while the adherents of Minnesota also may come to the front with assertion of Gopher importance in the coming race. Indiana whipped Illinois at Champaign Saturday night, 32 to 28, while Iowa coasted to an easy triumph over Ohio State at Iowa City, 32 to 21. The Gophers defeated Notre Dame Saturday night, 30 to 28, scoring 16 points on free throws while fashioning the victory.

Iowa seems almost certain to add another victory tonight at the expense of Chicago, which lost a practice game Saturday to Marquette, 28 to 24. The Maroons, with Bill Haarlow back in scoring form, may possibly upset Iowa, but the odds certainly favor the Hawkeyes. Ohio State visits Michigan tonight and since Michigan won twice from State last year and has an improved team this year, it would seem that the Wolverines would win.

Purdue Plays Illini.

The other game on tonight's Big Ten schedule is Purdue at Illinois. The Illini always have been a difficult team for the Boilermakers to defeat. Purdue lost two games last year, and one of them was to Illinois, 27 to 26, in the last game of the season.

Northwestern's problem tonight will be to penetrate the Badger defense which held Purdue to six field goals. Lyle Fisher, who has averaged 17 points a game for six preliminary contests against Carleton, Wabash, Pittsburgh, Notre Dame, Michigan State, and Butler, may not have the same success against Wisconsin. If, however, he can continue this phenomenal scoring pace, he seems a likely candidate to break the conference scoring record of 167 points now held by Joe Reiff, former Northwestern star.

Big Test for Purple.

Al Kawal, senior guard, is the other veteran on the team. With them Coach Dutch Lonborg has placed three sophomores, Duke Vance, guard; Jess McAnally, center, and Guy Mercer, forward. McAnally is the team's second scoring threat, while Vance has improved on his long distance shooting. The Northwestern team is tall, averaging 6 feet 2 inches. It is faster than any team in the last three or four years, but will be handicapped by inexperience of the three new players. Wisconsin's defense, always exceptional, will test Northwestern more thoroughly than any game this season.

Sid Rosenthal, former Marshall High school star, is one reason why Iowa defeated Ohio State handily in the opener. Rosenthal scored four field goals and three free throws. Iowa meets Northwestern, but doesn't have Purdue on its schedule. The first Iowa-Northwestern game is Saturday night at Evanston. The return game is the last of the season for the Hawkeyes, while the Wildcats finish five days later against Purdue.

HAWKS FIGHT TO PREVENT TYING GOAL

Tense action in the final minutes of the Blackhawk-New York American game at Madison Square Garden last night, when the Hawks defeated the Americans, 2 to 1. Johnny Gottselig, Hawk star, is diving in front of Goalie Chabot in a futile effort to get the loose puck (directly in front of Chabot) as Smith of the Americans comes in to pick up a rebound. Eddie Burke of the Hawks is getting ready to bump Smith and Art Weibe (No. 2), also of the Hawks, is skating in to help his mates.

Kearney Makes Cavalcade 3-1 in Santa Anita Race

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Cavalcade today was made a 3 to 1 favorite in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, to be run at Los Angeles Feb. 23, in the book of Tom Kearney, St. Louis betting commissioner. The horse was given 8 to 5 to place and 4 to 5 to show. Twenty Grand and Equipoise were second choices, each offered at 4 to 1 to win, 2 to 1 to place, and even to show.

Team Entries Swell Totals in Silver Skates

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The work of tabulating the lists of entries for the eighteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies will not be concluded probably until Wednesday. As usual, many waited until the last day or so to send in their names. The last of these will not arrive until this morning's mail. They will be accepted if the letters are postmarked prior to Sunday, midnight.

In Saturday's mail was a number of team entries. Among them were Byrne field, Joseph Quinn, instructor; Woodhull playground, Henry Brennan, director; Audubon playground; B. Premack, director; Belding playground, Otto Kaecke, instructor; Avondale playground, William Mayhercy, instructor; Kohn playground, William J. Callahan, director; Brentano playground, William H. Horschke and Alice B. Rentz, instructors.

Records Likely to Fall.

The skaters from these playgrounds have been practicing for several weeks and the prediction that the records for the younger groups of boys and girls will be broken this year sounds quite plausible in view of the amount of time all have had to prepare for the races Saturday and Sunday at the Waveland avenue arena which is one block north of Addison street and east of Sheridan road.

The Northwest Skating club, one of the oldest organizations in Chicago, which always has produced spendid skaters will have a team of 15 in the men's senior division for those 18 years of age and over. Leading contenders in this group are Cornie Ewert, Wallace Fee Jr., Vic Ronketti, Clyde Ratza, and Bud Gillespie. Rudolph Notz, secretary of the Northwest Skating club, also has entered contestants in three of the other four divisions for boys and in both of the classes for girls. Marvin Thomson, who won the 1934 boys' midget championship, will compete in the boys' juvenile class this year.

Remember Reporting Hours!

Now that the list of eligible contestants has been received, the hours of reporting for racing numbers must be kept in mind. Failure to report on time means forfeiture of the right to compete. Boys in the midget, juvenile and junior classes, in other words all boys under 16 years of age, will skate in their preliminary heats on Saturday afternoon starting at 2 o'clock. However, they must report at the Waveland avenue field house between 12 and 1:30 for their numbers.

All other contestants will receive their racing numbers on Sunday between 10:30 and 1 o'clock. The first race on Sunday afternoon will start at 1:30.

3D PERIOD GOAL BY GOTTSELIG DECIDES GAME

March Scores First; Ed Burke Ties It.

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The Chicago Blackhawks made full use of a couple of breaks and their great defensive strength to defeat the New York Americans, 2 to 1, tonight for their second National Hocky league victory in as many nights. The victory gave Chicago a three point lead over the Boston Bruins, from whom they took the American division lead Saturday. They left tonight for Chicago, where they meet the Detroit Red Wings Tuesday.

With 13,000 fans urging them on the Americans made a game uphill battle, but couldn't crack the combination of Chicago's careful defensive play and Lorne Chabot's steady goal tending. The Hawk net minder saved seventeen shots in the final period when penalties twice left his team shorthanded.

Gottselig's Goal Wins.

The Hawks took the lead on Mush March's goal in the second period, but Eddie Burke tied it for the Americans early in the final period. Shortly afterward Johnny Gottselig scored the winning goal on a pass from Howie Morenz.

The Americans spurted right at the start and handed Chabot a couple of hard shots. After several futile attempts, Thompson slapped a long one which gave Worters a tough save.

Schriner, Carr and Chapman opened with flashy passing and Trudell replied with some dangerous long-range sniping. For a while the Hawks merely went through the motions, shooting from the center zone and skating as slowly as possible. Their defense forced the Americans to follow their pace.

The Hawks put a little more life into the proceedings after Morenz and March appeared again, but they took as few risks as possible. With about two minutes to go, Dutton tripped Morenz and drew the first penalty. Still the Hawks didn't open much and before they got close Cook was benched for a cross check.

McVeigh Leads Rush.

Both offenders took their seats on the penalty bench as the second period started, but Dutton had only four seconds to serve. McVeigh stepped in for a rush that gave the Hawks a couple of bad moments before Cook left the box.

The Hawks scored on a sudden, surprising scramble after the lines changed. Morenz sent a forward pass to Gottselig, who overskated the net, then tried a backhand shot. The puck bounced far out to March, who fired a long one into the cage.

McVeigh and Himes tore in to start the third period, but Normie didn't have time to get off his finishing shot. Chicago got one chance when Thompson intercepted a pass and fired a long one.

After 4:11 the Americans scored on a mass play in front of the cage. Conn got the puck behind the cage, took plenty of time to pass from behind the corner, and sent the puck out. Burke, just over the line and apparently tied up by two defense men, managed to get his stick around and send the puck into the far side of the cage.

Schriner Misses Chance.

The Americans ripped the Chicago defense to pieces in the next couple of minutes, but Chabot was equal to the occasion with several fine stops. Morenz made a couple of flashy returns before Brydge's body check made him decide to take a rest.

Schriner and Carr nearly scored on their first attack after the lines shifted. They were forced back once, but when Schriner tried it again he was tripped by Coulter, who was penalized.

Schriner missed a great chance when Chabot batted the puck to him on Chapman's rebound in a five-man attack. The Hawks finally cleared and staved off further assaults.

Oliver and Morenz became entangled, but Howie managed to get the puck over to Gottselig in front of the net. No one was near him and Johnny sent it home. The Americans protested that the puck had glanced off Referee Goodman's skate before going to Gottselig, but they couldn't convince the officials.

SS. PETER-PAUL TAKES 1ST PLACE IN C. Y. O. LEAGUE

Sectional leaders in both heavyweight and lightweight divisions came through safely in yesterday's play in the Catholic Youth organization boys' basketball league as a card of 105 games completed first round activity. The second round will get under way next Sunday afternoon.

Play in the girls' league will continue during week nights, with the exception of Saturday.

In yesterday's games, the outstanding contest of the day saw the high scoring quintet in the league, SS. Peter-Paul, South Chicago, gain undisputed possession of first place in the south section, defeating St. Michael's, 25 to 22. At St. Mel's gym, Epiphany also took the west section lead by whipping St. Mel's, 36 to 18. Scores:

ENGLEWOOD, DAMEN LOSE

Defeat of Englewood by Calumet in the south division and the turning back of Damen by Cardinal in the west featured an afternoon of upsets yesterday in the Knights of Columbus Basketball league.

Calumet, trailing 13 to 7 at the half, put on a great rally to overtake Englewood, led by Turney, Byrne, and Myza. The victory put Calumet back in the running for divisional honors, as Loyola-Hyde Park, leading the division, also was beaten, losing its first contest to Quigley, 42 to 27. Lineups:

Cardinal, defeated in its first five starts this season, broke into the victory column in the West division of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league when it handed Damen, the division leader, its first defeat of the year, 36 to 28. The game climaxed a card of four upsets in which Tonti defeated Hughes, Barry lost to Lafayette, and Hennepin beat Setters. In all four games the winners trailed at half time. Damen was handicaped by the absence of several of its stars, but with the score tied and only three minutes to play, Cardinal forged ahead easily. Lineups:

WINGS' OPENING DRIVE DEFEATS CANADIENS, 6-2

Detroit Scores 5 Times in First Round.

Detroit, Mich, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Scoring five goals within five minutes in an opening period burst, Detroit's Red Wings tonight handed the Montreal Canadiens a 6 to 2 defeat in a National Hocky league match before 10,000 spectators.

There never was any doubt about the outcome after the first period was three-quarters finished. Desse Roche's shot, after a pass from Starr, beat Wilf Cude, former Wing goalie, in 8:09, and within five minutes and two seconds the Wings added four more goals.

Then the Deluge.

Earl Roche scored the second Wing goal on a pass from Aurie, after which Aurie, Foster, and Sorrell scored to end one of the speediest attacks ever seen in Olympia arena.

Pete Lepine, veteran Canadien forward, made both Montreal scores, beating Roach in the second period after Aurie had scored the Wings' sixth goal, and then scoring again after twenty-three seconds of play in the final period. Both of Lepine's goals were unassisted.

Roach Has Nineteen Stops.

Roach had only 19 stops, while Cude kicked out 33, of which 18 were in the opening period. Only seven penalties were handed out, four going against the Wings. Lineup:

MONTREAL [2].		DETROIT [6].
Cude	G	Roach
Carson	R. D.	Goodfellow
Savage	L. D.	Young
Lepine	C	Weiland
Larochelle	R. W.	Aurie

Canadiens—Runge, Mantha, Crutchfield, Riley, Raymond, McGill, Mondou, Goldsworthy, Bourgault.

FIRST PERIOD.

Scoring—D. Roche [Starr], 8:09; E. Roche [Aurie], 9:45; Aurie [Lewis], 11:24; Foster [Anderson], 12:10; Sorrell [Boyd], 13:11.

Penalties—Riley, Lepine, Anderson, Sorrell.

SECOND PERIOD.

Penalties—Young, Savage.

THIRD PERIOD.

Scoring—Lepine, :23.

Penalty—Buswell.

Armour Tied by Klein in Miami Golf

Miami, Fla., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Willie Klein of Miami Beach shot a 71 in the second round today to overtake Tommy Armour, Chicago, for the leadership of the Miami open golf tournament.

Each had 139, one under par, at the half way mark. Armour, who turned in a 66 in the first round, slipped to 73 today.

Dave Tosh, Chicago, was second with 141 and Joe Turnesa, West Hartford, Conn., third, with 142. Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, Va., who shot a 68 for the best score of the day, Ralph Stonehouse, Indianapolis, and John Maluti, Youngstown, O., were next with 143s.

Arnold Minkley of Cleveland, O., led the amateur field at the halfway mark with 75—73—148. He held a four stroke lead over his closest challenger, Sam Anderson of Kenosha, Wis. Larry G. Ropes of Chicago and Coral Gables, who led the first day amateur play with a 73, shot an 85 today.

Armour and Klein will pace a field of 65 pros and 10 amateurs in the final 36 holes tomorrow. Pros qualified at scores of 152 or less and the amateurs at 158 or less out of a field of 174, the largest number ever to participate in a Miami open tournament during the last eleven years.

GUNNAR OIMEN WINS WHITEHALL SKI TOURNAMENT

Whitehall, Wis., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Chicago and Minnesota riders today captured major honors in the Whitehall Ski club's third annual tournament. A crowd of about 4,000 witnessed the meet.

Gunnar Oimen of the Norge club, Chicago, won the class A event with leaps of 144 and 150 feet to score 112.10 points. Harry Trigillis, his teammate, was second with 146 and 156 foot leaps for 108.80 points. Sverre Fredheim of the Norwegian-Americk Athletic club, Minneapolis, scored 107.80 points on leaps of 145 and 163 feet for third place.

Harold Olson, Redwing, Minn., won the class B event with 94.45 points on leaps of 112 and 127 feet. Hugo Guetteler of the Norge club was second with 92.80 points on 108 and 125 foot jumps, and Erick Sollid of the Hoofers club, Madison, Wis., third with 90.70 points on leaps of 103 and 117 feet.

Berger Lund of Whitehall won the senior event with 100.75 points on leaps of 124 and 133 feet. Karl Nilsen of Chicago was second with 99.30 points. He had jumps of 125 and 131 feet.

WILLAMAN WINS FEATURE AUTO RACE AT ARMORY

Tony Willaman of Chicago won the 20 lap race, the main event of the indoor automobile program at the 124th Field Artillery armory last night. Ted Hartly beat out Jimmy Rogers for second place.

Rogers, however, won four other events on the card of eleven races. Hartly took third honors, winning the handicap race and two other events at five and ten laps.

Richard, Eddie Krems Win Brothers' Bowling Tourney

Richard and Eddie Krems yesterday shot 1,230 to win the 21st annual Brothers Two Man bowling tournament at the 131 South Recreation. Other leaders were: L. and W. Schultz, 1,215; J. and A. Plunge, 1,207; Joe and John Brichetto, 1,206; Chris and Pete Peterson, 1,204, and A. and R. Triebes, 1,194. High game of 433 went to A. and E. Billings.

MOON MULLINS—BIRDS OF A FEATHER

"A GOLD MINE!" IT LOOKS MORE LIKE A CANARY TO ME.
RIGHT! IT IS A CANARY, A GEN-U-WINE PATAGONIAN PINK CANARY! ONE OF THE ONLY TWO IN CAPTIVITY, LORD PLUSHBOTTOM - THERE'S THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS, MAYBE MILLIONS IN THEM BIRDS.
ALL WE GOTTA DO IS BUY THIS BABY'S MATE FROM A OLD SAILOR, THEN LET THE MOTHER BIRD SET ON THE EGGS AND—
WHY DOES TH' MOTHER BIRD SET ON THE EGGS ANYWAY?
BECAUSE SHE AINT GOT A ROCKIN' CHAIR, KAYO!
THEN THE BIRDS THAT HATCH OUT OF THE EGGS WILL LAY MORE EGGS AND THOSE EGGS WILL HATCH MORE BIRDS AND—
GOOD NIGHT, NURSE! IT'D BE A PITY IF ANYTHING EVER HAPPENED TO ME— THEN THERE WOULDN'T BE A BRAIN IN THE WHOLE MULLINS FAMBLY.

SMITTY—THE BLOCKADE

HULLO, THERE
HELLO MR. KING, YOU BETTER LET ME PUT YOUR HORSE IN THE BARN - IT'S SNOWING HARD
I'LL HAVE ANOTHER CUP OF TEA, MARY - IT'S A REAL TREAT SITTING HERE WITH YOU
BUT YOU SHOULDN'T HAVE COME IN THE STORM, ROGER WELL, I MUST BE GOING NOW, MARY - I ONLY WISH I COULD STAY LONGER LOOKS LIKE YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE YOUR WISH, MR. KING - IT'S TURNED INTO A BLIZZARD OUTSIDE!

WAKE MAIL BOX.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 6.—Dear Wake: As an alumnus of Old Purdue, birthplace of the present Big Ten, I have begun to doubt the fairness of the recent vote on the most valuable player. . . . Purdue has never won it and perhaps never will when you consider such players as Welch, Moss, Purvis, Harmeson, Wilcox, Horstmann and others falling by the wayside. What chance has she for the future? Exactly none.

Purvis vs. Lund. Minnesota could and did win without Lund and that is something. Purdue could not do anything without Purvis. As to the actual ability of the two men after seeing them in action several times, my choice is Purvis by a considerable margin. What then governs the votes? . . . Publicity which is always favorable to the larger schools plays too big a part in the final outcome.

Boilermaker, '26.

Instead of a new football coach at Northwestern, real need is for a change in personnel of the athletic committee. Control should be taken from the faculty and vested in men who are practical rather than academic, and who have a background of business experience and common sense. Such men as W. A. Dyche, John H. Hardin, Thomas A. Harwood, Harry L. Wells and many others of like caliber could be selected who would be a credit to any institution and who would be invaluable from a standpoint of sound judgment on almost any question the committee would be required to handle. Dick Hanley had the fullest support of students and alumni.

J. M. Bow, N. U. D. S., '08.

While discussing pro football with a friend, an argument arose as to the most valuable player on the Bears. Neither of us could convince the other but decided it would be a good thing if THE TRIBUNE would conduct a most valuable pro player contest similar to its Silver Football competition.

Margery's Canary.

When at first
With tuneful voice
At his singing did rejoice
Wee Margery.
Sweet her smile
At strain of glee;
Met plaintive note
With wistful ee,
Did Margery.

How the days have fled apace!
Just as sweet—
Or sad—the song;
But our little Margie's face
No more changes with the note
Flowing from the warbling throat.

Here you have the situation—
Moralist, the application! M'Tavish.

Navy Boxing Bouts.

Liveliest boxing shows in these parts are staged at sea but few persons rate the cherished invitations to see them. They take place Friday nights aboard battleships of Uncle Sam's fleet at anchor off San Pedro. Fo'castle champs of various departments meet one another. Later in the spring, champions of various ships will clash for all-fleet titles. Seamen also compete in wrestling at the same shows.

A surprising number of enlisted men in the fleet are very youthful in appearance. Officers say that more than half of the enlistments now are high school graduates. Not a small percentage have been through college. Depression and inability to find jobs is one reason advanced. We found the same conditions among sailors and marines at Port Everglades, Fla., last winter.

MARSHALL SIGNS TO MEET LONDOS

Rivals Battle Jan. 18 on Coliseum Mat.

Jim Londos will defend his wrestling championship against Everett Marshall of La Junta, Colo., at the Coliseum Jan. 18, Promoter Doc Krone announced yesterday. Marshall's la t match with the champion lasted three hours and twenty minutes before he was subdued.

Marshall, from his earliest youth on his father's stock ranch in Colorado, has been interested in wrestling. He is only 28 years old, but has devoted several years now to a definite plan of campaign that has brought him into action with practically all the big figures in wrestling.

The challenger will have considerable physical advantage over the champion. He is several inches taller than the Greek, carries some 15 pounds more weight, and is conceded to be possessed of more stamina.

Marshall's impressive victory over Abie Coleman last week at the Coliseum brought his chance at Londos. The factor which will be watched most closely by wrestling fans will be the famous Marshall temper. Under ordinary conditions the Colorado heavyweight is cool and calculating, but at times he permits his enthusiasm for victory to override his judgment. Londos knows this peculiar quirk and took full advantage of it in their long duel at Philadelphia.

5 YANKS WIN IN MIAMI BILTMORE TENNIS TOURNEY

Miami, Fla., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Five of the eight seeded American players and Marcel Rainville of Montreal, Canada, advanced to the second round in the opening of the third annual Miami Biltmore tennis tournament today.

Rainville defeated E. Hoebel of Miami, 6-0, 6-0, J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., won from H. A. Burkland of Miami, 6-1, 6-0; Bryan M. [Bitsy] Grant Jr., Atlanta, Ga., eliminated Phil Hutcheson, Orlando, Fla., by default; Frank Guernsey, Orlando, Fla., won 6-3, 6-1, from John Thompson of Miami; Carroll Turner, Miami, defeated Dick Arend, West, field, N. J., 6-0, 6-1, and Arthur Hendris, Lakeland, Fla., advanced by default by Francis Farrey of Miami.

The battle by the American Davis cup team prospects, in which Sidney B. Wood Jr., New York, also is included, for positions on the U. S. team will be continued tomorrow with second round matches.

GUEST, BARBEE WIN RIVERSIDE GOLF TOURNEY

Riverside, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Charles Guest, Los Angeles pro, and Al Barbee, an eight handicap amateur of Hollywood, today won the second annual Riverside Golf tournament with a record score of 62, ten strokes under par.

Guest turned in a 65 in his own right to win $200 first prize money. Barbee gave Guest help on three holes, which was worth four strokes, since he had two birdies and an eagle, making two of his four handicap strokes good.

Tied for second were the teams of Jimmy Thomson, Long Beach, Cal., and Phil Finlay, San Marino, Cal., and Byron Nelson, Texarkana, Tex., and Lieut. Bob Israel, former San Antonio, Tex., youth, now at the United States army airpost, March field, near here. They had 64s.

Private Lives of Animals and Birds Told by Revealing Snow

BY BOB BECKER.

When there is snow on the ground there is not much secrecy in the lives of the furred and feathered inhabitants of the central states. The snow tells stories about the rabbit that traveled along the hedge, about the raccoon in the woods and the fox that boldly came up to the barnyard during the night. The animals leave their tracks in the snow making it possible for the outdoor fan, the farmer, or other country dweller to read these interesting stories.

On a cross-country hike during these winter days the "sign reader" can pick up a number of tales about our native animals and birds, from the field mice that leave a lacy network of tracks in the snow to the squirrels that dig for buried acorns or the quail killed by a prowling house cat.

Easy to Identify Rabbit Tracks.

One of the easiest tracks to identify in the fields and woods is that of our common rabbit or cottontail. An interesting point about the imprints left in the snow by the cottontail is the way his hind feet register ahead of the front feet when he is in a hurry. This widely distributed game animal doubles up so completely when he is on the run his long hind legs hit in front of the front legs, thus producing a reverse snow picture.

We still have a number of raccoons in the woods of Chicagoland. The cross country hiker is quite likely to see the human appearing tracks of this fur bearer. Raccoons continue to breed quite near the loop, if there is timber enough for them. Many of them were trapped this summer and fall on THE TRIBUNE experimental farm. During the summer one finds their prints in the mud along streams and around ponds. Now one can find their tracks in the snow in the woods or adjacent fields.

Fox Walks Straight Line.

Foxes are fairly numerous in parts of the Fox river valley this winter. It is a common thing to see the clean cut tracks of old Reynard in the snow these days. When a fox walks he keeps almost in a straight line. You'll find the snow tracks of a fox almost anywhere in the countryside—in the woods, in cornfields, around a marsh, or even close to a farm house. Mr. Reynard is a confident fur bearer covering a wide territory during his hunting expeditions.

PREP QUINTETS PLAY TOMORROW

15 Lightweight Games Open Schedule.

Fifteen games in the lightweight division will open the Chicago public high school basketball season tomorrow afternoon. Heavyweight quintets will wait until Thursday before engaging in league contests. West and central section teams will go into action Thursday, while north and south division squads will begin play Friday afternoon.

Roosevelt, defending champion, will meet Sullivan in its first contest tomorrow. Lane Tech's powerful five, winner of the University of Chicago Christmas week tournament, will feature the heavyweight inaugural, playing Schurz at Lane Friday afternoon. Lane also captured the city title last season, defeating Tilden, 29 to 16.

Catholic teams also will swing into league play this week, six games being carded for the opening round Friday evening. St. Mel, champion of the lightweight division, will battle Fenwick of Oak Park in the west section feature. St. Philip, another west section quintet, which won the heavyweight championship in 1934, will meet St. Ignatius.

Three teams—Weber, north section; Joliet, south section, and St. Patrick, west section—will not start their seasons until later, having drawn first round byes.

Suburban league and West Suburban league quintets already are deep in their schedules. Quintets from the former organization will play their third and fourth conference games Friday evening. West Suburban fives also will meet Friday in their fifth contests of the conference season.

Bethany Wins, 34-32, to Keep Walther League Lead

Bethany maintained its lead in the Walther league basketball race by defeating St. Philip, 34 to 32, yesterday at St. John's church gym, Montrose and Lavergne avenues. In other games Jehovah defeated Concordia, 37 to 10, and St. John's crushed Messiah, 41 to 19.

BUST THAT COLD WIDE OPEN

Don't Merely Check It With Half-Way Measures!

Deal with a cold in earnest. Deal with it in seriousness.

A cold is too fraught with danger to be taken lightly. Many a case of flu and pneumonia has started with nothing more than a "common cold".

These are the four effects a cold calls for and only in Bromo Quinine do you get them all in the form of a single tablet.

Play safe—make sure! The moment a cold threatens, go right to your druggist for a package of Grove's Bromo Quinine. Begin taking the tablets immediately, two every four hours, until relieved.

Usually that will be in the space of 24 hours. For, that's how fast Bromo Quinine acts when taken promptly.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. Ask for it with your mind made up that you're not going to accept a substitute.

MARIGOLD AND MIDWAY RINGS REOPEN TONIGHT

Tonelli Renews Feud with Billy Miller.

The weekly schedule of boxing shows at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, and Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue, suspended during the holidays, will be resumed tonight.

Ernest [Laddie] Tonelli, rangy, hard hitting welterweight from Marseilles, Ill., will meet Billy Miller of Milwaukee, Wis., in the eight round windup bout at Marigold. Miller handed Tonelli his first knockout defeat at the Coliseum Nov. 30. Tonelli has high hopes of reversing this embarrassment.

Tonelli Led, but—

In their previous meeting Tonelli piled up points for three rounds by scoring with hard left hooks to the jaw and body, intermingled with an occasional right cross to the head. Just before the third round ended Miller landed several rockers and the fourth round found Laddie still groggy. Miller, on the alert, grasped the opportunity and waded into his opponent with a fierce two fisted barrage to the face which floored Tonelli. The referee stopped the contest.

Milt Aron vs. Jackie Lazar [4], 143.
Lou Vine vs. Clint Cassel [4], 136.
Spud Kelly vs. Syl Saliski [4], 150.
Zack Malkov vs. Tiger Nelson [wrestling].

Mullins Meets Born.

Bobby Mullins, Vincennes, Ind., junior lightweight, and Le Roy [Sailor] Born, Atlanta, Ga., have been paired for one of five matches at the Midway. It is set for five rounds. Another encounter at this distance brings together Joey Bozak, Blue Island, Ill., 130 pounder, and Eddie Jackson of the Catholic Youth organization. A four round tussle will involve Sammy Adams and Nestor Bruggman. They are welterweights.

Verne Patterson, Central A. A. U. bantamweight champion, will collide with Sam De Pasquale in one of eight conflicts to be presented at Community Recreation center Wednesday. Among other contestants to appear will be Tony Catalino, Jack Jannis, Harold Brown, Sam Girshbein, John Knash, Ed Luebker, and Matty Plovanich. Another show Wednesday will be held at Mount Carmel High school. Boxers from the C. Y. O. will compete in the eight tussles.

Barney Ross and Al Ettore, Philadelphia heavyweight, were the only fighters to train yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium. . . . Ross underwent light exercises for his junior welterweight title defense against Frank Klick at Miami, Fla., this month. . . . Ettore went seven rounds on the punching bag, the skipping rope, and the pullys and then issued a challenge for a fight with Joe Louis.

Mullen Takes Ring War Into N. Y. Territory

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Promoter James Mullen of Chicago, who is the arch rival of Promoter Jimmy Johnston of Madison Square Garden and whose four western fights in the last six weeks deprived the New York monopoly of $116,000 in gate receipts, appeared here today. Boldly patroling the fistic Forties, he added insult to injury by announcing that his visit was solely for the purpose of stealing good unknown young boxers who are sitting on the doorsteps of New York's Madison Square Garden.

Mullen, who grossed $30,000 with King Levinsky and Art Lasky; $27,000 with Lee Ramage and Joe Louis; $30,000 with Max Baer and Levinsky, and $29,989 with Louis and Patsy Perroni, the latter bout in Detroit, said he will clean up $100,000 or more with Baer.

"I have signed the champion for three ten-rounders in Chicago and I am looking for comers, hard hitters of the type of Joe Louis, to box Baer," he declared. "I'd rather take a kid with a punch than some old washed up mugg trading in on his fading reputation. I think the Garden has been asleep here and I intend to give the young boys in this part of the country the once over."

Mullen warns that if Lasky, Schmeling, and Hamas continue to sit in retirement waiting to be tagged for a Baer championship match outdoors next summer, they will be forgotten and some youngster like Louis will find himself the logical contender with a chance to make a fortune.

BOBBY JONES' 75 WINS BEST BALL MATCH IN SOUTH

New Orleans, La., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Holing a ten foot putt for a birdie on the eighteenth green, Bobby Jones gave his side a one-up victory in a best ball foursome exhibition match at the Metairie Golf club today before 5,000. He had a 75.

Jones, playing with Nelson Whitney, the man who eliminated Jones from his first big tournament here more than fifteen years ago, were teamed against Fred Haas Jr., 18 year old southern and western junior golf champion, and Fred Odom II., the local city champion.

PREDICTS DROP IN EXPENDITURES BY GOVERNMENT

Industrial Group Sees Hope for Future.

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A decrease in expenditures by government in future years was predicted by the national industrial conference board in its newly published book, "Cost of Government, 1923-34." The board is supported by large industrial corporations.

"Assuming that the general price level will not rise above that for 1929 and that the requirements of the federal emergency program will be greatly reduced by 1936, a level of public expenditures well below the 1934 total of about $15,500,000,000 may be expected in the future," the board stated.

Expects Downward Trend.

"There is no reason whatever for believing that the end of the period of depression will be followed by an immediate rise in the expenditures of government. A period of downward adjustment in federal expenditures comparable to that immediately subsequent to the world war, will unquestionably occur."

The net debt of the federal government at the close of 1934 was $24,773,100,000, against a net debt of $24,479,300,000 in 1919, the board compilation showed.

During the 1934 fiscal year the federal government collected $2,892,000,000 in taxes, and of the new taxes in effect since 1932 the board showed the gasoline tax income of $200,000,000 was highest in 1934.

The survey listed total federal expenditures of $6,784,100,000 in the 1934 fiscal year, the largest peacetime expenditure, which was 36.5 per cent higher than the previous year.

$69.73 Per Capita.

State and local governmental expenditures for 1932, the last year available, were $8,740,000,000, or $69.73 per capital, the board stated. Interest payments of all states were shown to be 8.8 per cent of all expenditures.

The gross debt of all divisions of government was shown by the board's survey to be about $47,000,000,000 at present. "From 1913 to 1922 gross debt increased by 496 per cent," the board stated; "from 1922 to 1932 by 18 per cent, and from 1932 to 1934 by 21 per cent."

In the last four years, it was said, more proposals relating to taxation were advanced than in any other period in the history of the United States. Some of the major taxes levied since 1929 were listed as general sales taxes, chain store taxes, personal income taxes, amusement taxes, betting, alcoholic, and beer and wine taxes.

Wisconsin Power and Light.

Investors' Guide: My father left to us children $10,500 worth of Wisconsin Power and Light 6 and 7 per cent preferred. Please give me information on it.—W. R. E.

Answer—Wisconsin Power and Light company is part of the Middle West Utilities system, being a subsidiary of North West Utilities company. It supplies a population of 550,000 in 275 Wisconsin communities with electricity, both at wholesale and retail. Some are also furnished with gas, water, and transportation. Cities served include Beloit, Janesville, and Baraboo.

In 1933 the Wisconsin public service commission ordered reductions in rates totaling $300,000 a year. In June, 1934, the company was ordered to cut gas rates in the three towns mentioned and commercial electric rates in all territories served.

Gross in the first nine months of 1934 just about equaled that reported for the corresponding 1933 period. During the first nine months of 1934 the company earned 56 per cent of preferred dividend requirements, while in the first nine months of 1933 it earned two-thirds of such requirements.

1933	$7,604,000	$ 675,000	$4.01
1932	8,242,000	1,300,000	7.72
1931	8,929,000	1,848,000	10.81
1930	9,162,000	2,089,000	12.47

The parent company has no early bond maturities, although the Beloit subsidiary has to meet a $1,465,000 maturity in 1937. Funded debt totals $34,652,000. Current assets on Dec. 31, 1933, were $2,268,000 and current liabilities were $1,708,000.

There are outstanding 168,324 shares of 6 and 7 per cent $100 par cumulative preferred, both classes of which enjoy equal priority. Since March 15, 1934, the company has been paying only one-fourth of the stipulated dividend requirements on the stock. The preferred is speculative.

Mina Grande Gold Mining.

Investors' Guide: A certificate of Mina Grande Gold Mining company stock was handed to me for investigation by my aged aunt. Will you advise me if it has any value?—K. E. S.

Answer—Mina Grande Gold Mining company was incorporated in Arizona in 1903. It has not paid any fees or filed any reports since then. We therefore can find no trace of the company. Its corporate charter was forfeited on May 4, 1926.

We are unable to find any market for the stock. In our opinion it is worthless.

AUTO MAKERS SEE PROSPECTS FOR TRADE GOOD

Edsel Ford Praises New Cars for Beauty.

BY HAL FOUST.

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—The annual automobile show, closed on Sunday, will be reopened tomorrow morning with the manufacturers already sanguine of this year's business prospects. Wherever the trade executives met today, at breakfasts, cocktail parties, and dinners, there were cheerful comments on the public's acquisitive interest in the 1935 models demonstrated by the record attendance Saturday at the initial day of the exhibition.

"All the lines have the most beautiful cars in the history of their producers," said Edsel Ford over a morning lamb chop.

In Transition Period.

Beauty to Henry Ford's son includes mechanical excellence, but he was referring particularly to appearance of bodies. The Ford Motor company anticipates a sale of a million V-8's in 1935 as compared with approximately 750,000 in 1934.

"It seems to me that we are in a transition period in designs," Mr. Ford continued, "and I don't know whether we're all going streamline or conservative."

Robert C. Graham, vice president of the Graham-Paige corporation, as chairman of the Automotive Manufacturers' association's export committee, is as much pleased by foreign trade possibilities as by the domestic outlook. He predicted a 38 per cent increase in the overseas sale of American motor cars this year as compared with last.

Foreign Prospects Brightened.

The foreign prospects are brightened by the depreciation of the American dollar, by improved economic conditions, by prosperity abroad founded upon crop curtailment in the United States, and by the withdrawal of tarif restrictions. Automobile exports jumped 79 per cent in 1934 as compared with 1933, while total production increased 45 per cent. Fifteen per cent of the production was sold outside the United States.

Mr. Graham's observations, skeletonized, are as follows:

Sweden—Automotive imports doubled.

Peru—Prospering from higher cotton prices.

Reciprocal Trade Pact.

Spain—Reciprocal trade agreement about to be consummated, with America dropping quarantine rules adverse to certain Spanish products. Import duty on United States cars now double that on competitors.

Czechoslovakia—Same as in Belgium.

Cuba—Trade pact signed.

Brazil—Hope for lowering 57 per cent import duty.

Union of South Africa—Ideal business conditions existing.

The automobile show, with its informative mechanical demonstrations and its opportunity to view all the 1935 models under one roof, will close here on Saturday night. The annual exhibition will be held in Chicago's Coliseum from Jan. 26 to Feb. 2.

ILLINOIS LAND EXPERTS DEVISE EROSION REMEDY

Sloping Soil Is Saved by Terracing.

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Soil erosion would not have ruined 150,000,000 acres of fair to good farm land at a cost of $400,000,000 a year to farmers of the United States, if more of them had followed the example of Louis Klotz, a St. Clair county farmer, says R. C. Hay, agricultural engineer at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

Like other farmers who have cooperated with the college and their county farm advisers, Klotz has demonstrated that it is much easier and cheaper to conserve soil while it is rich in plant food than it is to rebuild it once the fertility has been washed away by erosion, Hay pointed out.

Until recently Klotz had been spending about two weeks annually filling in with straw and plowing in small gullies that formed at the lower end of a 17 acre field.

Land Fertile But Sloping.

The land was in a high state of fertility, having produced as much as ninety bushels of corn to the acre. The field, however, had a slope of 6 to 9 per cent with a tendency to erode badly when under cultivation. In spite of his efforts, Klotz began to realize that the gullies were gradually getting deeper and sheet erosion was taking off the fertile top soil all the way up the slope.

Through B. W. Tillman, farm adviser in St. Clair county, Klotz arranged to have a terracing demonstration held on his farm. With the aid of an extension specialist from the University of Illinois college of agriculture, three terraces were staked out and their construction started. Three more terraces are to be made lower down the slope at a later date.

Terraces Take Up Rain.

The three top terraces will take away nearly 50 per cent of the rain water that has heretofore washed down the slope, thus reducing the volume and velocity of the runoff. Soil and moisture will be saved, and the work required to fill the gullies each year will be eliminated.

The cost of terracing this field was much less than it would have been if the land had been neglected for a few years and had become badly gullied. Only a little work was required for fills at the points where the terraces cross the gullies. The most significant fact is that the fertility of the land has not been lost. A soil saving program has been launched in time to save it rather than try to rebuild the field after the top soil had been washed away.

U. S. ENVOY TO FLY HOME TO REPORT ON CUBAN SUGAR

HAVANA, Jan. 6. — (AP) — United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery said tonight he would leave for Washington tomorrow or Tuesday aboard a naval plane.

"I intend to go to Washington, where I will remain for two or three days," the diplomat said, "and will be back in Havana within the week. I intend to discuss with the state department various matters of interest, including coöperation between authorities of the two governments in regard to sugar problems of 1935."

BEER NO BOON TO HOP GROWERS; CROP TOO LARGE; PRICES SLUMP

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 6.—American hop growers, who saw prices skyrocket 700 per cent on the legalization of 3.2 beer, find themselves today facing again the old story of overproduction and red ink.

More than one-fifth of their 1934 crop is stored in warehouses without prospects of immediate marketing. Growers of California, Oregon, and Washington, where all this country's commercial hops are produced, are laying plans for a marketing agreement that would control prices and surpluses. Federal officials will hold hearings next month on the proposed agreement.

Early in 1933, with the approach of April 7, opening date for the legal sale of brew, the price of hops started to rise from 12 cents a pound. It reached 75 cents in July, but fell back to 10 or 12 cents.

ALFRED DECKER & COHN PROFIT IS HIT BY NRA COST

Alfred Decker & Cohn, Inc., manufacturers of Society Brand clothes, operated at a loss of $182,570 for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1934, according to the annual report of Alfred Decker, president, to the stockholders. The company operated with a loss of $107,158 in 1933 and $877,182 in 1932.

Mr. Decker said that results for the fiscal year of 1934 failed to live up to the promise of the second half of 1933 because the NRA brought about sharp increases in costs, which could not be passed immediately to the consumers. He said that during the year certain overhanging liabilities were liquidated and fixed charges further reduced through adjustment of an old lease.

Mr. Decker said that the company's products in the fall of 1934 found its best reception in years, with the volume of business, both in units and dollars, materially increased, though at a narrower margin of gross profit. He said the company has booked a much larger volume of business for the coming spring than for the like period of 1934.

Current assets as of Oct. 31 stood at $1,210,097, while current liabilities were $473,522.

N. Y.-CHICAGO BUS LINES EMBROILED IN RATE STRUGGLE

New York-Chicago bus lines are embroiled in a rate war as the result of the Indian Coach Lines' cutting their fare from $15.75 to $13. Nevin, Great Eastern, and Frank Martz lines also reduced the fare to $13.

In New York, P. K. Wadsworth, president of Great Eastern, asserted the fare struggle is the result of "various cut rate bus outfits operating in defiance of the NRA motor bus code."

Indian Coach lines, which has been operating with lower fares than Great Eastern or Greyhound, said that an injunction had been obtained to continue charging $13 for the trip despite the code price of $15.75.

R. E. Maxwell, secretary of Greyhound, said independents usually cut fares after the turn of the year in an effort to fill their coaches during the post holiday slump in trafic.

NATIONAL BANK SYSTEM REBUILT, O'CONNOR SAYS

Only 5 Unlicensed Still to Be Disposed Of.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Reopening of four unlicensed banks under the supervision of the controler of the currency during December left only five unlicensed national banks yet to be disposed of, and these five all have plans approved for reorganization, J. F. T. O'Connor, controler, announced today.

In a statement making public the aggregate deposits of the 1,417 banks under supervision of the controler at the end of the banking holidays in March, 1933, Mr. O'Connor pointed to the increase in the number of active national banks at the end of December, as well as increased deposits.

"The close of the year 1934 brought to near completion the rehabilitation of the national banking system," he declared.

Five to Be Disposed Of.

"Following the banking holidays in March, 1933," he said, "there were 1,417 banks under the supervision of the controler which were not licensed, and these had deposits aggregating $1,971,960,000. The reopening of four of these unlicensed banks during December leaves only five unlicensed national banks yet to be disposed of, and these all have plans approved for reorganization.

"With the close of business on Dec. 31, 1934, 1,088 unlicensed banks under the supervision of the controler had been reorganized under old or new charters or sold to other national banks, and these had deposits aggregating $1,802,086,900; thirty, with deposits of $11,204,000, had quit or left the system; and 294, with deposits of $152,048,000, had been disapproved for reorganization and placed in receivership. This brought the number of banks which had been disposed of to 1,412, with deposits of $1,965,338,000, and left only five unlicensed national banks, with deposits of $6,622,000, as compared with deposits of $1,971,960,000 involved in the 1,417 unlicensed banks at the end of the banking holidays.

Reorganization Plans.

"As stated above, all of the remaining five unlicensed national banks have plans approved for reorganization; and in addition to these, seven of the 294 banks reported above as in receivership also have plans approved for reorganization. These seven banks have deposits aggregating $3,537,000.

"During the period beginning with the enactment of enabling legislation in March, 1933, and ending with Dec. 31, 1934, 1,586 active national banks issued $439,515,750 in preferred stock and 128 issued $16,895,276 in common stock for the purpose of strengthening their capital structure.

"The net result of the rehabilitation of the national banking system since March 16, 1933, is an increase in the number of active national banks, including state banks and trust companies in the District of Columbia, from 4,522 to 5,490 on Dec. 31, 1934, and an increase in deposits from $16,315,586,000 to $20,906,176,000, or a net gain of 968 banks and of $4,590,590,000 in deposits. During the year 1934, only one national bank failed, as compared with an average annual failure of 298 national banks during the three years prior to 1933."

TRUCK GARDENS WEATHER DROUTH AND LOW PRICES

Truck gardeners in Cook county have weathered low prices and the unprecedented drouth of the last two years in excellent shape, according to August Geweke, president of the Cook County Truck Gardeners' association. Not one is on relief rolls, Geweke reported at a meeting yesterday in the Hotel Sherman.

In some instances, he admitted, gardeners have had their crops destroyed either by drouth or spring floods and these have obtained loans from the association, but most of these advances have been repaid.

The organization's 33d annual meeting will be held next Saturday in the Jefferson Park auditorium.

TREASURY CLARIFIES DEFINITON OF BANKS' 'CAPITAL ASSETS'

A letter clarifying the definition of "capital assets" of banks, affecting some 16,000 banks and trust companies in this area, was received yesterday from the treasury department by Sue E. Downing, executive secretary of the Chicago district of the Illinois Bankers' association.

The letter, Miss Downing said, also makes plain that the treasury considers corporations as well as individuals subject to the capital assets provisions of the new income tax law, the revenue act of 1934.

Miss Downing said the letter held that any evidences of indebtedness issued by a corporation, government, or political subdivision of government are "capital assets" of banks or trust companies owning them.

In computing losses on sales of such obligations, Miss Downing said, banks or trust companies may deduct, without limitation, losses to the extent of differences between par or face value and sales price. This interpretation, Miss Downing said, refers only to banks and trust companies as defined in the law.

Another section of the government letter, Miss Downing said, affects banks, trust companies, and all other corporations experiencing gains or losses at the retirement of such evidences of indebtedness. These gains and losses are to be treated as other capital gains and losses, she said.

INSURANCE CODE HEARINGS WILL START ON JAN. 11

Hearings on proposed revisions to the Illinois insurance code will start in the Hotel La Salle Jan. 11, with representatives of fraternal organizations taking up the first day. Other divisions will be heard as follows:

Jan. 12—Interinsurance exchanges and Lloyds; Jan. 18, mutual benefit associations, agents and brokers; Jan. 19, life insurance; Jan. 25, casualty, and Jan. 29, fire insurance.

In the meantime 40 insurance executives and many policy holders are studying the new insurance code at the suggestion of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. Copies of the proposals have been forwarded to individuals by H. A. Behrens, chairman of the trade body's insurance division. Replies and recommendations will be reported back to the chamber by Jan. 10, for analysis.

ILLINOIS HOLC LOANS IN 1934 TOTAL $166,312,000

The Home Owners' Loan corporation did a $166,312,000 loan business in Illinois in 1934, Henry Zander Jr., state manager, announced yesterday. Only 11,000 loans in the Chicago district and fewer than 2,000 more in Illinois remain to be closed, he said.

Up to Jan. 1 the Illinois office handled 43,288 transactions at an average of $3,824 per loan, of which 4,181 loans for nearly $20,000,000 were made in the Chicago district during December.

Canadian Pacific Names Cook as Steamship Agent

Kenneth A. Cook has been appointed general steamship agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Chicago, succeeding J. C. Patterson, who has been transferred to Toronto in the same capacity, according to announcement made yesterday. Mr. Cook has been connected with the railroad's passenger department for the last 27 years and was transferred here from Cincinnati, where he was general rail and passenger agent

WALL ST. AWAITS BUDGET PLANS OF ROOSEVELT

Hopes Message Will Disclose Aims.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 6.—From the stock trader's viewpoint, interest in the scheduled events of the new week centers in the budget message which President Roosevelt is to lay before congress tomorrow. Hopes are held out that the document will provide some dependable pointer on the administration's current attitude toward such highly important market factors as currency inflation; continuation, expansion, or curtailment of the headlong government expenditures which have characterized the first two years of the New Deal and, to some degree at least, the matter of government competition with private industry.

References to all these subjects in the President's first address to the new national lawmaking body were so vague and indefinite, where they were not completely lacking, that the speculative fraternity got nothing but headaches from its attempts to read one of several suggested meanings into them. It was the case, indeed, from the street's viewpoint with pretty much the whole message.

A Typical Message.

A "typical Roosevelt message," they called it, capable of being interpreted in some paragraphs as indicating a probable swing to the right by the administration, in others as presaging a fresh turn to the left and in still others as showing fresh determination to adhere to the "middle of the road."

Some efforts toward conciliating business were seen, but the reference to the necessity for the "restoration of more sound conditions in the public utilities field through the abolition of the evils of holding companies," the one calling for further regulation in the transportation field, and the warning to the "overprivileged" seemed to many to counterbalance whatever placation other parts of the message may have carried. Absence of any further flings at the "money changers" and banking generally was commented upon favorably.

Trade News Colorless.

On the trade side the news of the opening week was colorless. Railroad trafic figures for the final week of the old year showed a more than seasonal decline and a decided slump in retail trade due to the passing of the holiday spending season was rather painfully apparent. On the other hand, steel operations moved up encouragingly and plans of the motor makers indicated greatly increased activity. Power output showed a slight decrease on the week.

Stock prices rose about a point on the average, closing out the week at the highest level since last June. The phenomenon afforded hope to those still addicted to the old time Wall street habit of reading market trends of the first week of a new year as an "indicator" of what direction the year had started, but brought no change intrinsically from the course of events in the last week of 1934.

There were some "million share days"—perhaps one or two more than the late average—but other sessions were almost as notable for their slump in volume. That of yesterday's two hour session, for instance, was only a little more than half that of the preceding Saturday.

Share Movements Colorless.

Share group movements as usual failed to stand out. The silver and gold mining issues showed little interest in the pile of inflationary bills of one kind and another dumped into the congressional hopper and the utilities refused just as obstinately to turn tail on the latest Presidential fling in their direction. A number of industrials scored good advances and steel and automobile descriptions turned a little more active toward the last of the week.

Market operations for the "long pull," so-called, are being held in check, very largely, brokers say, by uncertainties as to what extent the expected spring expansion in trade is going to depend on the basis of congressional action. Most of the market activity at the moment is of a professional "quick turn" character.

Grains Start New Year On Brisk Upturn

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A brisk upturn in grain prices marked the close of trading on the Chicago Board of Trade last week. Small as were the gains which Saturday's prices represented over the preceding week, the smart rally with which the market closed gave hope to bullish minded grain men that the trend of prices has finally turned upward. Prices here, however, had no support from the foreign markets. In Buenos Aires and Liverpool wheat was selling Saturday at approximately the same prices at which it had closed the preceding week.

The last week witnessed some expansion in the volume of trading compared with the preceding week, when the business was at low holiday ebb. Last week's volume, however, remained small compared with what was formerly considered normal trading. The transactions in wheat showed a decline from a year ago, as well as the preceding week. In corn, however, activity was greater than a year ago, reflecting increased speculative interest.

Cash Grain in Demand.

If the flourish of strength with which the market closed the week was unconvincing in some respects, it had a real basis in the better demand evidenced in the cash grain market where a seasonal revival in buying got under way. In the cash market prices showed unusual buoyancy toward the end of the week.

Cancelation of warehouse receipts for wheat and the small receipts of both corn and wheat in the principal markets focused attention on the steady dwindling of supplies. Current arrivals of wheat in the primary markets are running equal to only 25 per cent of the average weekly flour production, a condition which suggests that mills will have to draw on terminal market receipts for their supplies during the next six months.

Farm stocks of wheat are estimated by Nat. C. Murray of Clement Curtis & Co. at 138 million bushels on Jan. 1, a reduction of 52 million bushels compared with farm supplies a year earlier. The official government figures on farm supplies will be released Jan. 10 and it is believed the Murray figures will be confirmed.

Small Carryover Expected.

The estimate of farm supplies is significant in that it suggests a carryover at the beginning of the next crop year, July 1, which will be materially smaller than it has been for several years. The size of the surplus is a matter of unusual interest because of the possibility that next year's crop may be another small one. The country has had two years of successively small crops and another year of short production could conceivably make it necessary for the United States to become an important wheat importer. Imports this year have been confined to durum and feed grades. The fate of the new crop, however, remains to be decided.

Trading was opened last week in the September grain futures upon the expiration of the December contracts. One of the features of the week was the widening of the spread between the price of the May and July wheat. At the close Saturday, May wheat was selling 6¾ cents above July wheat, compared with a premium of only 5¼ cents a week earlier.

Weekly Range of Prices.

RAIL REVENUES IN NOVEMBER SHOW DECLINE

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—The reports of 147 class 1 railroads showed declines of 0.3 per cent and 16.1 per cent in gross and net operating income, respectively, for November, according to the Association of American Railroads. For the first eleven months of 1934 their gross ran 5.7 per cent above the figures for the same period in 1933, but an increase of 8.9 per cent in expenses brought net operating income 3.1 per cent below the 1933 figures.

Southern railroads reported increased net operating income in November, but the east and west reported decreases. In the west, however, net for the eleven months was held 4 per cent above the figure for the same period a year previously.

HOLIDAY SEASON COLLECTIONS AND SALES INCREASE

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Definite evidence of a decided upturn in national sales and collection conditions during the holiday season is revealed in the January survey by the National Association of Credit Men. The study covers ninety-eight major commercial markets in the country.

The extent of the betterment is especially noticeable in the comparison of the figures for the past December and those of December, 1933. In sales, for instance, thirty-three cities report "good" as compared to only eight reporting "good" sales in December, 1933. In collections, the number reporting "good" rose in the year from eight to twenty-eight.

Besides these cities which reported "good" in the sales and collections classifications, fifty-four reported sales as "fair" and fifty-five found collections to be "fair."

Trust Reports 5.9 Per Cent Increase in Net Assets

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Net assets of the General American Investors Company, Inc., after payment of debenture interest and preferred dividends, increased from $21,801,157 at the beginning of 1934 to $23,088,962 on Dec. 31, or by 5.9 per cent, according to the annual report issued today. Net assets were equal to $3,498 for each $1,000 of debentures, $206 for each share of preferred stock, and $6.53 for each share of common stock, which compared with $5.54 a common share at the end of 1933.

39 MINE GROUPS REAP GAIN BY MONEY PLANS

Profits on Gold and Silver Shown.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's tampering with gold and silver values poured enormously increased profits into the laps of thirty-nine big mining corporations concentrated in eleven western states, the bureau of the mint and the bureau of mines disclosed today.

America's gold production leaped 100 per cent in value over 1933, although the volume of gold production advanced only 20 per cent, the bureau of the mint reported. This increase resulted because the President, in his dollar devaluation, boosted the price of gold from $20.67 to $35 an ounce.

Silver Boom Sharper.

Silver, backed by a potent bloc in congress, boomed even more sharply. Volume of the output increased 36 per cent, while the value of the output jumped 151 per cent as the President lifted silver prices from 35 cents in 1933 to 64½ cents.

Gold production for 1934 was reported at 3,075,200 ounces, valued at $107,631,000. Silver production for the year was 31,384,200 ounces, valued under the New Deal at $20,274,200.

This golden flood of increased wealth resulting from government fiat flowed almost entirely into thirty-nine big corporations, which together produce approximately 70 per cent of the nation's gold and 85 per cent of its silver, the bureau of mines disclosed. Out of every dollar of increased profits these thirty-nine corporations grabbed at least 75 cents, leaving only 25 cents to be split among the thousands of small mines and individual prospectors.

Estimate 75 Million Gross.

On the basis of their 1933 production these thirty-nine corporations between them are estimated to have grossed 75 million dollars on gold during 1934, compared with 38 millions in 1933. Similarly, their income from silver is estimated to have advanced from 6 million dollars in 1933 to 17 millions in 1934 as the New Deal raised precious metal prices.

In connection with silver, it was the senators and congressmen from the eleven western states where these and similar corporations hold sway who forced the President to advance silver prices. The gold policy is more closely identified with the New Deal itself, but it, too, was brought on in part by pressure from the west.

Lists Gold Corporations.

Together these 39 corporations fill the list of the 25 largest producers of gold and the list of 25 largest producers of silver. The big gold corporations, approximately in the order of their importance, are:

Homestake Mining company, South Dakota; Alaska Juneau Gold Mining company, Alaska; Fairbank Exploration company, Alaska; Empire Star Mines, California; Golden Cycle Mining company, Colorado; Natomas company, California; Yuba Consolidated

CHICAGO'S BUSINESS PACE QUICKENS; SPRING SHOWS START TODAY

Wholesale trade received another boost in early arrivals for the first of a five week series of spring trade shows opening here today. Retail turnover continued ahead of a year ago, with cold weather necessities leading a consumer demand extending to practically all lines of commodities.

Industrial production and employment again were slightly higher, with local steel mills at 50 to 60 per cent of capacity and steady business reported by electrical, household, and furniture manufacturers. Utilities still were pushing ahead, with greater factory power needs and heavier street car and elevated trafic contributing to the movement.

Most sections of the country were contributing to the buying wave which is keeping mail order houses and chain stores in optimistic frame of mind.

Local automobile dealers report interest in 1935 models resulting in heavy sales, with little or no demand for actual demonstrations. Practically all buying has been on a floor sample basis.

OVER 5½ BILLION U. S. SECURITIES MATURE IN YEAR

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Obligations of the United States government in the hands of the public which will mature within twelve months amount to $5,540,933,300. They consist of treasury bonds, notes and noninterest bearing discount bills.

The fourth Liberty 4¼s outstanding have been reduced to approximately $3,142,000,000. Of this amount $1,870,000,000 has been called for redemption on April 15.

PREDICTS U. S. USE OF RUBBER WILL RISE IN '35

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—The United States will consume more crude rubber this year than ever before, in the opinion of Frank R. Henderson of F. R. Henderson & Co., former president of the Rubber exchange of New York, as set forth in a survey of the rubber industry, issued today.

Mr. Henderson places the consumption for 1935 in excess of 500,000 tons, compared with the record of 472,000 tons in 1929. Preliminary estimates of 1934 consumption were 460,000 tons. Actual consumption was 401,000 tons in 1933, 332,000 in 1932, 352,000 in 1931, and 376,000 in 1930.

The survey places the 1935 production of motor cars and trucks at about 3,500,000 and the output of the tire industry at about 52,500,000 casings, including the replacement demand. Mr. Henderson views as particularly important the displacement of old types of casings by the full balloon or low pressure tire.

"Giving consideration to the foregoing analysis, to the substantial development in road building programs and to the expansion of motor transport abroad," he says, "we feel confident that with restriction of raw output functioning from now on the supply of rubber will gradually decrease to a point at which world stocks will be seriously diminished before the end of the year."

Firm Reports Sharp Rise in Gold, Platinum Output

The South American Gold and Platinum company reports an increase in crude platinum production of 53 per cent and in crude gold production of 25 per cent in the first 11 months of 1934 over the same period in 1933. Platinum production amounted to 23,960 ounces, compared with 15,613, and gold production was 35,399 ounces, against 28,134.

STANDARD OF INDIANA TO RAISE GASOLINE PRICES 2 CTS. A GALLON

Chicago motorists tomorrow morning will pay approximately 2 cents a gallon more for gasoline than they have been doing for several months. The Standard Oil Company of Indiana announced last night that effective with the opening of business in the morning it will restore its retail prices to "normal in the Chicago area."

The other major companies are expected to follow suit, although no announcement of changes had been made last night. L. M. Foster, president of the Chicago Individual Branded Petroleum association, comprising the independents, said that the entire membership of his organization was in accord with the move to restore prices to normal and to stabilize the market. The independents, he said, undoubtedly will increase their prices at once.

The price increase ordered by Standard Oil, it was said, is the result of meetings held last December to try to stabilize prices in the Chicago district. Chicago motorists have been the chief gainers from the price war which developed early last October, it was said, most operators of gasoline stations being forced to run at a loss.

The normal prices which Standard Oil is putting into effect are: Third grade, 15.8 cents; regular, 16.8 cents, and ethyl or premium, 18.8 cents. The cut prices which are being superseded are: Third grade, 13.9 cents; regular, 14.8 cents, and ethyl or premium, 16.8 cents. All prices include taxes with the exception of the 2 per cent state of Illinois occupational sales tax, which the purchaser must pay.

Steel Will Lead Recovery, Says E. J. Buffington

E. J. Buffington, retired president of the Illinois Steel company, echoes the recent prediction of Gen. Charles G. Dawes that the durable goods industries shortly will experience a boom which will lead to real recovery. His views are contained in a statement written for the February issue of Commerce magazine, publication of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

In large part, the steel master of more than a third of a century reviews the logic presented by the former vice president of the United States and concurs with the conclusions he reached.

Can't Be Restrained.

The belief of both men is that deflation leads to flight of capital, caution, reduction of purchasing power, and the reaction of human nature to economic laws in deferred purchasing to the point of buying less than they can afford. But after so long a time pent-up buying power will surge forth regardless of artificial measures such as government interference, the reasoning concludes.

"Can any one with knowledge of the potential resources of our country and people doubt that this great curtailment in demand of a staple commodity such as steel means in a large measure a mere deferment of needs and that in time, with mass confidence restored as it will be, these accumulated deferred needs will break through barriers of restraint and manifest themselves in greatly increased volume of purchases?" argued Mr. Buffington.

Believes Steel Will Lead.

"After experience in the steel industry extending over nearly 50 years and remembering what has transpired in previous major depressions, I can not but believe, as Gen. Dawes believes, that the day is not far distant when returning demand for steel and other durable goods will start our factories and mills operating well toward full capacity."

Gen. Dawes reviewed with charts the courses of the current depression and those of 1893 and 1873. Accelerated production came after five and one-half years in the latter cases. On that basis and the similarity of the present depression's course he predicted like occurrences in the next few months.

Mr. Buffington said that Gen. Dawes could have chosen no better or more representative illustration than records of the steel industry as a business barometer because steel is used so universally. "In business parlance," he said, "the saying 'as steel goes, so goes general business' is accepted as axiomatic."

$2,180,000 Illinois Relief Bonds Offered by 3 Banks

The Chase National bank, the Northern Trust company, and the National City Bank of New York are offering $2,180,000 State of Illinois 3¼ per cent relief bonds. The bonds which are due Dec. 15, 1952-54, inclusive, are priced to yield 3 per cent, according to maturity. They are legal investment for savings banks in New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Illinois, and certain other states, and are exempt from all present federal income taxes.

STEEL INDUSTRY BOOSTS OUTPUT AS 1935 BEGINS

Operate at 42½ Pct. of Capacity.

Steel mills began the new year with a substantial upward movement, increasing operations 3½ points over the preceding week to 42½ per cent of production capacity, says the magazine Steel. In Chicago the rate rose 5 points to 47 per cent, while other centers showed similar gains or held at current rates.

The national rate is 11½ points above the corresponding period last year and is supported by an earlier and broader buying movement than at the beginning of 1934, the journal states. Seasonal requirements, particularly those of agricultural implement manufacturers, are beginning to appear, while public construction work that was held back during the winter is expected to expand soon, according to the review. Specifications from automobile makers have increased to such an extent that mills are deferring deliveries.

Labor Trouble Only Cloud.

"Steelmakers can see no obstruction to continuing improvement, unless it be in difficulties with labor," the journal says. "As operations rise the industry becomes more exposed to disturbance. Labor is renewing its drive for recognition, and the national steel labor relations board has called for pay rolls of 'productive' workers, ordering a supervised election at some plants.

"Despite this, however, the industry's standing with the administration has been greatly strengthened by the extreme care it has taken to be fair, stopping short only of an outright closed shop, and it is doubtful if a strike would be sanctioned."

Awards for Public Works.

Awards this month will include 5,100 tons of shapes for the Guttenberg, Ia., dam, and reinforcing bars amounting to 6,000 tons for the Monrovia-Pasadena, Cal., tunnel; 3,250 tons for the San Francisco-Oakland bridge, and 3,500 tons for the Moffatt, Colo., tunnel.

Increases in operations during the week included a rise of 16 points to 77 per cent of capacity at Cleveland, 4 to 23½ in eastern Pennsylvania, 6 to 53 in Youngstown, 13 to 68 in New England, and 1 to 27½ at Birmingham. In Wheeling the rate held at 80 per cent, at Detroit 59, Buffalo 39, and Pittsburgh 25.

Tin plate mill operations recovered all the ground lost during the holidays with a 10 point rise to 45 per cent of capacity, the review states. Two more blast furnaces have been lighted in Chicago and one at Cleveland.

Stocks of Hosiery Total 15,940,269 Dozen Pairs

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Stocks of hosiery on hand at the end of November were 15,940,269 dozen pairs, as compared with 15,808,097 dozen pairs at the end of October and with 15,473,394 dozen pairs at the end of November, 1933, the hosiery code authority reported today.

Western Tablet to Redeem $1,000,000 15 Year Bonds

The Western Tablet and Stationery corporation has called for redemption April 1, 1935, its $1,000,000 outstanding 15 year 6 per cent sinking fund bonds of 1941, at 103 and accrued interest.

Goldfields, California; London Gold Mines, Colorado; Idaho-Maryland Mines, California; Hammon Consolidated Goldfields, Alaska; Capital Dredging company, California.

Willow Creek Mines, Alaska; Utah Copper company, Utah; Phelps-Dodge corporation, Arizona; Argonaut Mining company, Utah; Eureka Standard Mining company, Utah; Shenandoah-Dives Mining company, Colorado; Mountain Copper company, California; American Metal company, New Mexico; United States Smelting and Refining, Utah; St. Joseph Lead company, Idaho; Kennedy Mining and Milling company, California; Central Eureka Mining company, California; New Porphyry Gold Mines, Nevada, and United Verde Extension Mining company, Arizona.

Lead Among Silver Producers.

Eleven of these biggest gold producers also rank among the 25 largest silver producers. One, Anaconda Copper, because of two separate mines, appears both as third and thirteenth on the silver list which follows:

Sunshine Mining company, Idaho; Silver King Coalition Mines, Utah; Anaconda Copper company, Montana; United States Smelting and Refining company, Utah; Empire Zinc company, Colorado; Bunker Hill and Sillivan Mining company, Idaho; Phelps-Dodge corporation, Arizona; Tintic Standard Mining company, Utah; Hecla Mining company, Idaho; Federal Mining and Smelting company, Idaho; American Metal company, New Mexico; Magma Copper company, Arizona; Anaconda Copper company, Montana.

Asarco Mining company, New Mexico; Shenandoah-Dives company, Colorado; Tonopah Mining company, Nevada; United Verde Extension Mining company, Arizona; Eureka Standard Mining company, Utah; Utah Copper company, Utah; Crescent Mining company, Idaho; Butte Copper and Zinc company, Montana; Bluestone Iron Quartz Mining company, Utah; Combined Metals Reduction company, Nevada; Homestake Mining company, South Dakota, and Alaskan Juneau Mining company, Alaska.

Obscurity Cloaks Ownership.

Who the owners of these potent metal companies are is, for the most part, cloaked in obscurity, as is each company's individual output. Reports on the value of their products are submitted to the bureau of mines confidentially. Their ownership is not revealed even there.

Although the operations of these 39 big corporations are concentrated largely in 9 western states, there are 11 states, as well as Alaska and the Philippines, which had reaped profits from the New Deal money experimentation, the bureau of the mint revealed.

Produce Most of Gold.

Nine states, plus Alaska and the Philippines, last year produced 81 per cent of the nation's gold, or $87,100,000 worth out of $107,631,700. These states are California, South Dakota, Colorado, Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, and Utah.

Silver is an even more tightly held monopoly. Eight states produce 91 per cent of the total output, or $19,600,000 worth out of $20,300,000. These states, home of the congressional silver bloc, are: Idaho, Utah, Arizona, Montana, Colorado, California, Nevada, and New Mexico.

U. S. SILVER HOLDING

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Silver acquisitions last year by the United States government are put at 317,400,000 ounces by Handy & Harman in their annual review of the silver market for 1934. Domestic production delivered to the mints under President Roosevelt's proclamation of Dec. 21, 1933, is estimated at 21,400,000 ounces, while metal requisitioned under the nationalization order of Aug. 9 amounted to 110,999,635 ounces, bringing acquisitions under these two classifications to about 132,400,000 ounces. Open market purchases, at home and abroad, are estimated at 185,000,000 ounces.

Handy & Harman explain that receipts under the President's proclamation to Dec. 21 last amounted to 20,759,000 ounces, but in order to allow for the full calendar year they increased the figure representing mint deliveries to 21,400,000 ounces.

Open Market Purchases.

"With respect to the third classification, namely, open market purchases at home and abroad, no official information is available," the firm continues."

On the basis of gold holdings of $8,230,000,000 at the end of the year, Handy & Harman find it would be necessary for the government to acquire a total of about 2,125,000,000 ounces of silver in order that silver should constitute one-fourth of the monetary value of the total gold and silver stocks. Estimating present silver holdings of the government at 1,003,400,000 ounces, the firm places the unfilled requirements of the government at more than 1,120,000,000 ounces.

"In order to comprehend the importance of this buying program from a market standpoint," the review says, "it should be remembered that world production of silver for the last three years has averaged only about 170,000,000 ounces, and that even under the stimulus of higher prices a return to the previous peak figures of 250,000,000 ounces annually is unlikely unless there also occurs a substantial advance in the prices of those base metals which are mined in conjunction with silver.

A Long Time Program.

"From the future yearly output, whether it be 170,000,000 ounces or 250,000,000 ounces, there should be deducted a sufficient amount to cover industrial consumption and the coinage requirements of other countries—let us say 50,000,000 ounces. On this basis, which makes no allowance for absorption of the white metal by India and China, amounting under normal conditions to approximately 75 per cent of the annual production, it would take from seven to twelve years for the United States treasury to complete its purchases out of production."

BONDS ADVANCE AS INVESTMENT DEMAND EXPANDS

Secondary Liens Make Best Gains Last Week.

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A broad and active market for bonds pushed prices of listed corporation loans up substantially last week. Principal gains were enjoyed by secondary loans, although many prime company issues edged up to their highest levels in the last year or longer.

While the market did not do a great deal immediately following the New Year's holiday, there was an unusual expansion of reinvestment demand on Thursday, when transfers amounted to more than $21,000,000, the largest aggregate for a single day since Aug. 9 last. There was some late profit taking in those bonds that had moved ahead sharply in recent sessions. However, offerings in most instances were scarce and buyers of low yield issues generally were forced to raise their bids.

Roosevelt Message Ignored.

The President's message to congress was about in line with expectations and did not cause any exceptional repercussions one way or the other. United States government securities did not indicate any great fear of inflation, notwithstanding the numerous bills pertaining to this subject which were introduced at the opening of congress.

Federal loans, however, were somewhat irregular at times. Some of the mild reactions here were attributed to reports that an additional $3,000,000,000 might be sought for the Home Owners' Loan corporation. Senator Wagner subsequently introduced a bill to increase the loaning power of the HOLC by $1,000,000,000.

Announcement that the country's public debt had reached a record peak of $28,478,663,924 on Dec. 31 did not appear to disturb the market unduly.

Idle Funds Key to Market.

Idle funds were still considered the principal factor in the bond market. With the return of $94,000,000 from circulation following the holidays, the excess reserves of the federal reserve system approached the high level of $1,800,000,000. At the same time four of the largest New York banks reported they had increased their deposits $1,086,680,000.

Foreign obligations were a little unsettled. Brazilian loans broke on cable advances that the South American government had decided to suspend interest payments on external debts owing to the lack of foreign exchange.

RETAILERS WILL GIVE VIEWS ON JOB INSURANCE

Retailers of the nation will give congress their opinions on the type of legislation that should be adopted to satisfy President Roosevelt's program for unemployment insurance. Meetings will be held in this connection today in Chicago, New York, Washington, Boston, San Francisco, and a number of smaller cities.

The meeting at noon today in the Palmer house will give middle west retailers an opportunity to learn of the various kinds of proposed insurance. Harold W. Story, vice president of the Allis-Chalmers company, will talk on "The Wisconsin Plan." Dean Ralph E. Heilman of the Northwestern university school of commerce will tell of "The Four Way Plan." "The Ohio and Three Way Plans" will be discussed by Carl W. Bergquist of the Western Electric Co. A vote will be taken, and data in support of the plan chosen will be presented to congress.

Included on the committee of merchants who arranged the Chicago gathering are John McKinlay of Marshall Field & Co., D. F. Kelly of The Fair, and John T. Pirie of Carson Pirie Scott & Co.

TEXTILE PLANT IS CLOSED DUE TO LOW WAGE MILLS

Boston, Mass., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Officials of the Pepperell Manufacturing company today announced that they had closed part of their plant in Biddeford, Me., "because of competition from mills located where wages, taxes, and freight rates are more favorable."

"On Dec. 31 the company closed down a part of its plant at Biddeford which contributes only 5 per cent of the total sales of the company," officials said. "It is not anticipated, however, that any of this 5 per cent will be lost, inasmuch as the product of this closed portion of the plant will be taken up by other departments. Some of the goods will be made in the company's southern mills and others will be handled by one of the company's converting departments."

In addition to its plant in Biddeford the Pepperell company has plants at Lewiston, Me.; Fall River, Mass.; Opelika, Ala., and Linsdale, Ga.

FARM CREDIT GROUP LAUDED BY ROOSEVELT

Cites the Efforts Against Foreclosures.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—W. I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit administration, tonight made public a letter of President Roosevelt's praising all who have aided in farm debt adjustments.

The letter was occasioned by the submission by Mr. Myers of the annual report of the FCA. The report showed that alphabetic unit, through its county debt adjustment committees, had aided 35,000 farmers in 2,600 counties of 44 states.

"I am glad to have your report," the President wrote of Mr. Myers, "and was especially interested in what you say about the many thousands of farmers whose homes have been saved through the efforts of local groups of public spirited men and women.

Governors' Help Asked.

"As I recall it, it was about a year ago that the state governors were asked to set up agricultural credit councils to deal with a most difficult problem—the threat of foreclosure, which confronted large numbers of our deserving farmers—and the generous community service rendered by them in helping farm debtors and their creditors to reach mutually satisfactory adjustments is highly commendable.

"However, words of praise from you or me add but little to the only form of compensation they have received, i. e., the high satisfaction of knowing they have contributed so materially to the renewal of hope in almost defeated men, the happy play of children made more secure in their farm homes, the grateful appreciation of thousands of farm families, holding their heads a little higher and looking with renewed confidence to the future.

Calls Effort Unselfish.

The Meyers report pointed with pride that the FCA closed the books on its 1934 business with record of having loaned on an average over five million dollars a day for every day in the year. Including farm mortgage loans and production and marketing credit the FCA loaned $1,380,000,000 during the last year.

MEN.

EARN $125 TO $400 IN JANUARY.

OUR PROGRAM OF EXPANSION MAKES POSSIBLE OPENINGS FOR A FEW ADDITIONAL, SERIOUS MINDED MEN WHO ARE INTERESTED IN EARNING UP TO $400, IN JANUARY, WITH THIS GREAT COMPANY. THE AVERAGE EARNINGS OF OUR MEN HAVE BEEN INCREASING STEADILY DURING THE PAST FIVE YEARS. MR. GEORGE BENTLEY, THE MAN WITH WHOM YOU WILL TALK REGARDING THIS BUSINESS, EARNED OVER $100 IN COMMISSION HIS FIRST WEEK SELLING OUR ELECTRICAL UNIT. NO INVESTMENT OR COST TO YOU OF ANY KIND. APPLY MONDAY BEFORE 1 P. M., ROOM 329, AT 9 S. KEDZIE-AV. ASK FOR MR. BENTLEY.

MEN.

CICERO, BERWYN AND SUBURBS.

An opportunity to earn substantial commissions at once is available to men of character and determination. Our unit which is mechanically operated, sells quickly with our demonstration. No cost or investment required. If you have the desire to earn money consistently and in substantial volume, call Monday, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Mr. Larsen, Hotel Annetta, 2417 S. 52d-av., Cicero, Ill.

I have a special merchandising territory that, without putting in a dollar yourself, should yield you $3,500 in 1935—scaling from nominal beginning to steady comm. increases.

North Side resident selected must have good character; experience and familiarity with electrical unit, construction and operation not required, as it is easily learned. We will spend considerable developing this territory for man selected. Call for interview immediately if accepted. Call for interview 3 p. m. only. Room 208, at 1753 Howard-st., Monday, Jan. 7.

Consider your Future—SELECT MARINELLO

Only Marinello Can Give You

THE WORLD FAMOUS MARINELLO TRAINING

It is true MARINELLO training costs you a few dollars more. But remember—in Beauty Culture there is no substitute for the complete and thorough training MARINELLO gives its graduates. Don't be handicapped by inferior training throughout your career. Choose MARINELLO—the school that guarantees proficiency to every graduate.

During the past 25 years more than 55,000 ambitious women, seeking successful careers in Beauty Culture, chose the internationally famous Marinello System of training.

There are many schools offering courses in Beauty Culture. All of them cannot be the best. Which one will you select? It is an important decision—as the extent of your earning power depends on the type of training you receive.

Don't buy your training in the art of Beauty Culture on a basis of the cheapness of the course. An apparent savings in tuition now may be a great handicap to you in years to come. Marinello training is built up to a standard, not down to a price.

VISIT OUR SCHOOL.

MARINELLO is the largest and most famous Beauty Culture System in the world. At Marinello there are no "extra charges" for equipment and supplies. Our Tuition Rate Covers Everything!

NOW!—Marinello Offers New Easy Payment Plan

Free employment service—or we will help you establish your own business. Complete set of instruments, textbooks, and all cosmetics furnished without charge to all students enrolling for day or evening classes now forming. Mail the coupon for full information and FREE Booklet, including eight photographs of various Marinello classes at work.

BURNHAM'S

The easy-to-learn Burnham System quickly enables you to become a skilled beauty operator. Plenty of living models. You learn by doing rather than by studying. Each teacher a specialist. Fewer pupils per teacher. 64 years knowing how to teach gives you a flying start.

SEE FOR YOURSELF WHY MORE GIRLS ENROLL AT BURNHAM'S THAN IN ANY OTHER BEAUTY SCHOOL.

Wonderful opportunity for those who enroll now. Pay for MOST of your tuition after graduating. You can take advantage of many money-saving offers. Our advice to every girl who wants to take up beauty culture is to visit Burnham's NOW. Call for Free Beauty Book T. Open every day and on Monday, Wednesday, Friday evenings.

93 Rescued from Liner Wrecked on Reef in Bahama Islands—Trial of Bruno Hauptmann to Be Resumed Today
